Time runs out on draft; volunteer era begins

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The military draft, a gloomy fact of life for a generation of young men from Korea through Vietnam, no longer exists.

With the dawning of a new fiscal year today, the President lost his authority to order youths inducted into the armed forces of the United States and the long-debated era of the all volunteer Army became a legal reality, subject only to change by act of Congress.

The start of 1974 fiscal year also marked the birth of two new, 90-day experimental programs to attract more volunteers into the Army National Guard and the Arm yreserve—the two branches of the military hit hardest by the end of the draft.

Both plans reduced the length of time a reserve or guard volunteer would have to attend weekend drills. The standard enlistment system calls for six months of active duty, followed by five and one-half years of drills with a local unit.

Today marks the first time since 1948 that the President has lacked induction authority, with the exception of a three-month period in the fall of 1971 when Congress temporarily allowed the draft law to lapse.

In actual fact, no young men have been inducted into the armed forces since last December. But the draft halt ordered last Jan. 27 by then-Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird was a voluntary move, made possible by increased volunteers and a decrease in the size of the armed forces.

Although the draft has ended, the selective service system continues to register draft-age youths and holds an annual draft lottery. This provides a pool of men who could be called if Congress reinstates the President's induction powers.

Deputy Defense Secretary William Clements, in a recent interview with UPI, said he was optimistic the armed forces could meet their personnel requirements in the future without the draft.

"In doing this, however, we will have to make more effective use of the resources we have," Clements said. He specifically mentioned increasing the number of women in uniform and hiring more civilians to perform nonmilitary jobs — a strategy that already is underway.

The recruiting problems of an all volunteer military are compounded by fears that some military officials will try to sabotage the concept and that recruiters may resort to illegal practices in trying to meet enlistment goals.

Out-going defense manpower chief Roger T. Kelly told UPI recently that some opponents of the all volunteer force are ready to force a return to the draft. And the Army has recently penalized 107 recruiters in 37 states for alleged recruiting violations.

C. T. Richardson ends 40-year career on P-B

During his career with this newspaper, Richardson has successively held the positions of advertising salesman, circulation manager, business manager, president and general manager, and for the past five years publisher.

In his more than four decades as a newspaperman, Richardson has seen the Progress-Bulletin grow in circulation from approximately 7,000 daily to more than 43,000 copies a day and more than double the number of fulltime employes.

Replacing Richardson as general manager of the Progress-Bulletin is Bob Bush, who joined the management team of this newspaper last February from general manager of Bonita Publishing Company.

Richardson said he was pleased to turn the reins of management over to Bush, "whose philosophy of the role of a newspaper is consistent with the Progress-Bulletin's constant goal of service to the community it serves."

Richardson plans to live and work in this area and he will continue to have an office in the Progress-Bulletin building. He will devote himself to outside business interests and participation in various community organizations, including service on the boards of Los Angeles County Fair and Pomona First Federal Savings and Loan Association.

Born and reared in Pomona, Richardson was destined for a newspaper career. His father, A. T. Richardson, who died in 1972, was associated with the daily newspaper since 1903 and had been one of its owners since 1905.

Charles Richardson began his own newspaper career as a boy, working during the summers in the circulation and advertising departments. He graduated from Pomona College in 1933 and after a year of graduate study in business administration at Harvard University he joined the Progress-Bulletin staff full time.

CHARLES T. RICHARDSON

In 1948 he was made business manager. Later he became general manager and president, not only of the Progress-Bulletin, but also of the Daily Report in Ontario when that newspaper was acquired in 1965.

Since 1967, when the Progress-Bulletin Publishing Company became part of the Donrey Media Group, Richardson has been publisher of the Progress-Bulletin.

Through the years Richardson has assumed numerous leadership roles in the community and in his field of work. He is currently serving on the boards of Pomona YMCA, Claremont Graduate School, Pilgrim Place and Le Roy Boys Home. For many years he has been active in Pilgrim Congregational Church. In 1969 the Pomona Jaycees presented him their Boss of the Year Award.

Richardson and his wife, Jean, have three grown children and five grandchildren.

To begin in mid-'74

Hike in S. S. benefits OK'd in compromise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress passed legislation Saturday to increase Social Security benefits for 30 million elderly Americans in mid-1974 and adopted several critical money bills needed before expiration of the current fiscal year at midnight.

The Social Security measure and one placing an Aug. 15 deadline on U.S. involvement in Indochina had the reluctant blessing of the White House after Congress spent at least three days working out compromises.

The Social Security bill, which cleared the House by an overwhelming 327-9 margin and the Senate a few minutes later in a voice vote, provides a 5.6 per cent across-the-board raise in monthly checks, beginning July 3, 1974.

The raise would mean an increase from $161 to $170 a month for individuals qualifying for maximum benefits and from $277 to $293 for couples. An additional $35.10 would be withheld from the paychecks of workers earning $12,600 or more during 1974.

Both the House and Senate moved swiftly to complete action on the assorted bills in the rare Saturday session and then adjourned for a 10-day Fourth of July recess.

The legislation was flown immediately to San Clemente, Calif., where President Nixon was spending "working" vacation and expected to sign the bills.

The compromise to end involvement in Indochina by Aug. 15 was tacked onto a spending bill that would permit continued operation of all government agencies until their 1974 appropriations are approved. It passed Saturday by a 266-75 vote in the House and voice vote in the Senate.

The same end-the-war language was adopted by Congress as part of another bill Friday night. Nixon has agreed to sign both.

In other swift developments:

—Congress approved a bill extending the $465 billion national debt ceiling through Nov. 30.

—The Senate voted, 73-1, to approve a $19.2 billion appropriations bill to fund federal housing, science, veterans and space programs for the 1974 fiscal year. The House passed a different version and a conference will be required after the recess.

—The Senate passed, 61-1, a bill suspending import duties on brushes, but containing an amendment by Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., to allow the agriculture secretary to lift price freezes on agriculture commodities which otherwise would be in short supply.

The Social Security measure was a compromise quickly fashioned by congressional leaders after the House voted late Friday to defeat the increases. The White House had said that President Nixon probably would veto the original version on grounds that it was too expensive.

Californians pay penny more in sales tax

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Californians start paying an extra penny sales tax today — $1.7 million a day solely because of an unresolved, angry dispute between the state legislature and Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The state does not need the money. It has an unexpected surplus of $821 million.

The new tax was enacted last December before the surplus was publicly acknowledged. Later lawmakers and the governor both proposed to postpone the extra tax until January.

After months of wrangling, both houses of the legislature voted overwhelmingly for a bill to postpone the tax and give income taxpayers a onetime 30 per cent rebate, limited to $200 a couple.

Nixon on radio

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — President Nixon will make a radio address to the nation today on the economy.

A White House spokesman said the broadcast, which was taped at the Western White House Saturday afternoon, would be 15-20 minutes long. He said it would be aired at 9 a.m. (PDT) on all major radio networks.

Service to valley schools to continue

P-B completes first year of VEC newspaper-in-the-classroom program

The Progress-Bulletin has completed its first year of providing Visual Education Consultants (VEC) filmstrips and teacher kits and copies of the daily newspaper to 47 area schools.

P-B General Manager Bob G. Bush said Saturday that on the basis of the response received, the newspaper would one again provide the service to the schools, beginning in September.

"We are delighted with the really great response we received from the schools," said Bush. "We look forward to placing these valuable learning materials back into the classrooms for use by the school children."

Also, the P-B will schedule another fall workshop for teachers. Last year's workshop was held at Griswold's in Claremont. Teacher Evelyn M. Vaughn of Sumner Elementary School, Claremont, sait it helped her to use the flimstrips in better ways, and in her evaluation of the program added, "I now feel the filmstrips are a fine teaching tool for the advanced language arts group."

Along with the VEC program, the P-B also will continue its sister feature, The News Quiz. In fact, this feature will continue through the summer. This coming week, it will have a special hisorical look and will focus on the Breznev visit, recent Supreme Court decisions, the Statue of Liberty and Independence Hall.

One of the "really great responses" Bush referred to came from Sister Carol Ann of Our Lady of Assumption School in Claremont.

"I enjoy the VEC very much" she wrote. "It's the best help I have seen yet in teaching current events. Out of the three grades, 6th, 7th and 8th, the 6th grade seems to benefit the most."

"Most stimulating to children," wrote Mrs. Elaine Harper, a teacher at Allen Avenue Elementary School, San Dimas. "It is one of the best things that has happened to us in a long time.

"It improves student thinking and reading skills and gives students a greater awareness of the world around them."

Bert Clay, 6th grade teacher at La Verne Heights School in La Verne, said: "My students have shown a keen interest in current events which can, for the most part, be credited to the VEC program. I'm 100 per cent for this program. Many thanks to the kind people at the Progress-Bulletin!"

Teacher Marshall Manthorne of Walnut Elementary School, wrote: "Children seem to be more aware of current world problems and situations.

"The news articles shared with classmate are tending to be more relevant to the students and their futures."

F. E. Roper, teacher at Simons Junior High School in Pomona, wrote: "VEC news filmstrips are very helpful in getting students to show greater interest in current events in my history headlines class.

"The students are beginning to show more interest in reading newspapers and are more interested in classroom discussions of news events. In fact, they look forward to the showing of the filmstrip each week."

Reagan trims $80 million, signs budget

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan, trimming $80 million in proposed spending, signed into law a record $9.371 billion state budget Saturday, representing roughly $467 for every man, woman and child in California.

The largest-in-the-nation spending package included sizable pay hikes for state workers, millions for parkland acquisition and nearly a billion dillars in surplus.

It also contained a 31 per cent jump in state school aid, the biggest ever, as well as money for a new Capitol and governor's mansion.

Under Reagan's blue penciling, the inch-thick document shrunk in expense from $9.46 billion as submitted by the legislature with cuts to welfare, child care centers and governmental administrative costs, among others.

It represents a 28 per cent increase in spending from last year's $7.7 billion budget, which amounts to about $385 a person, and is $600 milion more costly than New York's.

Seen half-way round world

Spectacular eclipse of sun

NOVACHOTT, Mauritania (UPI)—The moon's shadow crept nearly half-way round the world Saturday in the second longest eclipse of the sun in recorded history, scientists said.

In this northwest African city, Moslem holy men called believers to prayers in the mosques and tribesmen buttoned their robes as temperatures dropped markedly from the 100 degree Fahreneit average.

Nouakchott was in the path of totality where the 7 minute, 4 second eclipse started at 6:39 a.m. EDT.

Darkness fell swiftly as the moon moved across the sun, blotting out all but a tiny crescent.

Elated scientists in inland Chinguetti reported winds blew up up when eclipse began, dispersing clouds which threatened to wreck their carefully staged observations. Said one scientific worker: "We can now do good work."

The belt of shade thrown by the moon spread across the earth from northeast Brazil, over the Atlantic Ocean and all of Africa ending east of Madagascar in the Indian Ocean.

A 161-mile belt of totality was edged on either side by an area of lesser shadow stretching as far north as France and Yugoslavia and south to almost the Cape of Good Hope in South Africa.

The eclipse was the second longest since the year 717 A.D. It was four seconds shorter than one on June 20, 1955, and tied for the second longest with the June 8, 1937, eclipse.

Warren to administer oath today to Bradley

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — With 82-year-old former Chief Justice Earl Warren administering the oath, Thomas Bradley takes office as mayor of Los Angeles today before 2,500 invited guests and an anticipated spectator crowd of thousands.

Bradley is the city's 37th mayor but he will go down in history as its first black chief executive, winning election in the nation's third biggest metropolis by a wide margin with an electorate only 18 per cent black.

Dignitaries from throughout the state and as far away as New York will join in the inaugural which starts with the ceremony on City Hall steps followed by a parade through downtown streets and a gala outdoor ball at the Convention Center Sunday night.

Conspicuous by his absence will be outgoing Mayor Sam Yorty.

Defeated by Bradley in his bid for a fourth consecutive term as mayor, Yorty was sailing on a cruise ship on vacation in the Alaskan inland waterway. A Bradley aide said Yorty had been sent an invitation to the inaugural but that no reply was received.

U.S. Sen. Alan Cranston will deliver the principal address. Among those in the VIP seats will be former Sen. Eugene M[illegible]hy; Thomas Mellon, chief administr[illegible]e officer of San Francisco; Assembl[illegible] Speaker Robert Moretti; state treasurer Ivy Baker Priest, and Percy Sutton, president of the borough of Manhattan in New York.

Gov. Ronald Reagan was invited but sent his regrets that he had a previous engagement.

The mayors of most of the nearby Southern California cities were expected plus Bradley's fellow city councilmen, judges and clergymen and a number of show business figures.

Former Gov. Edmund G. "Pat" Brown was expected in addition to Congressmen Glen Anderson, Alphonso Bell, George E. Brown Jr. and Yvonne Braithwaite Burke.

Vickie Carr will sing the national anthem. Conductor Quincy Jones and his orchestra accompany O. C. Smith, who will sing "The Impossible Dream" and Florence Henderson, who will sing the theme song from "The Sound of Music."

The proudest spectator no doubt will be Mrs. Ethel Bradley who met Tom at the New Hope Baptist Church 41 years ago and married him after an eight year courtship in 1941. She will be accompanied by their daughters, Lorraine, 29, and Phyllis, 27.

New England hit by heavy rains and flash flooding

By United Press International

Heavy rains and flooding virtually disabled the southern two thirds of Vermont Saturday and flash flood conditions were reported in four New England states and eastern New York.

Gov. Thomas Salmon of Vermont declared a state of emergency and activated the National Guard as many cities were isolated by high waters.

The National Weather Service issued flash flood warnings for Vermont, New Hampshire, western Massachusetts, Connecticut and extreme eastern New York. A flash flood watch was posted for the remainder of New England.

Mobile homes were reported floating in the Black River near Wilmington, Vt., which got nearly five inches of rain in six hours. Auto campers floated in the Black River near Plymouth.

Water rose to four feet in parts of Norwich, Vt., and there was no drinking water there. Water from taps was muddy.

Streets in Barre, Vt., were under a foot of water and 250 persons were evacuated from the Mountain Home Trailer Park in West Brattleboro.

Eight persons were rescued by a National Guard helicopter at Bridgewater, Vt., and seven feet of water stood in the General Electric Co. plant at Ludlow. An elderly couple was evacuated by boat from a home on the banks of Bloody Creek.

A bridge carrying Vermont 7 over alternate Vermont 4 was washed out and roads were impassable in many parts of the state.

The rains, which began Friday night, dumped up to seven inches in parts of Vermont. In New York state, parts of which received five inches of rain in 24 hours, the rains tapered off by Saturday afternoon, but heavy rainfall continued into the afternoon in western Massachusettes.

The Ellenville, N.Y., area had serious flooding and the chairman of the Ulster County Legislature declared the area a disaster area. Water flowed down Cape Avenue, the main street in Ellenville.

Sixty to 100 persons were evacuated by helicopter from the Broken Wheel Campground in eastern Rensselaer County, New York, while waters of the Little Hoosick River overflowed their banks. Trailers inthe area also flooded.

Stricken ship docks; some threaten suits

MIAMI (UPI) — The 720 passengers stricken by an intestinal ailment aboard the cruise ship Skyward came ashore Saturday, some threatening lawsuits for the "sevenday nightmare" and others joking about the diarrhea epidemic.

Two passengers were ordered hospitalized. Public Health doctors who boarded the ship shortly after it arrived here early Saturday said the two were hospitalized "just as a precaution against dehydration."

The cruise was cut short off the northern coast of the Dominican Republic Thursday morning when an intestinal disease doctors have tentatively diagnosed as "shigella" swept through the luxury ship, striking nearly all the 720 passengers and about half the 300 crewmen with diarrhea, vomiting, cramps and fever.

The ship's captain decided to bypass a stop in the Bahamas and instead headed for Miami at full speed.

"It was a seven-day nightmare," said Mrs. Nancy Glasscock of Fort Worth, Tex. "I'll never take another cruise."

But Mrs. John Malpas of Mobile, Ala., who celebrated her 10th wedding anniversary aboard the 525-foot cruise ship, said that "everybody became much friendlier" when the ailment began sweeping through the ship Monday after a stop in Haiti.

"Both my husband and I were ill, but we didn't let it faze us at all. The service was excellent," she said, "and it was just an unfortunate incident."

But Joseph Ferrara of Pompano Beach, Fla., was not in such good humor.

"I'm still sick and my wife is sick," he said. "They're (the ship line) going to be sued by a lot of people."

Dr. Michael Merson, who flew here from the National Health Service regional headquarters in Atlanta, said there was every indication the ailment "may be shigella." He said it would probably take from one to five days for the passengers and crew to recover."

"All that we can truthfully say at this time is that there is evidence of contamination of the water supply on the ship," Merson said. "We cannot say for sure. We're going to conduct some more tests," he said.

Severe quake rocks Tehran buildings

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — A severe earthquake shook buildings in this Iranian capital Saturday and knocked out instruments and recording equipment in the Tehran university's geophysics department.

There was no immediate report on casualties or damage.

"The shock was extremely severe and has completely put our Tehran master clock out of order and we are in no position to record anything at present," a geophysics spokesman at the university said.

The department said, however, it had received rue ge ehran tgn received an urgent message from the Shiraz geophysics center confirming a "most severe shock" 440 miles north of Shiraz — putting it in th general area of Tehran, which is about 450 miles north of Shiraz.

The Shiraz seismic observatory said the tremor occurred at 9:37 a.m. EDT with a force of six to six and one-half on the Mercali scale.

The geophysics department in Tehran said it did not know where the shock was centered because of its damaged equipment but believed it was not very far from Tehran because of the "intensity" of the shock.

The quake was felt so strongly in Tehran that it shook most of the buildings in the capital.

FRESNO, Calif. (UPI) — A Los Angeles man who hijacked a Greyhound busload of passengers and killed a sleeping sailor sat in his jail cell Saturday refusing to talk.

Johnny Smith, 18, was booked by Fresno County sheriff's deputies on charges of murder, kidnaping and robbery. Deputies said they were able to obtain little other information about who Smith was.

According to witnesses, Smith stood up in the bus without apparent reason and began hitting with his hands the sailor across the aisle, Calvin Wilson, 22, Fresno, on his throat.

The driver, Ronald D. Miller, stopped the bus. For a moment it seemed he was successful in quieting Smith down, and Miller pulled the bus back on the highway.

Smith ran to the front of the bus, broke the rear view mirror, and, holding a piece of broken glass, ordered Miller to drive to Los Angeles.

Miller said he did not have enough gas, and talked Smith into taking the bus to a hospital. Enroute, Smith rifled women's purses and forced 16 passengers to stand and repeat three times, "I am not insane."

At the Valley Medical Center entrance, Smith grabbed Mrs. Margaret Harris of Vallejo, Calif., and forced her to accompany him inside. When he stopped to take a drink from a water fountain, she escaped.

Smith was subdued by Roger Peck, an inhalation therapist, and James Risenhoover, a hospital security officer, when Smith went into a utility room where he began smashing bottles.

As Smith held a gallon bottle over his head, Peck calmly approached him and said, "Set it down."

Wilson, the sailor, was found dead. Sheriff's Lt. Stan Barnes said Wilson and Smith were not acquainted.

First statue of black in Richmond

Bill 'Bojangles' Robinson honored

RICHMOND, Va. (upi) —Bill "Bojangles" Robinson was an almost mythical hero to a generation of blacks, his dancing lifting him above the shuffling roles he and other blacks were given in movies and on the stage in the 30s and 40s.

Said to have been the man who taught Shirley Temple how to dance, Bojangles played the sage and faithful servant in such syrupy Temple films as "Rebecca of Sunnybook Farm" and "The Little Colonel."

He won a reputation as the "King of the Tap Dancers" in the 30s and 40s after dancing for pennies as a child in his home town of Richmond, a city steeped in its history as the capital of the Confederacy, a city filled with memorials to heroes of the Civil War.

Bojangles joined Robert E. Lee and the others memorialized by statues throughout the city Saturday, the first time a black has been so honored in Richmond.

A nine-foot aluminum statue, depicting Bojangles in the tap dance on a flight of stairs he made famous in his roles in movies and theaters.

Robinson died in 1949 and his fame dimished with time. But the legend was revived, both for blacks and whites, by a pop song that used "Bojanges" as the figurative subject.

The unveiling of the statue of Robinson was a poignant reminder of what Robinson was and, to some extent, what he might have been.

Lawrence Douglas Wilder, the only black Virginia state senator, said Robinson was "the greatest" at what he tried to do.

"That was to dance through the minds and fancy of audiences too vast to enumerate and too awed by his excellence to care about the color of his skin," Wilder said.

"Bill Robinson took what he had and used it," Wilder said. "Shackled with deprivation, burdened by a negligent majority, he carved his image on the American scene, an image that is further heightened by this moment."

Marsh said the monument "acknowledges the contribution of all black people in the city, the commonwealth of Virginia and the nation."

The high-spirited Robinson was born in Richmond in 1878, earning money in his childhood years by selling newspapers, shelling black-eyed peas for two cents a quart, delivering groceries and dancing in streets and beer gardens.

Wife beaten in vacation dispute

COVINA — An argument about where to go on their vacation led to the beating with a leather belt of a 44-year-old woman here by her husband, sheriff's deputies reported.

Alexindrine A. Werner suffered what deputies described as "massive contusions" on her body, from her waist to her ankles, plus a broken bone in one finger and a cut on her face. She was taken to Covina Inter-Community Hospital where she was released after treatment.

Deputies arrested Walter Curt Werner, 52, on suspicion of felonious wife-beating. They said he told them he used the belt on his wife because she was arguing with him and "had forgotten her place as a German woman."

Later, deputies reported, Mrs. Werner said she was uncertain about prosecuting her husband.

Health dept. plans classes in nutrition

Normal nutrition, weight control and healthy heart diets will be discussed. There will be food demonstrations, slides and free recipes to be handed out.

Registrations will be accepted at the first two class meetings July 9 and 10. All classes will be from 10 a.m. to noon.

Classes scheduled are July 9-12, July 16-19, and July 23-26.

Horror of New Orleans fire burns social conscience

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The Rev. Bill Larson and his tiny congregation had sweated through a Sunday service at the ramshackle Metropolitan Community Church and he finally decided to seek out a friend who had promised to donate a used air conditioner.

Hot, wet air in the 90s had rolled in off the Gulf all day and that night Larson went to The Up Stairs bar to meet his friend.

It turned out to be a bad choice of meeting places.

Larson met his friend at 5 p.m., the beginning of the bar's weekly beer bust. By 8:12 p.m. Larson, his friend and 27 other persons were dead. The Up Stairs, a plush gay bar with flocked red velvet wallpaper and deep scarlet carpet, was a smoking, reeking ruin.

Two bodies were found huddled beneath a charred white piano, four were in the men's room and the remaining 23 were found stacked beneath three windows they had not been able to reach.

Larson, the minister of a church for homosexuals, was the closest to freedom. His torso actually extended out the window. His arms hung over the second floor ledge into the muggy night. His charred face, frozen in a final look of horror, gaped open-mouthed at the crowds below.

The fire took just 16 minutes to raze the bar, kill the 29 and injure 15 more. By then the firemen had put it out but in that brief time it had become the worst fire tragedy in modern New Orleans history.

Minutes before the fire, Larson had left his friends sitting at a table in the second section of the three-room lounge. A crowd was gathered around the piano.

"I never saw him again," said one of Larson's friends. "The next time I look that way all I saw was a wall of fire.

"He just got up to walk over there. It seemed like he had just left. I said a few words to this other guy and all of a sudden somebody hollered fire."

Larson's friends in the second section were the lucky ones. They followed Doug Rasmussen, the bar manager, through a doorway, into a small theater and out a fire door onto an adjoining roof.

The beer bust had been over for 56 minutes when the fire broke out; otherwise, more would likely have died. Between 5 and 7 p.m. there had been 130 people at The Up Stairs. When the first alarm was turned in, only 80 or so were still there.

Officials said more would have escaped had it not been for thin plywood panels which blocked the windows.

All probably could have been saved, said one official, if the patrons had scrambled for a clearly marked exit rather than the windows.

A 65-foot snorkel truck backed up to the 125-year-old building on the fringe of the French Quarter to haul the bodies away. There was no other way to bring the dead down. A narrow wooden stairway leading to the lounge had been turned to charcoal.

A crew from the Orleans Parish coroner's office entered the smouldering bar to begin separating the bodies.

First came the four bodies from the men's room. They were lifted one by one and lowered to the street, where stretchers lined the sidewalk.

Then came the two from beneath the piano.

The first six bodies were no problem. But when it came to separating the charred and melted pile of flesh near the windows, the workers took a long break.

The horror of the site was written on their faces. Two men dressed in blue coroner's office uniforms bent to grab the body of Bill Larson.

The Rev. Troy Perry, national founder of the Metropolitan Community Churches, flew in from Los Angeles within hours of the fire.

Besides Larson, the New Orleans MCC had lost at least 10 of its 38 members, and Perry was in town to organize a national day of mourning.

At a brief memorial service the day after the fire, Perry said what many had thought since the blaze.

"In the gay community it's pretty well believed that it was arson," he said. "The fire spread just too quickly."

Nearly all the survivors agreed.

"It was just like somebody had shot a flamethrower through the door," said one of the men at Larson's table. "The flames just went from one side of the room to the other like that."

New Orleans Fire Superintendent William McCrossen said that "you'd just have to suspect arson. I strongly suspect arson."

Several witnesses said they smelled something like gasoline shortly before the fires and there were reports of a fight at the bar moments before the flames.

But, preliminary lab reports by the New Orleans Police Department failed to turn up any trace of combustibles in the charred rubble, and Assistant State Fire Marshal Timothy Driscoll said he thought a final report would show the fire was "accidental and spontaneous."

Driscoll said the rapid spread of the fire could have been caused by several factors, including the condition of the building. He went as far as to say that dozens of old buildings in the French Quarter constitute "a disaster waiting to happen."

Perry said his church was accepting donations to provide funerals for those victims whose families could not afford them. Any left over funds, he said, would be used to build a church —a church with an air conditioner —in memory of Larson and those who were killed in the Up Stairs fire.

But funds have been slow coming from the community.

At the quiet memorial services the night after the fire, Perry acknowledged the public sentiment. He said he hoped The Up Stairs fire might move "straight people" to some understanding and acceptance of homosexuals.

"This has been on the news and everything," he said. "One person made the remark, 'Oh, it was just a bunch of fags.' But you know something, it was a group of people."

Here's difference between freeze of 1971 and latest

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The muscle behind President Nixon's price freeze is the power he is asking from Congress to control farm exports. Here's why:

The initial reaction most people may have had to the President's freeze on retail prices is to say here we go again. Isn't this just where we came in in August, 1971, when the President also froze prices, except at a much lower level?

The answer is yes —but. The but is important.

The President didn't ask for export controls then. Quite the opposite. The administration then was in the process of trying to push sales of American commodities overseas, including big sales to Russia and China.

Now Nixon has decided it is more important to control inflation at home than to develop markets overseas.

In the President's own words he had made a "basic decision: in allocating the products of America's farms between markets abroad and those in the United States, we must put the American consumer first."

He believes that export controls can help keep food prices down.

For example, a freeze doesn't allow a retailer to charge any more for his merchandise even though other costs go up —like labor, rent, taxes and the cost of farm products. These are being left uncontrolled by the President

The theory is that if the consumer doesn't pay more, the retailer will resist price increases at the wholesale level, and the wholesaler, not being able to charge more, will resist paying higher prices for the raw goods.

What if the price of the raw goods keeps going up? The administration is convinced that black markets would develop or that prices would go sky high immediately after the freeze.

The administration rejects as unworkable the alternative of controlling farm prices. Administration economists, who reluctantly accept temporary controls, are dead against co[illegible]rm level, ar[illegible] reduce s[illegible] long run h[illegible] o the syst[illegible]prise.

Jewelry clerk slain in robbery

BASSETT — A 30-year-old jewelry store clerk was shot and killed here Saturday during a robbery attempt, the Industry Sheriff's Department reported.

Werner Maelges, of Downey, was fatally shot in the San Angelo Avenue jewelry store and pronounced dead at the scene from gunshot wounds in the chest.

Anthony Cretty, 30, of Riverside, was charged with the shooting after witnesses who heard the gun shot apprehended him as he ran from the store. A revolver, believed used in the shooting, was found in bushes near the store.

In nearby Valinda, Mrs. Priscilla Stanley of 1109 Vineland Ave. was stabbed to death Saturday following a dispute of unknown origin.

Chrispin M. Martinez, her brother-in-law, was booked on murder charges for the stabbing. Police had not motive for the killing.

Inmate recovering from stab wounds

CHINO — A 28-year-old inmate of California Institution for Men, stabbed in the chest Friday afternoon, is in fair condition at the USC-Medical Center in Los Angeles.

Victor Macias, victim of the stabbing, was apparently assaulted and stabbed in the upper-right chest and sustained slash wounds on both arms at about 12:55 p.m. Friday near the inmates' weightlifting area.

Two unidentified inmates brought him to the prison hospital where he received emergency treatment prior to being transferred to Los Angeles.

Macias was first sent to CIM in 1965 after conviction of assault with a deadly weapon. He was later granted parole but was returned on two different occasions for narcotics convictions.

Details of the stabbing have not been released as yet and the Chino Police are continuing their investigation of the incident.

Pomona City Council

Final okay on community project outlays expected

POMONA — City Council approval last week of the expenditure of nearly $47,000 in general revenue sharing funds to aid four community organizations is expected to be formalized Monday night with the passage of four resolutions.

The resolutions would authorize agreements with La Escuelita, Mexican-American Opportunities Foundation, Mexican-American Community Relations Committee and the Pomona Day School for the disbursement of revenue sharing funds.

La Escuelita would receive $8,885; the foundation, $23,322; Mexican-American Community Relations, $1,536; and the day school, $13,210.

The council's 4 p.m. session has been cancelled. Other matters scheduled for the 8 p.m. meeting include:

—Recommendation for Public Works Director Ronald L. Kranzer that a public hearing scheduled Monday on the formation of an underground utility district in Holt Avenue from Dudley Street to Hamilton Boulevard be continued to Aug. 13.

—Hearing on notice to owners to construct sidewalks on the south side of Philadelphia Street from Towne Avenue to Virginia Street.

—Final reading of a regular ordinance passed last week as an emergency ordinance providing for salary increases for department and division heads.

—Resolution upholding a planning commission recommendation that no fees be waived for variance or conditional use permit applications.

—Resolution, previously held over four times, authorizing an agreement with Darwin J. Tuttle for the purchase by Vehicle Parking District No. 2 of property at 328 Pomona Mall East.

—Resolution of the redevelopment agency setting a hearing July 23 on the sale of the old City Hall site, 250 W. 4th St., to the Pomona Development Co.

—Resolution held over from June 26 authorizing an agreement with the Pomona High School Key Club for operation of snack bars at two city parks.

—Resolution authorizing an agreement with the California Highway Patrol for state reimbursement for the city's vehicle abatement program.

—Resolution of intention to vacate Santa Fe Street, from Maple Street to 289 feet west, with a hearing scheduled July 23.

—Three resolutions confirming summary abatement at 554 W. Holt Ave., 960 W. 1st St., and 1059 Murray Ave.

—Proposed modification of regulations placing limitations on certain city commissioners seeking employment with city government.

—Recommendation from the parks and recreation director that surplus freeway parcels not be improved for landscaping or park purposes due to budget reductions.

—Legal opinion of City Atty. Patrick Sampson on the city purchase of La Casa Primera de Rancho San Joee.

—Recommendation for return of license fees to Bench Ad Co. for outdoor advertising.

Poly summer classes available day, night

POMONA — Day and night adult education will continue through the summer at Cal Poly with extension classes covering a wide variety of subjects.

Most classes will be held either at Cal Poly or in Claremont, beginning this week and lasting from three to nine weeks.

For those who are concerned about the energy crisis, a physics class devoted to the subject will be offered at Claremont High School. Topics to be discussed include energy resources, engines and energy transformation, generation of electricity, nuclear power and radiation, air pollution and climate, energy considerations of materials recycling noise, and the application of new technology.

Courses of special interest to teachers include advanced counseling techniques, counseling practicuum, individualized instruction through learning centers, creative problems solving and decision making exploring self-concepts, reading in the classroom, learning freedom, and teaching Latin American history in the public school.

Among the English courses to be offered are advanced fiction composition, Shakespeare II, modern fiction, fantasy world builders: J.R.R. Tolkien, Ursula Leguin and Frank Herbert; modern drama, the poetry of Wallace Stevens and William Carlos Williams, and the theater of the absurd.

The English classes, with the exception of advanced fiction composition and Shakespeare II, will be offered at Claremont High School.

Three foreign language courses will be offered at Claremont High School: elementary modern Chinese I, elementary Modern Chinese II and conversational Greek for tourists.

The Cal Poly extension program will offer two courses in political science: Middle East politics and issues in American foreign policy. As in past summers skin and scuba diving and advanced scuba techniques will be conducted at the Cal Poly swimming pool. Ocean field trips will also be a part of these courses.

For further information on these and other extension courses, interested persons may contact the Cal Poly educational services office at 598-4391.

University Club sends directory to members

CLAREMONT—The annual directory of the University Club of Claremont, which dates back to 1924, has been distributed by club secretary Howard M. Cheney to its 328 members.

The club's membership is not confined to Claremont, but is composed of business and professional persons, educators and former missionaries from a widely scattered area including Pomona, La Verne and the West End of San Bernardino County.

Pomona attorney Ferdinand F. Fernandez, president of the club for 1973-74, heads the list of new officers, eight directors and 13 committee chairmen and their staffs, making a total of 95 members assuming responsibilities.

Also listed are all former club presidents starting with the late George S. Sumner, first president in 1924.

For 24 years the club maintained its headquarters at the old Claremont Inn with its final meeting June 25, 1968, when the inn was scheduled for razing.

The club moved to Griswold's for its regular Tuesday luncheons. The late George C. Griswold, the club's eighth president, founded the original Griswold's.

New officers besides Fernandez are Kenneth B. McCandless, vice president; Howard M. Cheney, secretary; H. Spenser Minnich, assistant secretary; Earl H. Kieslehorst, treasurer; and Harold A. Bruner, historian.

Upland will mull density control plan

UPLAND — A large general plan amendment involving nearly 1,600 acres in the northern part of the city will be a major item of discussion during Monday's regular City Council meeting. It begins at 7 p.m. in the council chambers.

The amendment, prompted by a council request some months ago, would reduce residential densities to an overall level of families per net acre in five areas located generally north of Foothill Boulevard to 24th Street and roughly bounded by San Antonio and Campus avenues.

If approved, the amendment would represent a return to the less flexible density patterns of a number of years ago.

A good portion of the land involved is still under agricultural designations and the amendment would lock these areas under tight control to prevent runaway development. The measure would bring more uniformity of density to areas south of the proposed Foothill Freeway which, under a variety of current residential zonings, may have densities of up to seven families per net acre.

Boy, 5, saved from hanging on a rope swing

CHINO — A 5-year-old Carbon Canyon youth escaped death Friday afternoon when a volunteer fireman rescued the boy from a rope swing that had become entangled around his neck.

Larry Wade, a member of the Sleepy Hollow Fire Department, saved the youth after his playmates ran to the firehouse to report the accident.

The boy, whose identity was not revealed due to his age, was taken to a Fullerton hospital where he was treated and released for rope burns on the neck.

Boy shot in family feud

Strawn Antonio Nelson of 2140 W. Orange Grove was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital for the wound and later released.

According to police, the shooting followed a fight between Michael D. Nelson, 22, of 1952 Orange Grove Ave., and Charrie Arnita Smith, 24, of Los Angeles at the Orange Grove residence.

The victim's brother was leaving the location after the fight when the youth ran out the door to follow. Police believe that the 22-year-old whirled and fired at the youth, thinking it was his sister. He then fled on foot. No arrests have been made.

Chess

Good Bishops, bad bishops

Some teachers from Long Island, N.Y., impressed by the performance of Father William Lombardy, Bobby Fischer's second as spokesman, counselor and grandmaster analyst last summer, mirthfully proclaimed the slogan, "Lombardy For Bishop."

If slogans were realities, Lombardy would be the second famous bishop in chess history. The first was Ruy Lopez of the 16th century, who invented the opening of that name. The third best-known bishop is not an historical individual like Ruy Lopez or Lombardy but a generalized type that is liable to appear on the chess board at any time.

Though perceived as an infamous rogue by everyone, the "bad" bishop is personally blameless. He plays his hapless role in losing positions, not by virtue of what he is, but by virtue of the position on the board.

(Diagram 1)
BLACK

Karpov
WHITE

Consider our first position. Material is even. Black's normal strategy would be to intercept the white pawn with the bishop at one of the black squares on the QR file. With the white pawn at least slowed down, if not stopped, from an eventual queening, black could create counter chances with his own pawn on the other side of the board and gain at least a draw.

However, the relative position of the black and white pieces conspires against effective use of the bishop. Though black is on the move in the given position, there is no way bishop can get to any of the key diagonals in time. White's king and knight are superbly placed. Black's king and pawn, by being positioned on key transit squares, deprive the bishop of vital moves. White will queen his pawn and win.

BLACK

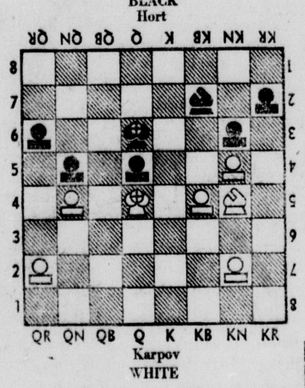
Karpov
WHITE

Our second position under consideration can be seen in diagram two. Again material is even, but Hort, who is black, resigned to Karpov (white) after one more move by each player. Black is lost because his bishop is restricted to defensive moves and cannot guard the several vulnerable black pawns, which are fixed on white squares, where they can be attacked and won by the white bishop. If Hort plays K-QB3 (still holding the queen pawn), Karpov will play K-K5 and infiltrate the position. Hort chose instead to play B-B2. Karpov played B-N4 and Hort resigned.

(Diagram 3)
BLACK
Hort



Karpov
WHITE

The threat of playing B-B8, which wins the QRP and then the game, cannot be adequately met. If black tries B-K3 (in the third diagram) white will exchange bishops and win the subsequent king and pawn endgame.

As an exercise, play through the several possibilities sketched above and see why white had to win and thus why Hort (black) resigned.

Japan jolted by embargo on soybeans

TOKYO (UPI) — Japan was jolted this week by the sudden U.S. embargo on exports of soybeans and cottonseeds announced Wednesday by Washington.

Prices of soybeans went up sharply. Wholesalers said soybeans were $441 in market transactions Wednesday but were up by $7.50 today.

Soybeans are indispensable to this nation which imports 90 per cent of its supplies from the United States. The Japanese people feed almost daily on bean-curds, a major soybean product.

Speaking at an Upper House session, Agriculture-Forestry Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi expressed the government's dissatisfaction over the way the embargo was imposed.

"The U.S. government step was unexpected because President Nixon had promised to fulfill export contracts already concluded," Sakurauchi said.

He said his ministry has protested to Washington againt the embargo through the Foreign Ministry.

Chief Cabinet Secretary Susumu Nikaido told the Japanese press that the Japanese Government intended to ask Washington to relax its soybeans embargo for Japan because "it will certainly cause difficulties here."

Japan consumes 3,500,000 tons of soybeans annually, with 90 per cent of them coming from the United States.

Marubeni, a top Japanese trading firm, said Japan has a soybean supply on hand that will last about two months.

An old-timer recalls when you could take a trip without worrying about the fuzz.

Town fulfills dream, gets a bandstand

LONDONDERRY, N. H. (UPI) — Concerts at the bandstand on the village common were a center of summer social life in small towns around the nation at the turn of the century.

Londonderry missed out on some of the fun then because it didn't have a bandstand. But it's never too late, and a civic committee thinks 1973 is the right year to make up the deficiency.

The Londonderry Recreation Committee, chaired by mailman Charles Fowler, is working to get a bandstand built on the common in time for Old Home Day delebrations Aug. 18-19, and the end of year-long celebrations of the town's 250th anniversary.

The committee has an architect's model, donated free by a music-loving teacher of architecture at Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT) and it has promises of labor from three construction firms.

The town has $1,000 left over from a $2,000 fund allocated for a three-day celebration to start the anniversary year in 1972.

"I'm the golden chiseler," said Anne Beebe, vice chairman of the committee, who scrounged up so much volunteer effort last year that there was money left over after the big shindig.

She gained experience in seeking funds during 10 years in San Francisco, where she was on the USO board.

She has won offers of help, supplies and the plans for the bandstand.

"I just went down to MIT and asked if maybe an architecture class couldn't design us a shell as a class project," she said. Architect-Musician "Jeffrey Gutcheon, who teaches architecture at MIT, telephoned me and said, 'Can't I do it? I happen to be a musician. I have some very definite ideas on what a shell should be."

Gutcheon drove through a February blizzard to Londonderry, a sprawling and fast-growing rural township 10 miles from the Massachusetts state line, with a population of more than 5,000.

He looked over the common, with its war memorial and cannon, sited the bandstand in his mind, then on weekly train rides from his New York home to his Boston job, drew up the plans and built a scale model.

"In May he had it designed. I've been selling it to the town ever since," Mrs. Beebe said.

A simple but contemporary design, its front forming the long side of a triangle, the bandstand would be built of wood and painted to harmonize with the town hall and three churches surrounding the common.

"If we can get everyone together we think we can put it up in one week," Mrs. Beebe said.

This is the second building this year for which Mrs. Beebe has helped plan and raise funds. Just down Mammoth Road from the Common stands a little red brick library, built when the town library outgrew its corner in the grade school building.

"We have a lot of spirit here," Mrs. Beebe said.

Army reserve unit restoring old cemetery

The 1016th Field Service Company has been assigned to restoring the 112-year-old Pioneer Memorial Cemetery. The unit traveled here after $26,500 was appropriated by this Marin County community for the job.

The Army became involved after an officer at The Presidio in San Francisco learned of the restoration project and remembered that the 1016th's specialty was grave digging.

The soldiers are reploting, digging walkways, weeding and replacing the marble markers.

In world probe of pollution

Mediterranean Sea called vast 'sewer,' 'oil trap'

PARIS (UPI) — The Mediterranean Sea during the tourist season has become on vast sewer and oil trap.

That is the gist of a report on one of the world's most popular vacation areas, prepared by the U.N.'s Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) and circulated by UNESCO's Intergovernmental Oceanographic Commission (IOC) in Paris.

The IOC, following a meeting where a report on Mediterranean filth was read, voted to prepare a plan to get off the ground a long-proposed worldwide investigation of sea pollution.

The IOC also voted to commission a report on the "state of health" of the world's bodies of water.

The FAO report said "the state of pollution in inshore waters of the Mediterranean has reached a critical level."

Sewage and oil

"This is due to high quantities of domestic sewage discharged untreated or only insufficiently treated into the sea ... and to the industrial pollutions and the almost total absence of control over them," the report said.

The sea also is dirtied by oil tankers flushing out their tanks and from industrial wastes, the report added.

The most polluted area, according to the report, stretches from the Costa Brava and Barcelona region in northern Spain, across the entire French coast and into the Italian Riviera as far as Livorno (Leghorn).

The coasts of Lebanon and Israel are polluted to some extent by sewage and "some serious effects" of industrial pollution have been reported from the seas around Greece, Sicily and Turkey.

More than 9 million people live along the 650-mile polluted French-Spanish-Italian coastline. During the tourist season the population increases in some areas to five to ten times normal

Untreated waste

"At least 80 to 90 per cent of waste is discharged completely untreated directly into the sea, and 10 to 15 per cent of it is discharged by pipelines extending from 328 to 2,296 feet off the coast in France," the report said.

Recently the Cannes Chamber of Commerce installed with fanfare what it said was the longest sewer sea pipeline extant, stretching 3,937 feet into the Mediterranean. Previously, swimmers on France's fabled Cote d'Azur and Riviera had complained of paddling by raw sewage.

However, the FAO report said, "Taking into account coastal currents and the effect of onshore winds, one has to assume that discharge at such short distances has in most cases only an aesthetic effect but is meaningless from hygienic aspects."

France, Spain and Italy plan to build plants to completely purify sewage "but as costs are very high their realization will proceed slowly," the report said.

"Only two major plants have been approved for the northern Spain coast and two primary (filtering, but not purifying) plants for the sewage of some 750,000 people are under construction on the French coast," it said.

Tourist boycott?

The FAO report blamed oil pollution of Mediterranean beaches on oil transport in the sea, and on the fact that only five out of 14 oil harbors in the Mediterranean have facilities where tankers can flush their oil tanks without polluting the water.

"Difficulty in selling fish with an oily taste is becoming more and more frequent," the report said.

Mediterranean pollution is agravated because hte sea is nearly enclosed. Water pours into the Mediterranean only from the Atlantic and only on the surface, exiting in a deep undercurrent. Thus the sea is a trap for floating pollutants such as oil.

Monitoring for pollutants is carried out in the North and Baltic seas where major fishing industries are involved, but not in the Mediterrancan.

Speculation in scientific circles is that when tourists turned off by polluted waters boycott Mediterranean beaches, they will force governments to build more complete sewage disposal plants to save their tourist industries.

Nuclear blast held in desert

YUCCA FLAT, Nev. (UPI) — A nuclear explosive with a maximum yield of 200,000 tons of TNT, code named "Portaluca," was detonated Thursday 1,530 feet below the surface of the desert, the seventh announced underground nuclear test here this year.

No radiation leaked into the atmosphere, the Atomic Energy Commission said.

It was the 255th announced underground nuclear test by the AEC since 1963, when the United States and Russia agreed to ban testing in the atmosphere.

Prado Basin, Cucamonga

Funds earmarked for two S.B. County regional parks

By L. T. ROGERS
Asst. City Editor

SAN BERNARDINO — County officials propose spending $1.3 million during the next fiscal year on two regional parks in the West End of San Bernardino County.

This includes $653,000 for Prado Regional Park near Chino and $696,500 for the Cucamonga-Guasti Regional Park.

At Prado, emphasis will be on preliminary design work, while at Cucamonga-Guasti actual construction will be conducted, said Clarence Orr, acting regional parks director.

The county has leased from the U.S. Corps of Engineers 2,113 acres in the Prado Basin, with the park to cover 450 acres.

The park will include two lakes for boating and fishing; hiking and biking trails; nature area; camping units and picnic facilities.

"While we will be in the design phase, we might get started on construction before next July," said Orr.

Expenditures proposed in the new county budget include:

—$435,000 for acquiring 86 acres near Johnson Avenue for general park use. The property is near an existing county picnic and playground site.

—$32,000 to pay part of the cost of extending a sewer line from the California Institution for Women to the Chino sewage treatment plant. The park will share in the use of the line. The state will also share the cost.

—$186,000 to complete the preliminary design work. This includes engineering, architecture and landscaping.

The $2.9 million park cost will include a $1.3 million state grant. Officials have also requested $700,000 in federal funds.

The 100-acre site, located near the San Bernardino Freeway and Archibald Avenue, will have three lakes covering 15 acres for swimming, boating and fishing; 100 picnic units; two open air pavilions; park entrance station; tackle shop; snack bar; and 17 acres of landscaping.

Work should begin next month, with completion taking about 12 months, said Orr. The county will use federal revenue sharing money for the project.

A second park phase is planned across Archibald Avenue within the next several years. This will have several lakes, he noted.

County Supervisors had previously allocated $200,000 for the park's development.

By LENORE WALLACE
P-B Staff Writer

SAN DIMAS — The city has announced plans to eliminate the after-school, supervised recreation program because of lack of participation, the high cost of its operation and the at times inefficient leadership.

Bryce Bailey, director of the parks and recreation department, said the annual savings will be $5,000 to the city.

He said San Dimas was the first city in the area to take this step which he feels may be adopted by other communities.

Instead of the supervised program which is operated from October until June, the recreation department would offer organized seasonal sports and tournaments. A charge of $2 will be asked for participation in the sports programs and 50 cents or $1 for other tournaments.

Bailey said the fee charge funds will be used to purchase T-shirts for youngsters who participate in team sports or to purchase awards or citations for tournament activities in table tennis, chess and checkers.

"It has been our experience that we get much better participation in programs when a small fee is charged. People feel obligated and keep better attendance."

Bailey said at times only six children will show up at the programs conducted at Ekstrand, Gladstone or the former San Dimas Elementary School.

Unpredictable turnouts

"Recreation leaders can never be certain if 5 or 100 youngsters are going to participate in that day's activities."

Bailey said last year the program was conducted from 3 to 5 p.m. and started at 3:30 p.m. at the schools which conduct double sessions. He said the school requires that the youngsters go home first before they participate in the program. This cuts down the time available for activities and it is difficult to plan any activity but games in the time allotted. During the winter months, it gets dark at 5 p.m. and children have to leave earlier, he added.

He said the children enjoy craft programs but it is difficult to set up this type of activity in this limited time. The recreation department gets good response to special activity programs but it is impossible to plan these on a daily basis. Most after school programs consist of basketball, baseball and small circle games.

Twice a week

Bailey said he expects some repercussions from some parents with the elimination of the program. The program will be discontinued for a year and the new program will be implemented. Programs will be conducted about twice a week either at the community building or schools.

He said after-school recreation programs are in competition with scouting, Little League, Pop Warner football, the recreation department's fee activities and other clubs and organizations.

The recreation director said he feels the new approach will not only be a budget saver but will also update recreational planning and programming that will produce greater participation. He said the City of Newport Beach dropped its after-school program in a plan similar to San Dimas and has had good results.

Dr. James Overin of the Bonita Unified School District said children will still be welcome to play at the area schols including those that have discontinued the supervised activities. He said organized activities, such as Little League, are usually in operation at the schools after school is dismissed.

Bookmobile ready to hit road again

POMONA — Operations of the Pomona Public Library's bookmobile, discontinued last week because of a malfunctioning in the air-conditioning system, will resume on Tuesday.

Asst. City Librarian Wayne Suggs said the problems had been corrected and the mobile unit would return to scheduled runs following road testing on Monday.

A big Fourth in Claremont

12 hours of activities to mark holiday

CLAREMONT — More than 12 hours of entertainment, including a downtown parade and a half-hour fireworks show, are scheduled for Claremont residents during their annual old-fashioned Fourth of July celebration.

The action will begin at 9 a.m. with chalk art contests at Memorial Park and will end with Bob Frampton setting off the American Flag fireworks display finale and Charlotte Carpena singing the National Anthem at Pomona College Alumni Field.

Col. John E. Stavast, former Vietnam prisoner of war, will serve as grand marshal of the 4:30 p.m. parade south on Indian Hill Boulevard.

He and Mrs. Stavast will ride at the head of the three-division parade which has the theme this year of "All Free in '73."

The couple will be enjoying the special festivities at Memorial Park before the parade, and between 3 and 4:30 p.m. will be at the site of the first Freedom Tree ever planted and dedicated to POWs and those missing in action in the Vietnam conflict.

To accept bracelets

They will accept the return of POW bracelets and say good-by to fellow citizens before leaving for Col. Stavast's assignment in Alabama for 10 months.

During the chalk art contests in three age categories (5 and under, 6 to 10, and 11 and older) the flag will be raised at Memorial Park at 9:45 a.m.

A pie-eating contest for all ages will be held at 10 a.m., with another division at noon.

For those not interested in pie-eating, the Claremont Youth Commission and friends, coached by Jamie Monson, has challenged the parks and recreation department, the police and fire departments and the City Council to a renewal of their 1972 softball struggle.

Councilman Frank Hungerford has not revealed who will be on the mound for the "Has-Beens."

Tug-o-war

Tug-o-war contests are scheduled at 10:30 a.m., 12:30 and 3 p.m. for those 10 to 12, 13 to 15 and 16 and older.

A talent share-in will begin at 11 a.m. and be continuous throughout the day.

A tiny tot bathing beauty contest at 12:30 p.m., sponsored by the Claremont Junior Women's Club, will be held at the Memorial Park wading pool.

The parks and recreation department gymnastic show will start at 1:30 p.m. as well as a water balloon toss contest.

OPERATION RED BALL

Relay races in five age categories will begin at 2 p.m.

Chet Jeager and his Dixieland band will entertain at 3:45 p.m. The combo will be at the fireworks show at Alumni Field at 7 p.m. and will share the stage with the local rock-'n'-roll revival group, Cecil.

The youth commission will have a greased pole at Memorial Park, and the Methodist Church has revived its popular pillow fight.

Food and concession booths will be open at Memorial Park from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m., and at Pomona College Alumni Field from 6 to 10 p.m.

Indian Hill Boulevard and surrounding streets will be cordoned off at 4 p.m. in preparation for a rousing red, white and blue Fourth of July parade.

The parade will start at 10th Street and Indian Hill Boulevard, go south on Indian Hill Boulevard, east on Fourth Street, north on Harvard Avenue, and west on 10th Street.

The gates at Alumni Field will open at 6 p.m. The Connie Mack baseball team will be in charge of parking at 50 cents a car.

Citrus College trustees okay $7.1 million budget

AZUSA — Citrus College trustees have approved a $7,185,494 preliminary budget for 1973-74 which includes a 3 per cent salary increase for certificated and classified employes.

In presenting the budget, Dr. Mel Ross, vice president and assistant superintendent of business, said the budget is based upon an anticipated 3 per cent increase in assessed valuation, no increase in average daily attendance (ADA) support from the state, and retention of the current tax rate of .8258 cent per $100 of assessed valuation.

Ross, in his presentation, also pointed out that passage of two pieces of pending legislation would greatly improve the future financial position of the district.

Trustees indicated in a later meeting this week that if the bills are passed, they would approve an additional 4 per cent general salary increase.

Trustees will consider the budget in publication form at their July 16 meeting, and will adopt it in final form at their Aug. 6 meeting, following the customary public hearing.

Reapportionment hearing

Ayala criticizes splintered districts

SAN FRANCISCO — San Bernardino County Supervisor Ruben S. Ayala, speaking before the Special Masters on Reapportionment here, asked that fragmenting of districts be avoided as much as possible in the "largest county in the world."

He based his request on economy and the elimination of confusion and frustration caused by gerrymandering and district splintering, a pattern followed last time boundaries were redrawn.

"San Bernardino County now is entitled to 1.466 congressional districts, 1.3637 senatorial districts and 2.7274 Assembly districts," Ayala said.

"Although this necessitates the sharing of district representation between adjacent counties, we definitely must avoid the splitting up of what is already a fraction of a district into bits and pieces of districts involving several other counties."

Ayala said he believed coterminus lines must be used wherever possible and that senatorial districts should be divided into two Assembly districts without overlapping.

"We average one election every three days in our county," Ayala continued. "We have a general election involving more than 50 self-governing districts coming up in November, together with the statewide tax initiative election.

"This allows us only about three months to make the changes necessitated by reapportionment before February when candidacy is declared for judicial office in the primary election."

In order for the county to accurately and effectively make these changes an early decision on reapportionment is required, Ayala said.

"If you can give us this (early decision) combined with a minimum of overlapping and avoid splitting our fractions of districts, we estimate we can save $100,000 in the next eight years, or between now and the next reapportionment," the supervisor said.

He explained that district splitting, and having to share districts with neighboring counties, causes serious difficulties in a county which covers 20,000 square miles, comprises one-eighth of the land area in California and is recognized as the largest county in the world.

"Before we even begin to talk about the congressional, senatorial and Assembly situation," Ayala said, "I want to point out that we have five supervisorial districts, 132 special tax and judicial districts, 14 unified school districts, 22 elementary school districts, three high school districts, seven community college districts and 14 incorporated cities requiring 120 elections a year or an average of one every three days."

Currently San Bernardino County has the major portions of two congressional districts (33rd and 38th) which it shares with Los Angeles and Riverside counties, one and a quarter senatorial districts (20th and 36th) and two and a half Assembly district (72nd, 73rd and 35th).

The three special masters were appointed by the State Supreme Court, which assumed jurisdiction over reapportionment after the State Legislature failed to meet a deadline to reapportion state legislative and congressional districts.

The panel is expected to come up with recommendations on reapportionment for the state court.

Schaefer may be sworn in as judge for Chino court

SAN BERNARDINO — Philip E. Schaefer, a Chino attorney, may be sworn in Monday as new judge for the Chino Justice Court.

He would succeed Judge Ben Burrell, who resigned to become a traffic court referee.

County Supervisor Ruben S. Ayala said he planned to have Schaefer sworn into office during the board session Monday if three applications or less were filed for the job.

Should four or more be filed, the candidates would have to be screened by a State Judicial Council committee. County supervisors would then select one of three candidates presented.

By Friday noon, two applications had been submitted. Ayala said only four attorneys are believed to reside within the Chino Judicial District. One indicated he didn't want the position.

The attorney selected as the Justice Court judge is expected to be elevated to Municipal Court judge when the district's population reaches 40,000 later this year. A municipal court is then required by law.

The population is now 38,000 with 1,200 new homes under construction.

Schaefer had been recommended for the court appointment by a committee of municipal court judges.

The attorney, 39, has practiced law in Chino for the past four years. His office is at 13139 Central Ave. He and his wife have 10 children. They have resided in Chino for two years.

Opinion

Presidents flop in second terms

Shortly before the Watergate revelations cast doubt on whether he would serve out his constitutionally and electorally alloted "four more years," President Nixon suggested to Congress that it might favorably consider an amendment limiting future presidents to a single term of six years.

There is at least one group still actively campaigning for repeal of the 22nd Amendment, which limits a president to two four-year terms (or one term if he served more than two years of the term of some other person who had been elected president).

It has been charged that the 22nd Amendment was passed by a Republican Congress in 1947 as a sort of postmortem revenge on Franklin D. Roosevelt, the only man to have been elected president more than twice.

In the light of history since then, it may not be unreasonable to suggest that FDR's successors, both Democratic and Republican, as well as the nation itself, might have been better served had Congress seen fit to limit each president to just one tour of duty — either the four years to which he was elected in his own right or, if he succeeded from the vice-presidency, to the remaining term of his predecessor.

With the exception of John F. Kennedy, who did not live to run for re-election, every president since FDR scored his greatest successes in his first term, whether it was of shorter or longer length, only to see his second term blighted in one way or another.

First was Harry S. Truman, who between 1945 and 1948 presided over the conclusion of World War II, the rebuilding of Europe through the Marshall Plan and the thwarting of a Communist takeover in Greece. Then came the Berlin Blockade, Russia's explosion of an atom bomb, influence peddling scandals in Washington and allegations of high-level treason, the dismal war in Korea and its accompanying inflation.

The second ferm of the immensely popular Dwight D. Eisenhower was pretty much four blah years, and when he retired to make way for his successor, it was after a campaign in which the Democrats hammered on the theme that the country had fallen behind in everything from missiles to space exploration to education to racial progress to economic growth.

Both Lyndon B. Johnson and Richard M. Nixon achieved historic accomplishments in their early presidential years, the one on the domestic front, the other in international affairs. The woes that later befell both are to fresh in memory to need recapitulation.

The really interesting thing is that Truman, Eisenhower, Johnson and Nixon were all either elected or re-elected by impressive margins and that, in fact, the greater their electoral victories, the more precipitious their subsequent fall from popularity and effectiveness.

It is as if events conspire against a man after he, as we say, receives a "mandate" from the people and that crises he avoided or surmounted before suddenly accumulate beyond his ability to resolve them.

It is also as if we very quickly weary of the man to whom we have given our mandate and impatiently speculate about a possible successor while the incumbent's body is still flushed with life.

Since World War II at any rate it seems to be a peculiar perversity of history that the more we like a president at the height of his career, the happier we are when he leaves office.

Cabaret era ending

They made the movie just in the nick of time. The German cabaret may be on the way out as a social insitution.

Between the World Wars, political cabarets satirized the Nazis — until the Nazis came into power. After World War II, cabarets had a rebirth as they ridiculed both the political establishment and middle-class pretensions.

Now, says one observer, "the traditionally left-of-center political cabarets have been placed in the embarrassing position of having to choose between attacking a government executing, by and large, politics which the cabarets have long advocated, or else failing to carry out one of the vital functions of a political cabaret — namely, attacking the political establishment."

Add to this the emergence of a society in which the double standard of the middle class has fallen victim to The Pill, in which those who violate moral standards are no longer ostracized, in which the major theaters deal with themes formerly regarded as taboo and in which there are no censors poking through ovels.

Women, men

Since it can't hurt him any more, we toss into the current ebb and flow of words concerning the aims of Women's Lib, a recently rediscovered, rather cryptic quote from Winston Churchill, dating from 1945:

"Women ought not be treated the same as man."

Wonder if he'd say it again today.

Nixon's 'stop Wallace' plot revealed

WASHINGTON — To eliminate George Wallace as a threat to President Nixon's re-election, the White House not only smuggled $400,000 in cash to his political rivals in Alabama but also brought pressure on him through a tax investigation of his brother.

Long before the 1972 election, the President knew from his secret polling that Wallace at the head of a third-party ticket would drain votes from him. The polls showed as many as four out of five Wallace voters otherwise favored Nixon. The White House, therefore, wanted to stop Wallace from running for President as an independent.

Both the secret polling and the stop-Wallace strategy were directed by the President's former chief of staff, H. R. Haldeman. So secretive were the moves against Wallace that Haldeman didn't even confide in his brother-in-law, who served as a go-between.

The White House strategy in 1970 was to block Wallace from winning back the governship of Alabama. This would have deprived him of a power base and would have reduced his ability to campaign for the presidency in 1972.

Kalmbach funds

Haldeman, therefore, arranged to sneak $400,000 to Wallace's rivals during the 1970 Alabama primary. The money was siphoned from surplus campaign funds in the custody of the President's personal lawyer, Herbert Kalmbach.

Mysterious arrangements were made for Kalmbach to fly across country and hand over the first $100,000 to a stranger at New York City's Sherry-Netherland Hotel. Not long afterwards, Haldeman's brother-in-law, France Raine, delivered another $200,000 presumably to the same mystery man at the Sherry-Netherland. A similar tryst was arranged at Los Angeles' Bank of California where Kalmbach turned over the final $100,000.

Neither Kalmbach nor Raine would comment on the strange transactions. Sources close to the investigation told us, however, that both men followed blind instructions. They were never told that the money would be used against Wallace, nor did they learn the identity of the bagman.

We also have been unable to indentify the mystery man. From White House sources, we have established only that Haldeman's Man Friday, Larry Higby, was in touch with former Postmaster General Winton "Red" Blount about channeling anti-Wallace money into Alabama's 1970 Democratic primary. Blount couldn'tbe reached for comment.

Brother Gerald

At the same time that Haldeman sluiced $400,000 into the campaign against Wallace, he also requested a rundown from the Justice Department of its tax case against Wallace' close associates, including his brother Gerald.

The Justice Department sent back a confidential progress report to the White House. According to this document, the Internal Revenue Service's audit division had found that Gerald Wallace allegedly had omitted legal-fee income from his tax returns in 1967 and 1968.

The charge was that the Wallace brothers' law firm was used in funneling political kickbacks and that Gerald failed to report all the income that came to him through the law firm. After deducting large losses from his cattle farm, he reported a total taxable income of $109,944 in 1967 and $65,980 in 1968.

The Justice Department report added that, on January 20, 1970, the case was referred to Internal Revenue's crack intelligence division, which handles criminal investigations. A group of agents from various Southern offices was immediately assembled in Alabama.

Since we had exposed the kickback schemes which led to the tax investigation, details from the progress report were leaked circuitously to us. I sent my associate Brit Hume to Alabama to Thinking of suicide? sleep on it!

Don't kill yourself when you're tired.

In three cities now "hot line" telephone numbers provide for potential suicides counseling by psychologists who listen with patience and respond with caution. All agree on one prescription: "Sleep on it."

Americans are a paradox when it comes to playing the odds.

As horse bettors we study the racing form record of every horse in the race — when all we have to lose is $2.

In industry we predicate our advertising on cost per thousand, having learned from experience the response percentages.

Carefully, we calculate and contemplate the odds before we put money in the stock market. We want to know the precise point spread before we'll bet on a football game where we have nothing to lose but money.

Yet we ignore the odds on lung cancer and go right on smoking.

So we may ignore what the numbers are trying to tell us about suicide, also. But here they are anyway.

Suicide takes an acknowledged 25,000 American lives each year and probably 75,000. Among young people it is a "leading cause of death."

And whatever the contributing causes—alcohol, drugs, mental problems—the final accessory before the fact of self-destruction is "fatigue."

Mrs. Loyola Green killed herself in Hollywood, Fla. The wife of chairman Frank Green of Blum Tool Co., she was in good health and wealthy but, her note said, she was "so very tired."

Richard Dumond of Bates College in Lewiston, Me., author of "The American View of Death," says for the acutely weary "death represents sleep."

The fact that depression is amplified by fatigue is evidenced by a Utah State University finding that most suicides are between 9 p.m. and midnight on Mondays.

Professional physicians, astronauts, generals, news commentators whose voices are potentially significant to others generally discipline themselves in times of weariness to postpone important decisions, where possible.

The study of suicide conducted by our National Institute of Mental Health has been published under the heading: "Suicide Prevention in the Seventies." It identifies the chemical effects of fatigue which can contribute to irresponsible behavior.

In other words, when in despair, "sleep on it."

Don't kill yourself when you're tired and odds are you never will.

Gossip for today

"For men must work and women weep," is the way the old song goes. Never were truer words written! And if you want to know why the women are weeping, it's all because they are finally going to have to give up one of their cherished rights and special dispensations and go to work just like the men. At least that' what is going to happen here in California. A federal judge has ruled a California law requiring that women be paid overtime after 8 hours of work a day is sex discrimination and therefore unconstitutional.

Well, it's nice to learn that all this furor about sex discrimination works two ways. But none-the-less, in the struggle for sex equality, the women continue to make the greatest gains. Latest FBI crime figures show that from 1966 to 1971 the number of women arrested for serious crimes like murder and armed robbery increased 80 per cent while the increase in male arrests was only 35 per cent. And a former surgeon general of the United States claims that the nation's cigarette-smoking population will be predominately female within five years.

U.S. on collision course with autos

By RICK GOTCHER
P-B Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — For decades Americans have been teethed on steering wheels. From the Model-T to today's finest luxury car, the automobile has grown to be the national security-status-success symbol.

Automobile addiction is massive in the land. But if segments of the land are to be saved, say some, the pain of universal withdrawal is necessary. And the decision to change our habits may be coming sooner than expected.

Energy conservation has become a concern for everyone. A few years ago, petroleum experts blithely predicted America's oil capacities were good for another 400 years. How they could have been so far wrong is hard to figure, until one realizes that about every other month Detroit publishes new sales records, showing people are buying more and more new cars.

Of course, there are other factors contributing to fuel shortages. As one petroleum official noted recently, national priorities fell far short of providing other energy sources; i.e., nuclear power, solar power, geothermal energy, and clean coal conversion.

Petroleum companies may have been guilty of failing to figure a combination of setbacks in their predictions, but they are not guilty of manipulating the shortage. It has caught them as inexorably as the public at large. And the increase in transportation vehicles can be seen as the corollary for increased fuel consumption.

Moving people and freight accounts for about 25 per cent of the energy consumed in the U.S. About half of this is used by automobiles For clarification, Petroleum Institute figures show gasoline demand since 1964 has risen by 84 million gallons a day. That trend cannot logically continue.

Also, Americans will soon have to choose between the automobile and the clean air they say they want. It isn't readily apparent, but provisions of the 1970 Clean Air Act are beginning to pose some fundamental changes in attitudes towards the automobile.

Sen. Edmund Muskie (D-Me.), principal author of the 1970 bill, said recently: "America—the most advanced and dependent automotive society in the world—has now reached a time of testing with the automobile."

In the smog-ridden, traffic-congested Los Angeles basin, Muskie's prophecy is most evident. The Environmental Protection Agnecy, acting in the face of extreme congressional and public scorn, has concluded the only way to clean the air in the basin is by cutting gasoline consumption by as much as 82 per cent.

Needless to say, that kind of cutback means many people will have to stop driving. There is still nothing clearcut to determine that the government has the right to force citizens out of their cars. That test of will may be several years in the future. Even then, when all sociological and economic aspects are fully explained, it's quite possible the public will rebel against government interference.

In any event, we are on a collision course with ourselves. Energy resources and clean air are no longer plentiful. America has the wherewithal to conserve both. But Americans also have the right to drive the car they want. To make the need of one compatible with the desire of the other will mean an overhaul of our motorized mania.

Thought for today

Let all bitterness and wrath and anger and clamor and slander be put away from you, with all malice, and be kind to one another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, as God in Christ forgave you.—Ephesians 4:31, 32.

Many courses for teachers slated at LVC

LA VERNE — During its second session of summer classes, this week through July 27, La Verne College will offer a number of courses of interest to teachers.

"Festival of Children's Literature (International Theme)" will feature authors of children's books and other experts discussing children's literature. It will last only through July 13.

"Workshop in Mathematics Creativity for the Elementary Teacher" will be taught by John Mainiero. It is designed to develop and prepare materials essential to an active learning approach to grade school math.

Development of awareness of the lifestyles of ethnic minorities is the goal of a "Workshop on Ethnic Minorities in the Schools." Students will compare the experiences of ethnic minorities to those of the majority culture and relate that knowledge to the teaching situation.

The social, economic and philosophical ideas that have emerged since the Civil War will be explored in "Intellectural History of the United States since 1865." Emphasis will be on the impact of industrialization on American thought.

"Sports Workshop for Women" will be a concentrated study of sports and activities taught in physical education classes. Professional performers and teachers will be guest lecturers.

A third session will be held from July 30 to Aug. 24. One of the courses will be "Ekistics (Environmental Education)." It is designed to help teachers comply with a 1968 law requiring the teaching of man's relationship to his environment in grades one through 12.

"Teaching of Reading" will be directed toward classroom procedures that can be used to prevent or correct reading difficulties.

A course designed for teachers of children 4-8 is "Workshop in Early Childhood Education Curriculum." Stress will be given to the open, multi-age approach to primary education.

"California School Law and Laws Relating to Children" is a course that can apply to an education or psychology major. It is a review of the legal provisions of the Education Code as it relates to school administration.

Independent studies may be developed during the summer with the approval of summer sessions Director Dr. Donald Clague and a designated faculty member.

Summer tuition is $45 per semester hour plus $5 registration fee. For additional information about classes interested persons may contact the registrar's office at 593-3511.

LOS ANGELES — A Pomona Valley area student has been honored by and another graduated from Mount St. Mary's College.

Virginia Marie Tauro, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dan R. Tauro of Pomona, was recently named to the director's honor list in recognition of general academic excellence and outstanding achievement in the liberal arts programs. Miss Tauro is an education major at the college's Doheny campus.

Diane Tonks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy W. Tonks of San Dimas, was among 244 graduates who received undergraduate and advanced degrees at commencement ceremonies on the college's Chalon campus. Miss Tonks received a bachelor's degree in nursing.

Nixon plot to stop Wallace

"They have got 47 agents on me right now," Gerald said bitterly. "You all are trying to beat George Wallace. You're not interested in my tax returns." He added that federal agents had been after him "as long as George has been cussin' federal judges and most especially since he scared the hell out of Nixon and Humphrey."

We ran the tax story, which got a big play in Alabama. In the subsequent primary, George Wallace had a close call. He nosed out ex-Gov. Albert Brewer by a narrow 51.5 per cent of the vote.

Thereafter, the White House changed its strategy and sought to persuade Wallace to enter the 1972 presidential sweepstakes as a Democrat rather than an independent.

In May 1971, President Nixon visited Alabama and invited Wallace to ride with him on a flight from Mobile to Birmingham. No one will tell us what the two men said to each other during the plane ride. The subsequent events, therefore, may be merely coincidental.

But not long afterward, the tax case against Gerald Wallace was dropped and George Wallace announced he would run for President as a Democrat, not as an independent.

Evangelistic crusade due July 6-14

CLAREMONT — The Foothill Baptist Church will sponsor an evangelistic crusade "Come Alive 73" July 6 through 14 at Taylor Hall.

The Rev. Wayne Stockstill, a former Upland minister who is now an evangelist, will be the speaker for the nightly meetings at 7:30.

The New Found Joy, a group of high school and college age young people, will provide religious, folk and rock music for the crusade.

Pomona bank has vacation saving plan

POMONA — Pomona branch of First Western Bank at 1095 N. Garey Ave. is participating in a June and July vacation promotion entitled "Great Vacations Start Here."

They have established a Cruise Club which is a travel-oriented automatic deposit savings program.

A customer opens a Cruise Club savings account with a deposit of $25 or more and authorizes an automatic monthly transfer of $10 or more from his checking account in his Cruise Club account.

The account earns interest at the regular bank savings rate.

There's aon old Chinese proverb that you can lead a kid to camp for two weeks, but you can't make him change underwear 14 times.

Kids refuse to be intimidated by the two-page mimeographed sheet of "Clothing and Equipment Necessary for Camp" sent out by the camp director.

Not mothers. They still abide by the theory that "Happiness is a boy who writes home for more dental floss."

I stood in the middle of the floor this week with my camper amd a long list of camping gear headed: Necessities and Optionals.

"Let's take the necessities first," I said. "I'll count and you check them off. Fourteen pairs of clean underwear, 5 pairs of shorts, 8 shirts and 12 pairs of socks."

"Check," he said.

"Check."

"One pair of pajamas, one complete set of bed linens, five towels and three washcloths."

"Check," he clicked.

"Check," he said.

"Ready for the optionals? (He nodded his head.) Camera, fully loaded and ready to go. One book still in the bag, one flashlight with new batteries, and a writing tablet, complete with envelopes addressed to Mom and Dad and stamped."

"Check."

"Okay," I said standing back. "So why have you brought all this stuff back home from camp unopened and unused?"

"I didn't need it," he said.

"You didn't need a toothbrush in two weeks!"

"The brochure said the camp was primitive."

"Primitive, yes. Polluted, no."

"We had a contest to see who could go the longest without taking a bath."

"When you came home two days early I figured you had won something. What's with the new raincoat?"

"I outgrew it," he said making a fast exit.

Maybe that is what camp is all about. Where the necessities aren't and the optionals gather dust and mothers bug off!

Jogging is mind-bogging

By JOSEPH FIRMAN

"Jog" comes from the late Middle English "shoggen," and for my money it can go right back there.

In an effort to win the battle of the bulge, I recently took up jogging, as it is called, and I think I prefer the vast waistland. This dog-trot, somewhere between walking and running, encompasses the worst features of both activities. Like walking, it bores you stiff; like running, it make you stiff.

Jogging in suburban America these days is more than getting into your old track sweat suit and sneakers. If you run in the evening hours you get stopped by muggers; if you run in the early morning hours you get stopped by police. At midday you get bitten by dogs and harassed by harassed housewives in stationwagons loaded with delinquents. (Are there no reformatories in California?)

Funny things happen to a middle-aged man when he "takes up" jogging. It's not all that easy. Like, do you swing your arms to keep them in at your sides? Run on the balls of your feet (the arches give way in 10 minutes) or flat footed, with each step shuddering upward from the anklebone to the kneebone, kneebone connected to the thigh bone, etc., until you can't even sit down in comfort.

You are under the impression — you heard it somewhere, or maybe you read it — that jogging is good for the heart. So how come after five minutes along the highway your heart is pounding like a jungle drum, threatening to jump rightout of your sweatshirt? Wouldn't it be better for the old ticker, really, if you just swung up on some quiet bar stool and had a Scotch high and watched the Dodgers?

Then there are the lungs — or what passed for lungs when you swung out of your driveway half an hour ago. You breathed deep the refreshing morning air, maybe swaggered a bit. Now those same lungs are in agony, rasping like sandpaper, tormented at the slightest inhale. And there's that pain in your lower right side— kidney? Liver? Appendix? You read your obituary in the sky: MIDDLE-AGED JOGGER FOUND DEAD OF BURST APPENDIX. You slow down— maybe telephone for a cab.

After the first day of jogging, I found, one's body (mine, if you must know) was slightly stiff but delightfully refreshed. Felt like a kid again. Wowee. Let me at 'em! On the morning of the second day, I awoke with the clear conviction that I was paralyzed for life. My feet were numb, my calves convulsed in cramps, my thighs were knots of pain, my — well, you get the picture. I couldn't even reach the telephone to call in sick. It's not the first day after exercise, it's the day after that when you are stretched out like a victim of the Spanish Inquisition.

Jogging does have some benefits, however. It keeps you up on the neighborhood. The moving van in front of the Meldrums' tells you they have fought again and are really splitting up this time. The empty bottles in the Bailey's trash can tells you they had a big party last night (why weren't we invited?). Diapers on the Drakes' clothesline suggest a visiting grandchild; the broken bridge lamp on the Martins' front lawn shows that he still favors the jump overcall. You note, as you pant past, that Tim Farley is learning to drive (crumpled fender on the Farley Ford) and that the Davidsons are putting their house on the market (the trim is painted for the first time in 10 years).

Jogging may not be healthful, but it is sure educational.

3 years near White House

Dancer protests in his own style

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Tourists in the nation's capital always can find someone or some group in front of the White House espousing, often loudly, any cause imaginable— from the clothing of animals to a current one-man show in favor of husband's liberation.

But there is one man, a White House sidewalk fixture for about three years, who doesn't shout. He just gazes skyward and dances slowly for hours, receiving a mystical truth "whenever the spirit moves."

During a recent weekend, when Lafayette Square across from the White House was awash with tourists, demonstrators and U.S. park police, the man danced on the grass in the middle of a small patch of flowers.

Interviewed while doing what looked like a slow motion Indian rain dance, and dressed in only a pair of sheer linen shorts, he said: "I dance whenever the spirit moves me. I'm dancing because I'm free. I'm receiving truth. Truth and freedom are inseparable."

Reluctant to reveal his identity he said only: "My father gave me a name. David."

Power of truth

The hours of dancing in the sunshine and the rain have left David, 37, a native of Worcester, Mass., looking about 15 years younger. His deep-set green eyes fixed upward and his long brown hair hanging halfway down his back, David talks about the power of truth over the power of fear, as if what he were doing really isn't so unusual.

"We're all free-will beings but we're conditioned through schools and through nationalism and through fear. And that has no truth to it. The truth is we're all brothers and sisters no matter where we live.

"If I were conditioned to be afraid, I'd strike out against everything. The dance is a feeling thing from within—an expression connected to the political warfare going on."

David says he used to work in electronics and as a ship's navigator before becoming a free spirit 3½ years ago — "possibly because some people don't like paying taxes for policies they don't believe in.

"When the country falls out of what you believe in, you don't have much choice. You just have to do what you can," he said.

David keeps dancing

David just keeps dancing— sleeping in parks, in churchyards and with friends, and eating grass, berries from the trees and leftovers from health food stores.

Although arrested four times, once for succumbing to the ultimate freedom and removing his shorts, David gets very little attention from passersby or the White House and park policemen.

"Oh, him," a U.S. park policeman said. "He's been communicating with the spirits for about three years now. No trouble from him," emphasizing the "him" and the difference between David's communications and those of more vocal protesters.

At his station David sees all the tourists and demonstrators. "I talk with people in a lot of ways," he said. "Mostly visually and sometimes with feelings."

Students hear consumer woes

NEW YORK (UPI) — Fourteen students from Brooklyn College are working part time at the Better Business Bureau of New York as consumer advisers. Hearing about people's problems, they say, is making them more cautious in their own dealings as consumers.

Brooklyn College came up with the volunteer program to provide students with a model urban consumer education experience. The school believes the most relevant kind of education is that which integrates theory with life experience.

Ordered by federal government

Safety devices cause rise in costs for 1974 autos

By EDWARD S. LECHTZIN
UPI Auto Writer

DETROIT (UPI) — The most expensive details on the 1974 - model automobiles that debut in September will be safety items ordered by the federal government.

While only a few models will undergo extensive styling changes for 1974, all will have to meet several new safety standards. The next big change in pollution control is still a year away.

The safety emphasis in 1974 will be on stronger car bodies, better bumpers, upgraded brake systems and redesigned lap and shoulder belts that won't let you start the car until they're buckled. For approximately 100,000 buyers of General Motors' cars, there also will be the much discussed air bag system.

No cost estimate

The exact figures on how much the new safety features will cost car buyers, won't be known until introduction day for the 1974s, but Henry Ford II, chairman of the Ford Motor Co., says the price hikes will be "substantial".

Last year, the automakers won approval for an average $83 price hike on the 1973 models to pay for the federally mandated safety and emission equipment. GM is expected to absorb part of the cost of the experimental air bag system which will be offered as an option.

Seat belt troubles

The new bumper requirements will be the easiest to spot, but the seat belt requirement probably will be the most troublesome for drivers.

"The one-belt system is a major step forward since we're making it easier for a guy to wear a belt," Chrysler President John A. Riccardo said. "But it's going to be a tremendous irritant."

While no definite price tag has been put on the safety device, GM officials have estimated it will add about $50 to the cost of a 1974 car. The automakers are sure to have to pay for fixing the electronic system when it fails and a motorist can't start the car.

Buzzer sounds

On 1973 cars, a light goes on and a buzzer sounds if the transmission is shifted into drive without the seat belt being connected. Some motorists either disconnect the buzzer system or simply buckle the belt behind them.

It will take a contortionist to buckle the combination lap-shoulder belt on the 1974 model behind the driver or passenger, and a skilled mechanic to make the major changes needed to deactivate the ignition interlock.

Air bag alternative

Not only will the electronic system prevent the driver from starting the car if the belts are not buckled, it also will make sure he's doing it in the right sequence—enter the car, buckle the belt and turn on the ignition.

For the many motorists who either don't like seat belts or would rather not be bothered with the ignition interlock, GM will provide air bags on about 100,000 Buick, Oldsmobile and Cadillac cars as an option.

The air bag, already being tested on fleet cars by GM and Ford, is designed to expand in a split second from its compartments in the instrument panel and steering column to protect driver and passengers when the car is involved in a crash at 15 miles per hour or more.

Baby killed

GM's test fleet has been involved in 82 accidents while cars equipped by Ford have had four accidents serious enough to inflate the bags. There has been one fatality in an air bag-equipped car—a seven-week old baby who was lying on a blanket on the front seat of a car and was thrown against the instrument panel when the car braked suddenly.

Those protruding bumpers on the 1973 models—once referred to as "cow catchers" by Henry Ford II-become even more functional in 1974. They may help answer critics who claim new cars sustain "preposterously high" damage costs at speeds no faster than a 2-year-old child can walk.

For the first time, all cars with wheelbases greater than 115 inches must have bumpers the same height from the pavement. They also must be able to withstand front and rear crashes at 5 m.p.h., compared with the 1973 standard which required a 5 mp.h. impact in front and 2½ m.p.h. impact resistance in the rear.

Bumper standards

GM will incorporate the urethane-coated bumper system —introduced on this year's Chevrolet Laguna models—in more models in 1974, including the Corvette whose rear has been tapered with tail lights sunk into the rubber-like surface.

American Motors will use steel springs in conjunction with the resiliency of its unit body construction to absorb impact while Chrysler will switch in 1974 to the hydraulic shock absorbers used in different forms by GM and Ford on 1973 models.

The 1973 bumpers, according to the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety, allowed considerable damage to cars even though they conformed to the standards.

Less damage

The average damage costs were slightly less on 1973 models than resulted from the same test on 1972 cars, according to Dr. William Haddon Jr., president of the safety organization. Reductions in the amount of damage on 1974 models could lead to further insurance premium savings for drivers since some companies already are giving discounts to owners of cars that best withstand damage.

JAPANESE WIFE WORRIED—Mitsuko Morishima, holding her child, buys tofu (bean-curd) at a Tokyo shop immediately after recent announcement of U.S. ban on soybean exports. The embargo disturbed the Japanese because the soybean, which is 44 per cent pure protein, is important in most Japanese meals and over 90 per cent of Japan's food supply comes from the U.S. Japanese housewives are already plagued with spiraling food prices and frightened by the possibility of contaminated fish.

Frog is far better jumper than rabbit

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: I've got a bet going here that on a pound-for-pound basis, a frog is a better jumper than a rabbit. Will you help me collect the bet? — L.C.

Dear L.C.: No, the collecting is up to you. Size notwithstanding, a frog can outjump a rabbit (in Calaveras County or out of it). Now the jack rabbit (which is not a rabbit but a hare) when sufficiently motivated, can come up (and down) with those 19-foot leaps recorded by froggy champions.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Is it normal for a canary to lose a few feathers all the time? Corkey always seems healthy enough except he seldom sings and he sleeps, it seems to me, quite a lot. — V.S.

Dear V.S.: — Corkey's current condition could be due to anything from chronic infection to testicular tumor. However, many less menacing conditions such as a mild hormonal disturbance due to abnormal lighting conditions could be responsible. On the chance artificial light is a contributory cause, try to keep his active hours within the natural daylight period. Because malnutrition may also be a factor in the soft moult described, be sure his seed is of top quality and provide as well-rounded a diet as possible.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Our latest argument is over Pinkie and whether or not to allow him outside when he is a big enough cat to take care of himself. My husband thinks it is completely unfair to deprive him of the fun and freedom he would have. I know you are against it but why? — E.E.

Dear E.E.: In most city and suburban areas today, the outside, fun-seeking feline has these opportunities: (1) To be chewed up and develop infection from other cats. (2) To be chased and possibly torn apart by one or more dogs. (3) To be shot at. (4) To come into contact with and be poisoned by countless chemicals. (5) To be catnapped, lost or crushed between wheel and concrete.

These "fun" games occur so often to felines granted freedom that I don't feel the opportunity for pleasure outweighs the possiblity of pain. It isn't, in my opinion, worth it. Many cat owners disagree with this philosphy — and many of their cats suffer or live much shorter lives as a consequence.

U.S. papers printing more on Latin affairs

NEW YORK (UPI) — American newspapers are printing up to 300 per cent more news from Latin American countries than they did last year, the Center for Inter-American Relations has reported.

The center said the increase in Latin news coverage was a direct result of a "Traveling Press Strap" it sponsored in which 10 American newspaper editors were invited to travel for three weeks in four South American countries.

The center said the 10 newspapers represented on the seminar are now printing 75 per cent more Latin American stories than they did before, while the increase in a random sample of 10 other U.S. newspapers was only 8 per cent.

The center said the Boston Globe's coverage of Latin America increased 300 per cent.

Other newspapers participating in the seminar were the San Jose Mercury and News, the Philadelphia Evening and Sunday Bulletin, the Denver Post, the Dallas Times Herald, the Arkansas Gazette, the San Diego Union, the Corpus Christie Caller Times, the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette and the Kansas City Star.

Cherry picking on in Beaumont

BEAUMONT — An ample supply of black sweet cherries is available in the Beaumont and Cherry Valley area. Interested persons must do their own picking.

Medicare open to disabled on Social Security

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Medicare coverage is being extended for the first time to nearly 1.7 million persons receiving Social Security disability benefits, Caspar Weinberger, secretary of health, education and welfare said Thursday.

At a news conference, Weinberger said the coverage would begin July 1 and is authorized under the provisions of the Social Security amendments of 1972.

He estimated that about 30,000 more persons will become eligible under the amendments, which provide hospital and supplementary medical insurance for persons under 65 who have been receiving disability benefits for at least two years.

Texas has 900 organized land disposal sites for municipal refuse occupying 40 square miles of land.

Rio Shoeshine Boy

He earns while he whistles

RIO DE JANEIRO (UP) — Ariel Ferreira da Silva whistles while he works—so tunefully that he gets paid three times the normal rate in his trade.

Ariel, 27, is a shoeshine boy on Avenida Atlantica along Copacabana beach, one of dozens who work on the sidewalks in front of the high rise apartments and luxury hotels.

To many tourists and residents, the persistent shoeshine boys, some of whom carry white pitch to smear the boots of passersby, are an annoying aspect of the constant parade of beggars, peddlers and strolling musicians along Copacabana.

But customers come to Ariel.

Music is what keeps them coming to his regular stations at the sidewalk cafes of two luxury hotels, the California and the Luxor.

"Shoeshine Show"

One recent rainy night, Ariel arrived at the second of his two hotels at 10 p.m. A businessman and his wife from the interior of Brazil, were waiting for him. As Ariel pulled out his tools, he started to whistle.

For each part of the operation, he had a different type of tune. He laid on the wax to a slow and sensual ballad. As he rubbed it in, he sang a comic song, moving the young wife to delighted laughter. Then came a cheerful whistling of "Oh, Susannah."

Pausing briefly to pull up a chair for the 9-year-old son of the couple, who was leaning fascinated on his mother's shoulder, Ariel drew out his buffing cloth. He snapped the cloth over the shoes to the throbbing rhythm of the samba bands that lead parades during Carnival.

A Happy Man

The engineers had caught the act before. As Ariel shined one man's shoes, they whistled a duet together, in perfect harmony.

Then two more girls arrived, both carrying sheet music. As Ariel whistled, they sang a slow sad ballad about the moon over Rio.

Later, Ariel bummed a cigarette from a customer, lit it, balanced it on his nose, and held it lit inside his mouth, never missing a beat of either the music or the buffing cloth.

"Some days I don't make a single penny," he said. "But I am a happy man. Everybody is my friend and I believe in God."

Would hypnotism end dad's gambling?

Dear Walt: My father is a gambling addict. My mother supports the family with some help from my part-time job and my brother's—and that's how we live. I love my father but I hate his gambling. I would do anything in the world to break him of this habit. Recently I started wondering if hypnotism might work. I know they hypnotize smokers into giving up cigarettes. What is your opinion of this idea?—Ross

Dear Ross: I think you may have a great idea. But check it out with the nearest university medical center. You should deal only with a qualified medical hypnotist, and MD, rather than with an amateur or theatrical mesmerist.

You see unless a hypnotist is wise, he may seal up one outlet for internal tensions (ex: gambling) and fail to provide a healthy alternative (golf, painting, etc.).

The internal pressures may then store up acid, until they burst forth in an even more destructive outlet such as compulsive drinking or a bleeding ulcer. To launch you in your search, you might wisely decide to talk first with the family M.D.—Walt

Dear Ele and Walt: You use the term "sexism" but have never defined it in your column. I for one would like to know what you regard the word as meaning.—Shawn

Dear Shawn: To us "sexism" means regarding members of the opposite sex solely as fertility statues, all breasts, buttocks and genitalia. Everything gets defined in terms of "girls are supposed to be soft and yielding," "big boys don't cry,' etc.

Such role definition based on gender differences leads to massive stereotyping and brutalization of potentially sensitive, feeling people.

Personally we've reached the point in our own evolution in which we regard ourselves first and foremost as HUMAN BEINGS. This can be translated in a brief dialogue interchange.

"What are you?"

"I'm a person."

"Yes, of course, but a girl or a boy?"

"Oh, that. Yes, I'm a person who is biologically female."—Ele and Walt

Dear Ele: I feel taken for granted by my boy friend. Joe never notices anything I do to look nice for him. How can I change this bad habit of his?—Vickie

Dear Vickie: Start by working on your own attitude. Unless you can honestly say you'd go around looking like a drab if you weren't involved with Joe, you've no right to pin the price tag for your grooming efforts on boy friend's door.

You strive to look your best for your own self-respect, and to meet the standards of your group. If Joe treats you with respect and takes you places where you can exhibit your style, there is nothing I can see to complain about.

If you want to help him become more aware of appearance, take every opportunity to give him a deserved compliment on his grooming or wardrobe. But never use a compliment just to fill in an awkward silence, and never let him get the idea that his value to you depends on how he LOOKS, rather than who he IS.—Ele

25 million vacationers to visit parks

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The California State Park System, with 900,000 acres of ocean beaches, inland lakes, redwoods, deserts, mountains and historical sites, will be visited this summer by 25 million vacationers, 90 per cent of them residents of the Golden State.

California, where the whole state park concept started, maintains 210 separate units, ranging from hundreds of feet below sea level at the Salton Sea to Calaveras Big Trees State Park, where the "enduring giants" or ancient Sequoias flourish.

It was in 1864 that President Abraham Lincoln signed an act of Congress granting Yosemite Valley to California for public use. Although the state returned it in 1905 as an addition to Yosemite National Park, it is considered one of the first of its kind in the country.

The park system, described as one of the most extensive in the nation, includes more than 8,000 family campsites scattered the length and breadth of the state.

Vacationers can go fishing in half of the parks and can swim in more than a third. Boat launching or mooring or both are provided at 20 separate park units.

The Department of Parks and Recreation, officially established in 1927 as the State Division of Beaches and Parks, gives the following advise to turn vacation plans into action:

"First, of course, you must know what park or parks you would like to visit," the department says. "If you don't have a specific park in mind you should know what kind of area you would like to go to — northern coastal, southern coastal, redwood, Sierra, northern inland, central inland, or southern region."

To help the vacationer make up his mind, the department has a free folder titled "The California State Park System," which has a large map showing all the state park units and information on each of them.

Copies can be obtained by writing to the Department of Parks and Recreation, Distribution Center, P.O. Box 2390, Sacramento, 95811. The Department also offers free folders on individual parks covering most of the system.

The next step is Ticketron, which sells park campsite reservations throughout the state on a computerized basis. A vacationer can make reservations as far as 90 days in advance and the department suggests such an advance for the more popular southern and central coast beaches.

The park system has four general types of campsite facilities: developed, primitive, trailer sites with hookups and group camp sites.

Developed facilities include standard restrooms, piped drinking water and improved surface roads. Primitive facilities usually include access roads of less than standard quality, chemical or pit toilets and central, shared water supplies.

Group camping facilities in state parks are available by advance reservation only and must be made directly with the park.

Mott said that in recent years "we have spent as much as $500,000 to clean up litter in our state parks. This is money that could be put to a lot of other and better uses, such as park interpretation, visitor facilities and environmental protection."

STEP RIGHT UP

Fireworks are a traditional part of the Independentce Day holiday and youngsters enjoy them more than anyone else. Waiting for fireworks above are Donna Redman, Larry Redman, Kirk Johnson and Jerry Redman. Fireworks are legal only in the cities in which they are sold.

July 4th calls for fun

Fourth of July activities are as varied as the people who enjoy them, and this Independence Day promises to be as active as those in past years.

With each July 4th comes the traditional fireworks, picnics, flag-waving and parades. Unfortunately the holiday also traditionally brings fires and accidents on the road and in the home.

To escape the warm temperatures many Pomona Valley residents will visit southland beaches or lounge by the side of private and public swimming pools.

To beat the traffic families and youth will take bicycle trips to nearby parks for picnics, barbecues and leisure hours under the shade of trees.

Those in a patriotic mood will decorate floats, bikes and wagons with red, white and blue and join in parades in local cities.

Community fireworks shows in the twilight hours will draw large numbers of local residents, or families will stage their own pyrotechnic displays in cities where safe and sane fireworks are sold.

Whatever the activity, Fourth of July, above all else, is a time to reflect on the independence we all share and the heritage of the United States.

PARADE PREPARATION

Blind women receive aid in makeup techniques

BY PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Have you ever tried to freshen lipstick in the dark or apply blusher to cheeks without a mirror? Then you understand makeup problems of blind women.

Unless they have special assistance from a sighted person, the blind women of all ages are helpless. But they have the same desire the sighted women have—stemming from natural vanity. They want to put their best face forward— improving their appearance with lipstick, blusher and even eye makeup.

The problem of the blind women is tackled in a booklet titled "The Art of Makeup for the Visually Handicapped." It comes in large type and braille editions. The large type version is for the women with enough vision who can make out such printing.

Dorothy Pirozzi, the author of the New York Association for the Blind (The Lighthouse) booklet, was a fashion model before losing her sight.

Techniques described were developed through her own experience, both as a blind woman and as a teacher of blind young women. She said the pamphlet grew out of the expressed need of young women attending rehabilitation classes at the agency. They wanted assistance with their makeup problems.

Mrs. Pirozzi is an instructor now in the Lighthouse Rehabilitation Department. She had assistance from Ethel Browne of Elizabeth Arden in drawing up the basic instructions.

The exercises help the blind women become familiar with her face and to learn the basic strokes and motions used in cleansing and making up.

"Because I had been a fashion model before losing my sight. I was very aware of the importance of a good physical appearance." Mrs. Pirozzi says in the booklet's introduction.

"I felt it was just as important to maintain a good appearance after losing my sight as it was when I had vision.

"I have discovered various methods of applying my own makeup that demonstrate that a blind person can make up as well as any sighted person."

In her classes since the start of her new career back in July of 1971, Mrs. Pirozzi said she has stressed the use of light makeup with emphasis on natural, flattering shades that enhance a person's own skin tone. This results in a natural appearance.

"From my own experience and that of my students," she tells women reading the booklet via their fingertips (the braille edition), "I can assure you that when you learn to make up your face, you will both feel and look more feminine and attractive.

"And when you know you look your best, you will feel more confident. I cannot stress too much how important appearance is in a sighted world."

The book contains tips on problem skins, on fingernails, on hair and directions on a simple face and neck treatment. The latter is to cleanse and stimulate skin and remove dead skin cells. It also aims to help keep skin clear and young looking.

The tips on problem skins are just like those for women who are not blind. To wit:

—Do a thorough job in areas where excessive oil tends to accumulate and where blemishes tend to appear—this is the T-zone: across the forehead, down the nose, and on the chin.

—Do not squeeze blackheads and pimples. Instead, use the proper cleansing technique to open the pores and draw out the excess oil and dirt that are responsible for the blemishes.

—Avoid foods that tend to contribute to skin problems— these may include sweets, chocolate, shellfish, and foods containing large amounts of oil.

—Get an adequate amount of sleep and eat a balanced diet which includes protein foods, a variety of vegetables, a citrus fruit, dairy products and some grain products each day.

The directions for application of lipstick without seeing go like this: —

—Gently feel the outline and shape of your lips with the fingers of one hand. Find the center of the upper lip. Feel the natural lines of the lips as they extend toward the corners of the mouth.

—Remove the top of the lipstick and, in order to expose the lipstick, slightly twist the bottom section of the tube clockwise. You should expose only a small amount of lipstick so it will not break while you are using it. Check with your finger to see how much is exposed.

At first, Mrs. Pirozzi said, the blind woman will need someone to check lipstick and other makeup. Once she becomes skillful, the checking isn't necessary.

("The Art of Makeup for the Visually Handicap" is available for $1.25 from the Braille Departhent of The Lighthouse, 111 E. 59th St., New York, N.Y., 10022. Specify: braille or large print version.)

Interfaith Chapel setting for nuptials

MRS. R. BRUCE RIESER

Miss Linda May Gregory of Pomona became the bride of Robert Bruce Rieser of Pomona during a morning nuptial ceremony at the Interfaith Chapel in San Bernardino on Saturday.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Payson Gregory of San Bernardino was given in marriage by her father. The bride wore a gown of ivory satin and carried a bouquet of pink carnations and red roses.

Miss Linda Albertson was the maid of honor for the bride, and Doug Leppard stood as best man for the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Dickson of San Bernardino. Ushers were David Gregory and Mike Dickson.

A reception at the Castaway in San Bernardino followed the wedding. Upon their return from a San Francisco honeymoon the newlyweds will make their home in Pomona.

Mr. Rieser is a graduate of Cal Poly, Pomona, and his wife attends Mt. San Antonio College.

MRS. R. WAYNE WILHEIM

The uncle of the bride officiated at the evening wedding ceremony uniting Miss Evonne Lyn Bratton and Robert Wayne Wilhelm of Charlotte, N.C., on Saturday at the Church of the Bethren in Empire.

A former La Verne resident, the bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Bratton of Empire. She was escorted to the altar by her father.

For her wedding the bride chose a gown of imported organza and French re-embroidered Alencon lace. The A-line silhouette dress was fashioned with a Victorian neckline and short demi-bell sleeves with lace accenting the bodice, sleeves and skirt. Her chapel length veil of silk illusion was adorned with lace applique and was held by a band of fresh white roses. The former Miss Bratton carried a colonial bouquet of pink and white baby roses, yellow daisies, lavender pompons, blue star flowers and white baby's breath.

Miss Marilyn Richie of Auberry was the bride's maid of honor. Serving as bridesmaids were Miss Donelle Claypool of Santa Paula, Miss Janice Emig of Escalon and Miss Gail Doramus of Kuna, Idaho.

Jana Stokes of Modesto and Kristal Emig of Manteca were the flower girls, and Jerry Stokes of Modesto and Aaron Kidd of Ontario were the ring bearers.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilhelm of Greensboro, N.C., chose his father as his best man. Ushers were George Bratton of Empire, Michael Wilhelm of Greensboro, N.C. David Bayne of Ft. Ord, and Tim Bratton of Glendora.

Motivate professional women

Women pursuing a professional career appear to be primarily motivated by esteem, self-expression and independence and have little concern for security, while non-professional women have a high need for security and a low desire for independence, according to a scientific survey, the first ever conducted on the role of the professional woman in society today.

MOIRA GORMAN

The study, an analysis of a random sample of 400 women nationwide, half professional and half non-professional, complied over a three-year period, is the work of Dr. William G. Baker, industrial psychologist and assistant professor of management at California State University, Los Angeles.

Dr. Baker's research has for the first time provided documented evidence that appears to show a basic difference in "goal orientation" between the professional and non-professional woman.

The relative importance of ten goals: esteem, profit, fame, power, leadership, security, social service, interesting experiences, self-expression and independence, was determined, and significant differences were found to exist on all ten goals when comparing professional and non-professional women.

Professional women, which included business women, doctors, bankers, lawyers, professors, social workers, accountants and architects, scored higher on esteem, profit, fame, power, leadership, interesting experiences, self-expression and independence. They expected to be well-rewarded for their services, the Cal State L.A. survey shows.

Lowest ranking on the scale for professional women were social service ad security, indicating to Dr. Baker that professionals are "not unduly motivated by a desire for the welfare of others and appear to have very little concern for the security of marriage and raising a family." Job security also ranked low in this group, and was attributed to a high need for independence.

Non-professional women scored high on social services and security goals and low on independence, seeming to be "only minimally motivated toward seeking interesting experiences or self-expression."

The non-professional woman also appeared to "place a very low value on her personal worth — expecting only minimal renumeration for her services." They included secretaries, clerical workers, sales women, waitresses, and housewives.

Practical applications of the research study are twofold. It now appears possible to discern a "professionally oriented" woman at an early age. Counseling and encouragement to pursue a career can be given to her, and with this added incentive, she may choose to enter the presently male-dominated professions says Cal State's Dr. Baker. Companies will also be able to analyze the "goal profiles" of women applicants to determine their probability of success in the professions.

"Employers will no longer be able to refuse a woman employment on the grounds that she is a woman since it appears that potentially successful professional women are readily discernible," according to Dr. Baker, who feels the research will lead to a greater acceptance of women in the professions.

"STOMACH OK NOW"

Says Mrs. Ruiz, "I had stomach trouble mucho malo. It used to burn like fire and I couldn't eat anything without terrible pains. I was so nervous I could hardly think. Then my brother told me to see Dr. Wing, and after a few weeks I was much better. Soon I was well enough to stop all treatments and it is now 11 years ago and my stomach and nerves are fine."

Dr. Wing, D.C., Chinese Herbologist, 900 E. Holt Ave., Pomona, Tues. 3-6; Fri. 9-12 Noon, 629-3910; Los Angeles, 1429 S. Vermont Ave., DU 2-2801; San Bernardino, 2336 Sierra Way, TU 6-8609. "Regain Health Naturally." Adv.

Melton and Campbell vows are exchanged

MRS. RICHARD D. MELTON

Trinity United Methodist Church in Pomona was the setting for the Saturday morning ceremony uniting in marriage Miss Dadra Lee Campbell and Richard D. Melton of Alaska.

The Rev. Dorsey Allen officiated at the double-ring rites of the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C.E. Campbell of La Verne and the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Melton of Pomona.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a gown of organza with a Mexican lace bodice, a chapel length veil and a mantilla of matching lace. She carried a cascade of white carnations with blue baby's breath and white orchid corsage in the center.

Mrs. Theresa Hanlin was the bride's honor attendant, and bridesmaids were Miss Gay Mead, Lucie Campbell and Mrs. Pam MacQuarrie. Jeanie Masterman and Steve Hanlin were the flower girl and ring bearer.

After returning from a two-week honeymoon including a week in Hawaii, the couple will make its home in Kotzebue, Alaska.

Wedding plan book offered

Following tradition, June is still the most popular month to marry, but it is now followed closely in popularity by August, July, September and October. Monthly vital statistics reports indicate that about 10 per cent of those married in 1972 were married in each of these months.

The busy wedding season brings the introduction of the new "Betty Crocker's Wedding Plan-Book"—a survival guide for the bride-to-be. This soft-cover, 64-page workbook gives direction and choice to a bride from the time she says "yes".

It contains answers to hundreds of questions, calendars for schedules, checklists and charts. The wedding plan-book is a place to make notes, file papers, record gifts and check progress—a complete run-down of what's done and what still needs doing.

To celebrate the wedding, there is a special collection of menus and recipes for wedding receptions and parties, from a brunch for 12 to a buffet for 50. There is even a simple afternoon celebration for 150 guests—complete with wedding cakes and decorating ideas. Easy-to-follow directions and serving suggestions provide all the help needed to handle these parties at home.

Betty Crocker's wedding book, available in bookstores for $1.95, is the perfect gift for the bride-to-be.

Lamaze classes charted

September wedding plans told

At a formal family dinner recently announcement was made that on Sept. 8 Miss Moira Gorman and George Visosky will be married.

Miss Gorman, who graduated in 1967 from Pomona Catholic Girls High School and received an A.A. degree from Mt. San Antonio College, will receive her bachelor's degree in December from Cal Poly, Pomona. She will continue to do graduate work to acquire an elementary teaching credential. Miss Gorman is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Michael Gorman of Pomona.

Mr. Visosky, a resident of West Covina for 17 years, now resides in Huntington Beach. He is the son of Mrs. Mozelle Visosky of Lee Vining, Calif., and the late George Visosky.

Mr. Visosky graduated from Edgewood High School in West Covina in 1964 and attended Mt. San Antonio College before entering the Army where he was a communications supervisor. He is currently employed by Permacal Tape Co., Buena Park, and also serves as the track photographer at Orange County International Raceway.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley R. Tilden of Claremont celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary June 24 at an evening reception at the Claremont College Faculty House.

The couple was married at an evening ceremony June 20, 1948, at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Forrest N. Anderson of Van Nuys. Earlier that day the couple had received bachelor's degrees from UCLA.

The Tildens have resided in the Claremont area since their wedding. Mrs. Tilden received her master's degree in Spanish Literature from Claremont Graduate School in 1954, and did her doctoral work while teaching at UCLA.

Mr. Tilden was for years head of the foreign language laboratory at Mt. San Antonio College and was later in the digital computer laboratory of General Dynamics. Mrs. Tilden has taught Spanish and World Mythology in Southern California schools and colleges for the past 22 years. Both Tildens have biographies in "Who's Who in California."

Assisting at the reception for 136 guests were Dr. and Mrs. Warren D. Mateer, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Merritt, Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Babcock, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Singer and daughter, Mrs. Marie Listy, Mr. and Mrs. Theodorae Swartz, Mrs. Constance Nelson, Mrs. Gertude Griggs, Timmy and Sandra Laraway Mr. and Mrs. Juan Artidiello, Margarita and Arturo Artidiello, Mr. and Mrs. Francisco Shimbukuro, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Lamb, Mr. and Mrs. Don Reiner, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Lee and Mrs. Arlo Henderson. Among the guests were the John Southworths of Honolulu.

The Tildens, who served as president and historian, respectively, in the early years of the Claremont-Guanajuato Sister - City Association received messages from the mayor of Guanajuato, the former rector of the University of Guanajuato and from the director of tourism for Guanajuato state. All had visited the Tildens in Claremont. The couple also received a cablegram from the former Secretary-General of NATO, Manlio Brosio.

Shirt-inspired princess

With this quietly stunning dress in your trans-season wardrobe, you can go anywhere any hour of the day or evening and be sure of a flattering reception. The lines of Printed Pattern A922 by John Norman are the sleekest—pure princess dramatically etched by bias trim same as dress or contrast around collar, tab and button decorated demi-belt. The Original is an elegant polyester knit with a herrinbone-like rib in pure white with black. Make your version in a tender pastel double knit wool, tiny checked flannel, tweedy blend or linen.

Printed Pattern A922 is available in Misses' Sizes 8, 10, 12, 14, 16. Size 12 (bust 34) requires 3⅝ yards 35-inch.

Aug. 11 selected for rites

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willard M. Iverson of Huntington Beach, the bride-elect is a graduate of Marina High School and of Cal State, Long Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. G..J McGuire are parents of the groom-to-be. A graduate of Glendora High School, Mr. McGuire attended Citrus College before enlisting in the Air Force where he served four years.

Mr. McGuire is attending the University of Southern California and is employed by Pomona Valley Distributing Company.

Removes grease

Baking soda effectively deodorizes and cleans away grease residue in the disposer. Follow manufacturers directions for cleaning and add about three tablespoons of soda to each quart of water used.

Flush drains

Pour some baking soda into drains and flush with warm water to keep drains and traps clear and odor-free.

Marriage alive and well

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Reports on the death of the traditional wedding are premature, to paraphrase a famous quote from Mark Twain,

Yes, there are some changes in the settings. Yes, there is some cohabiting without benefit of marriage vows. And yes, there is the commune culture.

But by and large, people are getting married just as they did 150 years ago. The wedding is the acting out of a "deep need for ritual in our lives," says Marcia Seligson. "There's an awfully deep and fundamental emotion involved."

Miss Seligson gives us a look at the American way of marriage as the summer wedding season gets into full swing. Her "The Eternal Bliss Machine" (William Morrow & Co., New York) is stuffed with facts on the marriage rate, some of the most expensive weddings ever staged and a look at some of the most unconventional.

To reinforce her premise that marriage continues a healthy institution, Miss Seligson recites some statistics. Consider in 1972, there were 2,269,000 marriages in the United States, that one per cent of the population has been and still is getting married each year.

Seven out of eight first-time couples are married in church or synagogue. Seven out of eight first-time brides receive an engagement ring. About 85 per cent of first-time brides wear a formal bridal gown. And to top it all, the wedding industry represents better than $7 billion a year in the U. S. economy.

In an interview, Miss Seligson (still waiting on Mr. Perfect) told how she came to write the book.

New York-born, she'd been a bridesmaid for the first time when she was 19 and member of an extravagant Long Island wedding.

"The climax of the bacchanal was the arrival of the wedding cake—a 14-foot mountain of stark white goo Against the cake was placed a ladder which Dee Dee (the bride) daintily climbed, brandishing a long silver knife.

"At the peak, she dramatically slashed into the sugar hulk, thereby releasing a battalion of anxiety-ridden white doves."

All weddings are costing more, Miss Seligson said. Like the cost of living, the cost of loving moves upward with the economy.

Even a simple off-beat wedding, "marriage on the rocks," as Miss Seligson phrases it, can run into big money —"especially if the bride selects a Givenchy peasant dress at $2,000."

She found some of the costliest weddings were Texas style. She recounted sit-down dinners for 1,000 guests feasting on filet mignon, of one family who flew a New York hairdresser and his staff into Texas to do the women's hair for parties in advance and on the big day. The flower bill alone came to $28,000.

By contrast, she said, some weddings of WASP America, of the upper class, are marked by phrases like "restrained" and "elegant simplicity."

"I've been to some pretty posh weddings where you'd starve to death before you got to a lettuce leaf," she said.

Screaming

All the screaming about musk oil from civets in perfume and body lotions isn't completely justified. The screams aren't deserved, says one major supplier of lotions containing synthetic musk oil. The screaming, in case you haven't heard, is by animal lovers. It is justified when reaching the ears of those perfume makers who use natural civet oil.

Privacy for patients

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: One of your recent columns contained a letter from a patient who was irritated at being asked questions by the nurses and recpetionists in doctors' offices. As a student nurse, perhaps I can shed a little light on the subject.. "It is possible that these are simply rude and snoopy women. However, often these questions are asked at the doctor's request to save the doctor's time. If a nurse knows what the patient's complaint is, she can anticipate the doctor's treatment and gather the necessary equipment — thus saving time. If a patient enters without an appointment, the nurse must ask certain questions to determine whether this patient's condition warrants immediate attention.

"Busy doctors get many phone calls during the day. A competent nurse can determine which ones are urgent, which are not. Often a nurse can answer the patient's questions or will know if the call is urgent enough to be put through to the doctor or whether the doctor may phone back at his convenience.

"There is usually a valid reason for those questions, and it is to the patient's benefit to answer them as fully as possible. If the waiting room is crowded, one can simply ask to answer any personal questions in the privacy of the examining room. Don't be timid. Patients have a right to have their problems discussed without benefit of an audience. — Mrs. R.S., Dorchester, Mass."

Yours is a helpful letter that answers many questions patients pose. I'm glad you feel that they do have a right to privacy.

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: A patient's address, referral, husband's occupation and such is extremely important information. Have you ever had to track someone down in an emergency whose phone number has changed or is unlisted? I have, and without this information on the patient's records it would be impossible to do so.

"Asking their symptoms saves the doctor time. Do you realize how few patients a doctor would be able to see if we did not screen his calls? We do so at his request. Would you care to have him take another patient's call while you were being examined?

"You would be surprised how many people request that we call them by their first names. We respect the patient's wishes in this matter.

"And how about our privacy? We're stopped at parties or while shopping by those who wish to discuss their ailments or ask for appointments. We are even asked to deliver to our offices specimens which are dropped off at our homes. Perhaps when people see both sides they will have a better understanding. — P.R., Camden, N.J."

I have had much mail on this subject, and I do want to air both sides. You have helped.

I think much misunderstanding could be avoided if there were more politeness on both sides, and a little more empathy.

Attention, brides

The Progress-Bulletin Women's Department looks forward to printing the stories of your engagement and wedding.

Please pick up engagement and wedding forms at the newspaper office and return them with the picture you wish used.

Engagement forms are not accepted if they are received less than five weeks before the wedding, and wedding forms should be returned within two weeks after the wedding with a picture of the bride only.

Fidel accepts invitation to visit Tito

BELGRADE (UPI) — Cuban Communist Party leader Fidel Castro accepted an invitation from President Tito today to visit Yugoslavia, the national news agency Tanjug said.

"It will be a pleasure for me to visit Yugoslavia, and I hope to do it soon," Castro told a Tanjug correspondent in Havana. "I have no doubt that I will be greeted as a welcome guest."

Government sources in Belgrade said the first meeting between Tito and Castro will represent an improvement in often cool relations between nonaligned Yugoslavia and Moscow-oriented Cuba.

One of the major political differences between the two leaders in recent years was Castro's approval of the Soviet Warsaw Pact invasion of Czechoslovakia in 1968. Tito bitterly opposed the invasion.

Cuba and Yugoslavia have maintained diplomatic contacts since even before the Cuban revolution, but Communist party contacts in the past have been kept at a minimum. The most imporant event in Yugoslav-Cuban relations up to now was the visit to Yugoslavia in 1963 of Ernesto "Che" Guevara, Castro's right-hand man.

Tito's invitation to Castro was delivered by Stane Dolanc, number two man in the Yugoslav Communist party, who is now visiting Havana.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Romantic interests will be of paramount concern today. You'll make extra concessions to prove you care.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're likely to take things for granted today. You shouldn't. Others will press their aims as hard as you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you're the one who has to relay information, be sure you don't elaborate on the facts. Tell it like it is.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Before spending what's at hand, do this: see that some funds are earmarked to meet your other necessary obligations.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You've rehearsed in your mind how to handle a particular situation with another. When you meet today you'll forego your plans.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Something you're giving considerable thought to will remain just a figment of your imagination— unless you act on it NOW.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Keep moderation in mind if you have an active social calendar today. It will be hard for you to turn down goodies.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) This is not the day to coast if you're nearing an important achievement. Keep pushing, else it will slip away.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you're not careful you'll put the cart before the horse today. Plans must be well thought out.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You expect something today from another which in reality is more than you're entitled to. Modify your hopes.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Enter all negotiations cautiously today. Unless you have a wise adviser you'll give more than you'll gain.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You're likely to add too many last touches to something you're working on today. The end result won't be what you evisioned.

Profs develop sub for milk at less cost

URBANA, Ill. (UPI) — Three University of Illinois professors say they have developed a soybean drink that offers all the nutrition benefits of milk at about one third the cost.

However, the professors said recently that the drink is bland and "tastes like nothing" unless it is flavored.

Dr. Marvin Steinberg, Dr. Lun-Shin Wei and Dr. Alvin Nelson said the drink is not yet on the commercial market, but several food marketing firms have expressed an interest in it. They said it could become "a new food for the world."

The product, which is off-white in color, can be made into a beverage, an oleo-like spread, a thick cream or a food-like yogurt, they said.

Steinberg said the beverage could be marketed as a blandtasting base or a prefla-vored pasteurized drink. It would last longer in the refrigerator than milk and cost about one third as much, even considering the soaring cost of soybeans, he said.

He said the drink has as much protein as milk with calories equal to those in 2-percent fat milk.

Steinberg said in many cultures milk has not been available for so long that residents have developed a resistance to the lactose it contains and cannot drink it.

July exhibition

Gallery to show work of Bachardy, Kolbe

LOS ANGELES — Bronzes and drawings by German sculptor George Kolbe and paintings by American portrait artist Don Bachardy will be on exhibition at Barnsdall Park's Municipal Art Gallery during July.

The Kolbe exhibit opens July 11, the Bachardy exhibition July 13.

Kolbe has been tabbed as a lyrical and gentler version of Rodin, whom he admired greatly. Kolbe will be represented by 26 bronzes from the B. Gerald Cantor Collection and 15 drawings lent by the artist's granddaughter, Maria von Tiesenhausen, director of the George Kolbe Museum in Berlin, Germany.

The collection, organized by the Andrew Dickson White Museum of Art, directed by Thomas W. Leavitt of Cornell University, is touring six major institutions in the United States prior to its final stop at Harvard University.

Los Angeles born Bachardy, will display nearly 100 of his portraits of leading actors and actresses, authors, dramatists, artists, and other international personalities playing prominent roles in the various arts.

A few of the greats who have been his subject are Aldous Huxley, Myrna Loy Beatrice Lillie, Igor Stravinsky, Salvador Dali, Andy Warhol and Norton Simon.

The gallery is open from noon to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday, closed Mondays.

Arraign woman in Miami auto dealer's death

LAS VEGAS (UPI) — Bonnie Smith, 23, Hialeah, Fla., was arraigned in Justice Court Thursday on charges of murder for the slaying of a Miami car dealer 18 months ago.

Miss Smith was charged with the slaying of Oscar R. Farrell, 69, Miami, whose headless corpse was found on the desert near this gambling resort Nov. 11, 1971.

Sheriff Ralph Lamb said Deluca and Miss Smith drove from Miami to Las Vegas in two cars. Farrell was reported to have business in Las Vegas regarding a car dealership. And Deluca and Miss Smith were to assist in the business, investigators said.

Festival of Arts planned in Laguna

LAGUNA BEACH — The annual Festival of Arts, highlighted by the Pageant of Masters, will be held in the Irvine Bowl and on the surrounding grounds July 16-Aug. 26.

On six acres of park-like grounds will be booths and stands for the works of 180 graphic artists, jewelers, potters, weavers, wood carvers, sculptors, furniture designers and fabric workers.

Free program

At 5 p.m. on each Sunday of the seven-week run, the Laguna Beach Civic Ballet Company presents an admission-free program.

The Pageant of Masters is staged in the Bowl at 8:30 each evening. Some 800 men, women and children serve as models in re-creating masterworks of art such as Cellini's "Salt Celler," Rubens' "Victory and Death of Decuis Mus," Michelangelo's "La Pieta" and Da Vinci's "Last Supper."

Sponsored by the Festival of Arts and produced by the Laguna Beach Art Association, the All California exhibit features the best work selected from over a thousand entries of oils, watercolors and sculpture from professional artists of California.

Now in its 19th season, the purchase prize competiton has again been underwritten by a $5,000 grant from the Festival. It exhibits some 125 outstanding works of art juried by California artist Wayne Theibauld.

Ten of these prize winners will be recommended for purchase awards. Festival board members will then choose from this last group the art works to be added.

Museum hours are 11:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. daily. Admission is free.

Shuttle buses will run continously between the Festival of Arts grounds and the Museum.

The Festival of Arts, started during the Depression days, is a non-profit organization that contributes thousands of dollars annually to cultural and artistic organizations.

In the past 10 years, the Festival has donated more than $1.5 million to a variety of institutions. Some of it goes to the City of Laguna Beach as rental of the grounds, some goes to capital improvements on the site.

During the past decade the Festival has awarded $54,000 in scholarships to promising students in art, dance, drama, music and writing. It also gave $64,000 to such local groups as the Laguna Beach Civic Ballet and the School of Art. Earlier the Festival donated $25,000 to the South Coast Community Hospital.

Record budget in Alameda Co.

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Alameda County Board of Supervisors has adopted a record $305 million budget for fiscal 1973-74.

Although the budget approved Thursday is up $34 million from the current year, the tax rate is expected to be 5 cents less than the current $2.98 per $100 valuation. This is the result of federal revenue sharing and increases in assessed valuation.

50-YEAR-OLD CAMERA — Parris Emery, veteran Seattle photographer, is shown here with a Pathe camera which is a half-century old and the one he used to begin his career as a newsreel cameraman. In his 50 years on the job he has covered earthquakes, floods, fires, sporting events — you name it — and he probably was there. He's 77 years old.

Guards made sure payroll wasn't lifted

YAKIMA, Wash. (UPI) — A dozen heavily armed military policemen and circling helicopters loaded with police were used recently to make sure bandits didn't hijack a half million dollar Army National Guard payroll.

The tight security measures were in force for the five-mile trip from a Yakima bank to the Yakima Firing Center for a $581,000 payroll for national guardsmen performing summer camp duty.

Two men from the brigade's finance section were locked in the vault of the Seattle-First National Bank here overnight to guard and count the money.

While the two helicopters whirred overhead, police and Washington State Patrol units escorted the convoy out of town and to the firing center.

There were no incidents.

Attracts Japanese honeymooners

By DICK WILLIAMS

AGANA, Guam (UPI) — U.S. Navy and Marine officers were once shipped to Guam as a disciplinary action—the Devil's Island or Siberia of the Navy and Marine Corps.

Today this emerald green island in the Pacific is experiencing a rapid and dramatic change into an attractive tourist haven. Planeloads of Japanese tourists, mostly honeymooners, are disembarking to find relaxation on sunny, quiet beaches. The result is an economy growing at breakneck speed.

Growth indicators are found in all sectors of the community. To begin with, the civilian population of Guam increased by a staggering 61 per cent between 1960 and 1970. The civilian and military populations together registered an increase of 26 per cent between 1970 and 1973, with Guam's present total population figure being set officially at 106,651, but estimated to be actually about 110.000.

Business grows

Business gross receipts figures show dramatically Guam's growth phenomenon. Combined gross receipts for all business sectors in 1960 amounted to $89.6 million. Over the following 10-year period business receipts grew to $226.8 million in 1970. From 1971 to 1972, gross receipts increased approximately 1 per cent.

Further evidence of economic boom can be found in ever increasing construction activies in Guam. Between 1967 and 1972 gross receipts of contractors increased from $33.9 million to $86. million. Between 1971 and 1972 alone, contractors' receipts increased 24 per cent.

Will visit U. S.

Today there are more than 2,100 first class hotel rooms on Guam with at least three major hotels now under construction.

Although Guam enjoys a military based economy, the visitor industry is largely responsible for the island's economic growth rate. With an economy based solely on military activity in the early 1960s, Guam moved toward the '70s by supplementing the military economy with a new visitor industry which burgeoned and is continuing to grow rapidly. In 1967, Guam's visitors totaled 4,500. In 1972, there were 185,000 visitors. And, the statistics so far this year show that there is no sign of a slowdown.

Visit to U. S.

A delegation of eight, headed by Bert Umpingco, managing director of the Guam Visitors Bureau, will travel to the continental United States at the end of this month to seek not only tourists from the U.S. mainland, but investors as well.

The delegation will attend a meeting of the American Society of Travel Agents in Vail, Colo., then make a circle tour of the United States.

"Right now most of our tourists and investors are from Asia," Umpingco said. "But, this is an American island and we would like to have more American tourists and investors."

Banks multiply

The visitor industry impact is shown in increased growth in the service sector, which includes the hotel industry. Receipts rose from $58 million in 1967, to $169 million in 1972.

Both consumer and investment spending have increased dramatically with increases in the volume of transactions and in the number of financial institutions. In 1961, four financial institutions operated in Guam, only one of which was a commercial bank. A decade later there are 18 such institutions, including six commercial banks. Last year a new bank, owned and operated by Guamanians, was opened.

Guam also has enjoyed a rapid expansion in the labor force and an improvement in technology. The labor force expanded from 17,208 persons in 1962, to 30,365 in 1973, a gain of about 76 per cent. More than 13,000 new jobs were created in that period.

Umpingco says a need still exists for about 6,000 employes in tourist industry related businesses alone. But, before recommending a move to Guam, it should be noted that those jobs are in the $2.05 an hour bracket (Guam's minimum wage).

The cost of living on this island is about 20 per cent higher than on the U.S. West Coast, but about 15 per cent lower than in Hawaii.

Use of Guard possible at grape fields

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan's top farm official says the National Guard would be called out if there is an increase in violence in Coachella Valley grape fields.

State Agriculture Director C. Brunel Christensen told a news conference Thursday "we can and will call out the National Guard" if such force is needed to protect persons harvesting the valley's grape crop. He said the grape harvest is 50 per cent completed.

"If there is enough damage I think we'll have to call out the guard," said Christensen, who Wednesday visited valley grape fields for three hours at the request of Reagan.

He said he will report on the situation to Reagan, who can call out the guard.

Explosive situation

The state official described as an "explosive situation" the bitter organizing battle between Cesar Chavez' United Farm Workers union and the Teamsters union in the Valley. The UFW has been picketing grape fields of growers who signed with the Teamsters after their UFW contracts expired.

Christensen said the Highway Patrol was put on alert Monday to assist Riverside County sheriff's deputies in dealing with trouble if the local officers request help.

However, sheriff's deputies in Indio said the situation in the Coachella Valley has been relatively peaceful this week with an average of eight or nine persons being arrested each day. Only two persons, both Teamsters, were arrested Thursday on the picket lines.

A sheriff's office spokesman said authorities in the area did not need outside help unless the situation escalated drastically. "We've got our own problems well in hand —we can handle it," he said.

May be disbanded

Christensen said he believed the United Farm Workers union may be disbanded in the near future due to competition from the Teamsters in representing California farm workers.

He noted the Teamsters hold contracts with all but two grape growers in the valley and are quickly winning contracts with San Joaquin Valley growers who previously had pacts with the UFW.

The UFW "is not getting any contracts," Christensen said. "I don't see how they can succeed without contracts. We don't see him (Cesar Chavez) trying to secure more contracts."

CHILD LEARNING CENTER—Dr. Allen Calvin of Behavioral Research Laboratories, Inc. observes a child learning in one of the private preschools run by the firm.

Financing plan given

Pre-schools urged for all children

By GAIL KENNARD

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Seventeen preschool children and their teachers decided to visit Gov. Ronald Reagan in Sacramento one warm day recently, but they weren't making the trip merely to see the capitol sights.

They were there, armed with picket signs, to plead with the governor to save the state preschools threatened by federal budget cutbacks.

Last year there were 15,371 children between the ages of three and five years of age enrolled in federally-funded preschool programs under the Office of Child Development.

They received instruction to prepare them for later entry into the public schools. They were given physical and dental examinations, psychological and social counseling with parental involvement and teacher visits to their homes.

Their schools were in both urban and rural areas, and for the most part, they were from low income families or families on welfare.

In addition to the OCD programs, there were approximately 45,000 preschoolers in state preschool and day care programs operated with federal funds from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and administered by the state.

Each year federally funded preschool and day care center programs face the uncertainty of whether they will receive funding for the new year, and this year the uncertainty was heightened by changes in HEW regulations and federal cutbacks.

Parents and educators have protested the cutbacks in well publicized demonstrations throughout the state, and now many are calling for a permanent end to the funding uncertainty and for, at the very least, guaranteed child care programs for all working mothers.

One recommendation for such a program has come from Dr. Allen Calvin, chairman of Behavioral Research Laboratories, which runs several private preschools in California. He has been urging state and federal officials to implement a sort of GI bill, not for veterans, but for the parents of preschool age children.

Under Calvin's proposal, every child of preschool age in the nation would have the opportunity to attend any preschool of his parent's choice.

In this way, all parents, not only lower income and welfare recipient families, could sent their children to preschool if they wished. And because it would be available to every child, Calvin feels his plan has a chance of eventual approval.

"People don't get so upset about spending money if everybody's child gets the benefits," Calvin said. He cited the current trouble over funds to be a result of public resentment of tax money going to aid poverty area families only.

With a voucher for every parent, "the parents would have the power," Calvin said. They could demand quality education for their children because it would be entirely up to them where and if they spend their vouchers. Calvin believes that parent involvement is the key to first rate education which serves the individual needs of each child.

"Either we involve the parents in the schools or we fail, and the public will not continue to finance schools that fail," Calvin said.

Calvin is critical of the present child care centers and preschool programs. Funding is uncertain and eligibility rules change almost monthly.

"They spend more time keeping kids out of preschool," Calvin said. "The regulations change so often the typical center can't tell you who's eligible and who is not."

Calvin believes the cost of such a plan would cost the government far less for each child than the current programs, because the administrative expenses involved in determining eligibility would be eliminated. He estimated the cost for a preschool program would be a maximum of $125 a month for each child.

Government programs for preschoolers currently run at a cost between 180 and $200 a month for each child, depending on the area in which the school is operated. Urban schools tend to be more expensive because rents and other costs are higher, according to Norman Nagao of the Office of Child Development in San Francisco.

Calvin is not alone in seeking alternatives to the present preschool programs. Many people involved in education agree that there is a growing demand for more comprehensive service. It now becomes a question of public policy, awareness and will.

"All the handwriting is on the wall that there will be an extension of public education down to four-year-olds to threeyear-olds and even to two-year-olds," said Jack Shaffer, director of the Headstart program in Los Angeles.

One school administrator explained, "The public doesn't see that much of a need for it yet. There won't be any action on it until the mothers run it down on them (legislators) like they did with the meat boycott."

'Yearling' coming

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Peter Graves will host the first offering of the MGM Family Network, a two-hour movie special of "The Yearling" which won eight Academy Awards nominations.

Former Nixon cabinet member assails bugging

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — George Romney, a three-term governor of Michigan and former Nixon cabinet member, called the bugging of Watergate "reprehensible" Thursday.

"These methods shouldn't be used in any political activity," the former secretary of Housing and Urban Development said. "The fact that the President of the United States had surrounded himself with such people represented a centralization of power that should not be permitted any President."

This week: seven days of scandals

Former Presidential Counsel John W. Dean III told the Senate Watergate hearings that President Nixon had taken part in the bugging cover-up for as long as eight months and had misled the nation in his public statements about the break-in at the Democratic National Headquarters.

In one of the most dramatic weeks for Watergate revelations since the scandal broke, Dean, armed with a stack of documents and a startling 245-page statement detailing his and the role of others in the scandal, brought himself into direct conflict with the White House.

Among other incriminating documents, he released a list of "enemies" of the White House containing the names of 200 prominent journalists, actors, businessmen, and labor leaders. The enemies, including such figures as entertainer Carol Channing and CBS broadcaster Daniel Schorr, were sometimes singled out by the administration for harassment, Dean said.

The White House counterattacked with a statement calling Dean the "mastermind" of the cover-up and his "patron," former Attorney General John N. Mitchell, responsible for the burglary. Dean refuted the allegations. Later, the White House said the statement should not be considered as originating from the President.

By week's end, Republican committee member Lowell P. Weicker Jr. had accused the administration of trying to intimidate him and the committee suggested that President Nixon make a formal reply, perhaps under oath, to Dean's charges. The White House said Nixon had no intention of testifying either "voluntarily or involuntarily."

In other developments:

WASHINGTON — The House and Senate, in its strongest anti-war action, voted in a bill which would have cut off all funds for the bombing of Cambodia but Nixon promptly vetoed it. The bill, a $3.3 billion supplemental spending bill with the cutoff amendment attached, left it unclear how the Government would be financed past this week, the end of the fiscal year. Undaunted, a House-Senate conference approved another bill with a cutoff rider but that too is expected to be vetoed.

MONTEVIDEO — The President of Uruguay, acting under military pressure, abolished Congress and replaced it with a Council of State, ending constitutional goverrment in the Latin American country for the first time in 40 years.

DENVER—Marine Sgt. Abel Larry Kavanaugh, who came home from five years in a North Vietnamese prison camp only to be charged with aiding the enemy, was found shot to death in the home of his inlaws, an apparant suicide victim. His death followed by weeks the suicide of another POW, Air Force Capt. Edward Allan Brudno.

WASHINGTON—The administration ordered an immediate embargo on the export of soybeans and other livestock feed in an emergency effort to stave off domestic shortages of meat, poultry, and milk.

Prodigal son changes ending of the story

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI) — Henrique de Freitas ran away from home when he was six years old. Thirty-seven years later, he knocked on his mother's door.

At first, Rosa Mattos Pribur did not recognize her 43-year-old-son. But he recalled so many incidents of his early childhood that she finally invited him in.

He told her he wanted to work hard, become prosperous and take care of her in her old age. She spoke to the parish priest, who gave Henrique a job as a $1.50 a day laborer at the the Roman Catholic church of Saint Anthony of the Poor.

Thursday, four weeks after his homecoming, Henrique ran away again. This time, he took with him the church's $300 monthly payroll and housekeeping fund.

By LEE MITGANG
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — It looked as if stock prices had gone up this week on the New York Stock Exchange. There was a three-day blue chip rally, one of the best of the year. But investors held stubbornly to the sidelines and Wall Street observers got the feeling the rise was only an illusion.

Buying in blue chips—much of it attributed to institutional "window dressing" for the second quarter report—lifted the Dow Jones industrial average more than 25 points in the three sessions. Losses Monday and Friday cut the gain to 11.89, with the popular indicator closing at 891.72.

Declines, however, outnumbered advances, 917 to 806, among the 1,955 issues traded.

Trading, sluggish for months, tapered off to 61,911,540 shares, compared with 65,152,449 the week before, and 66,096,743 a year earlier.

Wall Street began the week jittery over what John W. Dean 3d might say to involve President Nixon in a coverup of the Watergate facts. The Dow plunged over 10 points to an eighteen-month low of 869.13.

Analysts explained the fall by pointing to a parade of economic concerns, including the increasing evidence of a squeeze on corporate profits from both inflation, and Nixon's cure for it, along with renewed upward pressure on prime lending rates.

Some, like Monte Gordon of Dreyfus Corp., argued that the details of outside news had little effect on the market. "Wall Street has become toughened against the bits and pieces of bad news that comes its way. What it's looking at now is the way the general current is running," Gordon said.

And, in fact, for reasons having nothing to do with the world outside Wall Street, the market began a three-day rally Tuesday that centered largely on blue-chip buying.

Most observers placed little significance in the advance. Although some of the averages showed impressive gains, the breadth figures on all three days of the rally demonstrated how limited the participation was. The economic backdrop had not shown any improvement that would account for the rise and, most importantly, volume on all three days was light.

The gains drew this cryptic evaluation from Lucen Hooper of W.E. Hutton: "These days, its a victory if stocks don't go down."

Some observers said the rise was made possible partly by improvement in Wall Street's attitude toward Dean's Watergate testimony as the week wore on. Newton Zinder of E.F. Hutton said, "The impact of Dean's testimony is wearing a bit thin now Wall Street discovered that America survived and so we saw some scattered buying.

Much of the blue-chip buying during the three-day rally came in large blocks, indicating pension and mutual funds were loading up on prestige issues in time for the end-of-June display of portfolios for shareholders.

The rally petered out Friday, having attracted no real interest. Heightening the caution that has hung over the stock market for months, the German government announced a 5.5 per cent revaluation of the mark. Investors, not knowing what to make of the move, stayed away.

After the close Friday, the Federal Reserve Board raised its discount rate for the sixth time this year—to 7 per cent, the highest rate member banks ever have had to pay for funds they borrow. Almost immediately following that announcement, Girard Bank of Philadelphia boosted its prime lending rate by ¼-point to 8 per cent, a move expected to foreshadow a general rise next week.

UAL, Inc. was the week's volume leader, and lost ⅜ to 16 ¼ on 1,020,800 shares. American Medical International (ex dividend) was second, off 3 to 7 ⅞ on 868,400 shares. Levitz Furniture followed, and dipped ⅛ to 6 on 766 400 shares.

Among stronger blue chip stocks, Honeywell rose 6⅜, DuPont 6 ¼, J.P. Morgan 5 ¾, Burroughs 5⅝, and Eastman Kodak 4 ⅛.

Gold mining issues also were gainers, with the price of bullion soaring amid an uncertain monetary climate 4 ¼, Campbell Red Lake 3 ⅞, Dome Mines 2 ⅞.

Glamors were mixed. Corning Glass added 3 ¼, Xerox 2 ⅞, and Polaroid 2 ¾, while Avon Products declined 7, and ARA Services 3.

Superior Oil was the week's largest net loser, off 19 ½. Other oil issues advanced, including Getty, up 6, Standard Oil of Ohio 4 ⅜ and Exxon 3 ½.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — The recent announcement by the Nixon administration of a relaxation of corporate dividend payments "coincided with the news of continued strong inflation with the cost of living up at a 7.2 per cent level, the boost in the prime rate to 7 ¾ per cent, and continued weakness of the dollar," according to Harris, Upham & Co. Until these and political problems are resolved, the firm says, "the market will remain basically in an unsettled state. A rally from this level, however, is indicated."

Negative factors have been overemphasized recently and have, by and large, been discounted by today's stock prices, according to Moody's Investors Service. But the firm says stock prices will really rise "until confidence becomes a more prominent attribute of the investment community."

Business World—mergers

Ex-workers hit hard by halts in pensions

By LEROY POPE
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — The federal government reports that termination of pension plans as a result of mergers, acquisitions and other corporate restructuring in 1972 caused 8,400 workers to lose more than half their pension benefits.

This is a tiny proportion—only 0.04 per cent—of the people covered in private pension plans, but the individual tragedies often were stark. Take Robert Platt who worked 47 years at a woodworking mill in Hudson, N.Y., and now can't collect a dime. Platt was laid off when he was 64. A year later, when he applied for the $94-a-month pension he expected, he discovered the pension plan had been terminated a month earlier as the result of a merger, leaving him out in the cold.

Equally stark pension tragedies are caused by personal bad luck. Moriz Dreyfus of Philadelphia worked 2 years for one firm and became a sales executive looking forward to a pension of $700 a month. Then his firm became involved in three successive mergers leading to pension plan changes and demotion for him.

These injustices, resulting from inadequate vesting and funding of private pension funds, make many peoples' tempers boil. They also have prompted Sen. Harrison Williams, D.-N.J., Sen. Jacob Javits, R.-N.Y., Rep. John Dent, D.-Pa., and other legislators to push for pension reform.

No pension plan

Chairman William H. Moore of Bankers Trust Co of New York, an expert in pensions, says preoccupation with such individual tragedies appears to cause people to overlook the most important fact about pensions—that "a majority of industrial workers in this country do not participate in any private pension plan at all. They are entirely dependent on social security benefits."

Other observers of the pension reform movement have made much the same point.

Moore advocated greater incentives to encourage small employers to set up pension plans. He suggested that pension tax exemptions for self-employed persons be raised from the current maximum of $2,500 to $7,500.

The $2,500 maximum is allowed only if it doesn't exceed 10 per cent of income.

Pension reformers obviously have not been too concerned up to now about expanding private pension protection because industry has shown an eagerness to expand the coverage in recent years. In 1940, only 4.1 million Americans were enrolled in private pension plans. By 1971, there were 30 million, and 5.25 million retired workers were living on pensions. Assets of private pension plans had multiplied 60 times to $15 billion and benefits paid out each year exceeded $8 billion. Union negotiations and corporate management decisions are accelerating this growth.

Management finds good pension systems an asset in recruiting and holding desirable workers. The attitude of the worker fast is becoming that a pension is a right, not a benefice from the employer. Employers seem to be veering towards the same view.

The American private pension system is purely voluntary. No federal or state laws compel it, and the pension reform bills pending in Congress do not seek to coerce business into adopting a pension plan.

The chief barrier to expansion of private pensions is the cost to small businesses. Conceivably Congress could legislate relief in that area.

Bills pending, however, aren't concerned with that problem. They are more concerned with:

—Early vesting, which means that after a comparatively few years of service with a company, a worker acquires a vested right in a pension fund which cannot be totally lost even if the company is merged or goes broke.

—Adequate funding that requires management and the workers to contribute enough each year so that the fund will have enough to meet pension claims as the workers retire.

— Fiduciary responsibility, rules to keep management from treating pensions funds as its own capital and to curb such dubious practices as investing the money in the company's own stock or making loans to some personal venture of the big boss or his relatives or friends.

Private plans

The insurance industry, which underwrites a substantial number of private pension plans, has been urging Congress to insist on a fairly high level of reinsurance for private funds. This would provide that either an insurance company or a government insurance fund would step in and pay all benefits if a pension fund was unable to pay because of termination or mismanagement.

Bankers Trust Chairman Moore said high re-insurance of pension funds also has its perils. It costs money.

Moore said a high level of reinsurance in pension funds also might tempt corporate managers to contribute only minimum amounts to the funds leaving them inadequately financed. The theory, of course is that if things go too badly, the insurance company will have to come to the rescue. That could drive costs still higher.

Moore said unduly high reinsurance of pension funds also might cause "overly aggressive unions" to bargain for expensive past-service pension benefits in wage packages. Past service benefits are those granted to workers to cover their service in years prior to establishment of a pension fund.

Existing federal rules regulating pensions do not require a company to put up any funds to cover these past service benefits when it creates a pension fund. It only has to pay annual interest on their paper amount. As Moore sees it, granting excessive past service benefits merely because an insurance company ultimately might have to pay them would be unsound.

Finland, Sweden and some other countries have pension systems with compulsory insurance backing and they seem to work well. Prof. Dan McGill of the University of Pennsylvania's Wharton School has been urging an insured pension plan in America.

The Williams-Javits bill contains a reinsurance requirement for private pension funds but Moore is not alone in being skeptical about compulsory reinsurance. Ford Motor Co. said it didn't see why it should be required to pay an estimated $2 million a year in pension insurance premiums when Ford can adequately fund its pension trust itself.

Other businessmen have said that reinsurance would lead to abuses, to grossly inflated pension demands just as automobile insurance has led to grossly inflated accident damage claims.

Then there are critics like Ralph Nader who wants to replace the present voluntary private pension system with one having far greater government controls and some degree of compulsory expansion.

She collects 'gibberish'--- official words

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Although long-winded gibberish is stoutly rooted as one of bureaucracy's most insufferable by-products, there is a way to make use of it.

The slim, 27-year-old state worker has for the past two years compiled the brightest gems of "official" writing abuses and misuses in a monthly column she edits for a state agency newsletter. She calls it "gobbledygook."

A sample:

"In potential Problem Analysis, 20-20 hindsight in reverse is applied to identify future problems that may keep the plan from being successful." — From a training manual given department managers.

Frequently, although she admits it is "not always possible," Miss Schroeder includes a translation for the benefit of her readers.

The point of her column, besides entertainment, is "war on gobbledygook," which she defines as: "A word to describe the indirect and roundabout expressions that cloud the mind of those that use them as well as those that try to read them."

Some examples:

"The occupational incidence of the demand change is unlikely to coincide with the occupational profile of those registered at the employment office." —From a Department of Labor publication.

"The objective of this pilot study is to process transactions documents generated from these departments in a more rapid and accurate manner. The effort includes a substantial training process and major changes in the method by which documents flow. If this pilot effort is effective, there will be a major improvement in the speed with which transactions processing is completed." —From a state Personnel Board report.

The translation: If we succeed, we will have been successful.

Occasionally there are cases of official double-talk that need no translation. Here is Miss Schroeder's favorite:

Supervisor's account of the same accident —"Failure of (employe) to accurately estimate drawer closure speed for timely removal of digit."

That also illustrates one of Miss Schroeder's pet theories — that gobbledygook is a product of supervisors and middle-level executives.

"Those at the very top are pretty good writers. I guess that's one of the reason they're at the top," she says. "And ordinary employes seem to have little trouble making themselves understood, although they don't always have to write as much."

Then there are those cases that defy definition. The following was in the instructions of a state Personnel Board test:

"If you find a word in the narrative which could mean the same as the numbered word then on the anwer line on the answer sheet numbered the same as the numbered word, mark the answer which corresponds to the letter code of the line of the narrative containing the word you have chosen."

Her material comes from her own reading and clippings sent to her from other workers at the capital. But she is very strict that it must be genuine gobbledygook and not simwy technical language written from one expert to another.

Miss Schroeder insists that it almost impossible to understand. "Most of it," she says, "ends up in the garbage can."

Perhaps, she explain, bureaucrats "over intellectualize," wanting to sound important and offcial. Maybe it's easier just to fake something they don't quite understand.

A sign not far from her desk says:

"I know you believe you understand what you think I said, but I am not sure you realize that what you heard is not what I meant."

JUST UNDER THE TAG

DH Oliva clubs Halos

By BILL LANGLEY
P-B Sports Editor

ANAHEIM — Tony Oliva is not the same player who has won three America League batting championships.

The .313 career average slugger can only thank the league's designated hitter rule for still being in the Minnesota Twins' lineup.

It is a shame to watch Oliva run, remembering how he used to be one of the fastest runners in baseball.

Oliva ripped off four hits Saturday night to lead the Twins to a 6-3 win over the California Angels as he played a big part in the Twins' three two-run rallies in the first, fifth, and ninth innings. With the win, Minnesota has grabbed the first two games of the weekend series to take sole possession of second place in the weird American League West race while the Angels have dropped to fourth, 1½ games behind Oakland.

Four teams have held the lead this week in the West and the Twins threaten to become the fifth if they can sweep the Halos this evening.

The Angels, who have now lost three in a row after holding first place for two days earlier this week, had plenty of opportunities Saturday against Minnesota starter Joe Decker and reliever Ray Corbin.

It was a case of wasted chances as the Angels left 11 runners on base and failed to score five times when they got the leadoff batter on the basepaths.

California broke a 27-inning scoring draught by scoring two runs in the fifth inning on Ken Berry's double to narrow the margin to 4-2.

But Minnesota was able to score two insurance runs in the ninth to make a late rally more difficult.

The Angels did threaten in the ninth when pinch-hitter Winston Llenas drew a walk followed by singles by Vada Pinson and Tom McCraw for the third run. But Corbin, who relieved Decker after the seventh inning, got out of the jam when Mike Epstein flied to center and Rich Scheinblum hit into a force play.

Angel starter Andy Hassler, who was recently brought up from Salt Lake City, couldn't get through the first inning when the Twins jumped out to a 2-0 lead.

Minnesota scored its second run when Darwin was safe at the plate on a fielder's choice, but Barber was able to get out of the inning without further damage.

It quickly became 4-0 in the fifth when Lis doubled after Carew and Oliva singled.

Oliva hit a bases-loaded single in the ninth off of Dave Sells to account for Minnesota's final two runs.

It was a frustrating night for the Angel batters as plate umpire Marty Springstead called out four Halos on third strikes with each decision being hotly disputed.

ANGEL NOTES — It wasn't all bad for the Halos as their wives picked up a 5-0 "win" over the KMPC personalities in the preliminary. Ginny Singer, Bill's wife, did her part in being ejected for pitching a spitball.

Singer (12-3) will take the mound this evening for the Angels against Jim Kaat (8-6), Minnesota's veteran lefthander in the first of the 6 p.m. Sunday starts for July and August.

It will be a tripleheader today with the final game of the U.S.-Japan collegiate all-star series beginning at 2 p.m. A Fourth of July fireworks show follows the Angels game.

In a minor league trade, the Angels have sent righthanded pitcher Don Rose of San Dimas and infielder Bruce Christensen to Phoenix (Giants) of the Pacific Coast League for righthanded hurler Eduardo Figueroa.

Both Frank Robinson and Harmon Killebrew are missing the weekend series. Robinson, who could be used for pinch hitting, is on the sidelines with a jammed left hand while Killebrew, who hasn't played a game in Anaheim this year, is back in Minneapolis because of strained ligaments in his left knee.

Minnesota is 32-19 against righthanders but only 6-15 versus lefthanders. Strangely, the Twins are a healthy 23-14 on the road while 16-19 at Metropolitan Stadium.

Upland Tourney semis

La Verne faces Pomona

By CRAIG TRAVIS
P-B Staff Writer

UPLAND — La Verne will play Pomona Post 30 tonight at 8 p.m. in the semifinals of the championship bracket of the 13th Annual Upland American Legion Baseball Tournament at Upland Memorial Park.

In the other semifinal game, Palo Alto will test Tri-City at 5:30 p.m.

It's unfortunate that the two top teams won't be meeting in Monday's championship game, but because of the tournament seeding the La Verne - Pomona clash comes today.

In the consolation semis, West Covina will face Lafayette at 11:30 a.m. and South Pasadena tangles with Arcadia at 2 p.m.

Greg Ballard was the big gun for Post 30 Saturday as Big 'B' drove in Eddie Carmean with a scoring fly ball in the bottom of the fourth inning to give the Gems a 5-4 win over Lafayette in the opening round.

The Gems jumped out to a 5-0 lead behind the pitching of Ballard only to have Lafayette tally five runs in the top of the fourth to tie. The big blows were Dave Heckenlively's three-run home run and Dave Weis' solo blast. Weis' hit came off reliever Larry Pekarcik.

Post 30's winning run came when Carmean singled with one out and moved to third following back-to-back walks. Ballard then sent the fly to right allowing Carmean to trot home.

The Gems advanced to the semis with a game-winning home run by Jack Devers in the bottom of the seventh inning to stake the Pomona team to a 3-1 win over El Sobrante, who reached the second round with a 7-4 win over Montclair.

Bobby Chaulk, who was involved in a pitcher's duel with ES hurler Dave Gallino, started for the Gems and pitched five innings of one-hit ball allowing two walks while striking out nine and picking off two runners.

Ballard staked the Gems to their 1-0 fourth inning lead with a solo round-trip per, his second of the year.

Keith Hartley replaced Chaulk, who suffered a shoulder injury, and pitched the final three frames allowing one run and four hits while fanning three.

ES tied the game 1-1 in the sixth when Ray Canepa doubled and Steve Green reached first on an infield single and stole second, putting runners on second and third. Gallino, who had two hits in the game, singled to center scoring Canepa. But outfielder Keith Thomas threw a strike to catcher Jeff Corkill, nailing Green trying to score from second.

Cande Rael lead off the seventh with a hit for Pomona but was picked off. Carmean followed with a hit and advanced to third on back-to-back wild pitches by reliever Mike Fehrenkamp. Jack Devers, who had doubled earlier, then homered over the right field fence to preserve the win for Hartley (4-2).

La Verne reached the semifinal round by beating Upland, 6-4, in 12 innings Friday night before stopping the hard hitting Ontario club 5-2 behind the eight-hit pitching of Jim Vallone Saturday night.

Ontario jumped the La Verne southpaw in the first frame as Ralph Valdez hit a two-run homer.

La Verne cut the deficit to 2-1 in the third when Vallone helped his own cause by hitting a home run, his third of the year.

Vallone, who struck out three and picked off two runners, received helped from his teammates with a four run burst in the fourth inning.

A bases loaded walk to Dave Alexander forced across the first run of the inning. Jeff Jackson relieved started Eddie Rubidoux and inherited a 3-0 count. Jackson's first pitch to Vallone was wide, forcing across another run. Greg Thompson then followed with a two-run single.

Ontario reached the second round by romping past West Covina, 12-3, earlier in the day.

Tri-City reached today's semis by nipping La Puente, 2-1, and edging Chino, 6-4. Chino had beaten South Pasadena to advance to second round action. South Pasadena then preceeded to blank La Puente, 5-0, in the consolation bracket.

Palo Alto gets to today's semis for beating Arcadia, 4-1, and nipping Covina, 3-2. Covina had advanced to second round play via a forfeit from San Gabriel. Arcadia then moved into the consolation round and beat San Gabriel, 7-5, to oust them from the 16-team tourney.

Montclair was ousted from the tourney having lost to El Sobrante, 7-4, in the opening round and to Lafayette 14-7 in the consolation round.

West Covina having lost to Ontario 12-3 in the opening round came back in the consolation bracket to trounce Upland 13-1.

Mayer derails Nastase to highlight Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Unseeded Alex Mayer, the American intercollegiate champion, sent top seed Ilie Nastase of Romania reeling out of the 87th Wimbledon lawn tennis championships Saturday with a 6-4, 8-6, 6-8, 6-4 win which put him in the last eight of the men's singles.

Mayer, the 21-year-old fast court specialist from Wayne, N.J., subdued the fiery Nastase with blistering service returns and then picked him off with a near-faultless volley game that had the Romanian wishing he had boycotted the tournament along with his fellow Association of Tennis Professional (ATP) pros.

Nastase, evidently rattled when Mayer notched up the opening two sets, took his frustrations out on the crowd and an elderly line-judge who foot-faulted him. He drove a ball hard into the canvas inches from the judge at the start of the third set and frequently told the crowd to "shut up."

Mayer, an amateur not competing for prize money, will play eighth seed Jurgen Fassbender of West Germany for a place in the semi-finals. Fassbender defeated his doubles partner Hans-Jurgen Pohmann 6-2, 7-5, 6-3.

Jimmy Connors gave the United States its only other quarterfinalist when for the second consecutive year he reached the last eight — this time with an easy 6-3, 6-3, 6-2 win against Bernie Mitton of South Africa.

The left-handed fifth seed from Belleville, Ill., will face the fourth seed, Russia's steady Alex Metreveli, who today down Britain's unseeded John Feaver, 8-6, 6-4, 6-1.

Indian Davis cup player Vijay Amritraj sprang the other upset of the day by ousting Owen Davidson of Australia, the seventh seed, 7-5, 8-9, 6-3, 6-4. He will clash with second seed Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia who sidelined another Indian, Jaidip Mukerjea, 6-4, 3-6, 6-4, 6-3.

Sweden's Bjorn Borg, the sixth seed, also made the last eight in his first senior appearance at the $147,800 championships, but had to fight off Hungary's Szabolcs Baranyi 6-3, 6-2, 6-8, 5-7, 6-1. He will meet third seed Roger Taylor of Britain, another ATP rebel, who defeated the only other American with a chance for the quarterfinals, Bob McKinley of St. Ann, Mo., 6-1, 7-5, 6-8, 7-5.

Second seed Billie Jean King of Hilton Head, S.C., Chris Evert, No. 4, from Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., and Rosie Casals of San Francisco will represent the US challenge in the women's quarter-finals after comfortable wins today.

Mayer's win was the first major upset of the All-England tournament in a first week which saw all the seeds progressing smoothly.

Mayer, who played with a bandaged right thumb, said he had a plan to beat the 26-year-old Romanian.

"I knew Nastase stood far back to receive service. I decided to serve him short and then try to pass him on the volley when he came in. It worked," said Mayer, who paid his own way over to Wimbledon.

Australia's Margaret Court, the top seed, and Mrs. King, the defending champion, led the way into the last eight of the women's singles. Mrs. Court had an easy 6-1, 6-4 win against Briton Glynis Coles but Mrs. King was not on such good form, needing three sets to down Australia's Lesley Hunt 64, 5-7, 6-0.

Superdome is some place

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Just up Poydras Street from the majestic and muddy Mississippi and just a few blocks from the delights of the French Quarter stands the latest effort in one of this era's chief projects—to fill the land with splenderous sports palaces.

But the Superdome (that's its official name), a titanic structure which all but blots out the city's skyline, is more than a sports palace.

Almost every public happening in New Orleans beginning late next year is going to happen within the circular walls of the 273-foot tall, 52-acre, $153 million building.

There will be conventions— sometimes two or three at a time—going on inside Superdome. Restaurants will be open for anyone who wants to come in and enjoy the cuisine. Most of the entertainment spectaculars which come to the city will be performed there.

At least one Mardi Gras parade will take place in the Superdome.

People will have their offices in the building—a group of doctors already has leased office space for a clinic and will pay $127,596 a year in rent.

Even when nothing is going on, the building will be making money as one of the world's largest parking garages. There are 5,000 parking spaces in the complex which, because the structure is on the edge of downtown, will be used by commuters every weekday.

And, of course, there are the sporting events — everything from football to polo with the 1975 Super Bowl already on the calendar. In its football configuration, the stadium should pack in about 70,000 fans.

"We have been able to go to school on all the other stadiums in the country," said William J. Connick, secretary-treasurer of the public commission which oversees the project. "We are doing what is best for New Orleans."

What is best for New Orleans has turned out to be by far the largest sports, convention and entertainment building in the nation. Houston's Astrodome would fit inside the Superdome.

"Don't get us wrong," said Connick. "We are not trying to downgrade the Astrodome to our friends in Texas. The Astrodome took great courage to build and great foresight.

Dodgers edge Reds in 13th on Mota hit

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Manny Mota doubled and came home on Lee Lacy's two-out single off reliever Ed Sprague in the 13th inning Saturday night, giving the Los Angeles Dodgers an 8-7 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

George Culver, the last of five Dodger pitchers, blanked the Reds over the last two innings to pick up his fourth victory against four losses. The loss was the third straight against no victories for Sprague, one of six pitchers used by the Reds in the game.

Cincinnati's Joe Morgan, sidelined with an upset stomach, came off the bench in the ninth inning and hit a two-run pinch homer off lefty Pete Richert to tie the game at 7-7.

Morgan's homer, his 10th of the season, wiped out a 7-5 lead the Dodgers had taken with a six-run splurge in the eighth inning.

The Dodgers, trailing 5-1 entering the eighth, sent 11 batters to the plate and collected five hits to score six times against relievers Clay Carroll and Pedro Borbon. A two-run double by Ron Cey and a two-run single by Dave Lopes highlighted the rally. Cey also tripled home a run in the sixth.

A two-run homer by Tony Perez, his 13th of the season, off Claude Osteen, gave the Reds a 2-0 lead in the first inning. They went ahead 5-1 in the sixth when Bobby Tolan homered with two runners on base.

Notre Dame's Layden is dead

CHICAGO (UPI) — Elmer Layden, 166-pound fullback in the storied 1924 "Four Horsemen" backfield at Notre Dame and former commissioner of the National Football League, died Saturday evening at a Chicago hospital.

Layden, 76, was head football coach and athletic director at Notre Dame from 1934 to 1940 and was NFL commissioner from 1941 until 1946, the World War II years. He later became an executive of a Chicago area transportation firm.

Athletics regain first place in west on homers by Jackson, Bando

..By United Press International

Two home runs by Reggie Jackson and another by Sal Bando sent Wilbur Wood down to his sixth straight defeat Saturday as the Oakland Athletics regained first place in the American League West with a 3-2 decision over the Chicago White Sox.

Wood, now 14-11, was touched for back-to-back homers by Bando and Jackson in the first inning and Jackson's 16th roundtripper snapped a 2-2 tie in the fourth. Bando's homer was his 15th equalling his entire 1972 total.

The Kansas City Royals snapped a five-game losing streak with 8-3 and 4-2 victories over the Texas Rangers in a twi-night doubleheader. Amos Otis drove in two runs in the nightcap with a single and his 13th homer. Dick Drago scattered 11 hits and Steve Hovley belted a three-run homer in the opener.

The Royals broke Sonny Siebert's string of scoreless innings at 22 and innings without an earned run at 25 when they took a 1-0 lead in the fourth inning on John Mayberry's run-scoring single.

Roy White's pair of doubles and a single combined with a costly error by Cleveland third baseman Buddy Bell enabled the Yankees to win their 11th straight home victory, 7-3, over the Indians.

Mel Stottlemyre went all the way for New York, giving up only four hits to raise his record to 10-7.

The Milwaukee-Boston game was rained out.

Former Dodger Mike Strahler and John Hiller checked Baltimore on just four hits as the Detroit Tigers snapped a five-game Oriole winning streak with a 4-1 victory.

Another former Dodger, Duke Sims, and Tony Taylor singled home three runs between them and Mickey Stanley hit his eighth homer of the season to help make it easier for Strahler (2-1) who was making only his second American League start.

An error by Brooks Robinson in the first inning let Detroit score two unearned runs off loser Mike Cueller, 4-8, on two walks with two out and Sims' single.

Secretariat wins, but misses mark

But he added $75,000 to his bankroll with almost a walkover triumph against three rivals in the $125,000 Arlington Invitational at 1 1-8 miles for 3-yearolds.

The chestnut colt was clocked at 1:47 for the distance, a fifth of a second slower than the track record set six years ago by Damascus and four-fifths of a second slower than the world mark set four years ago by Figonero.

"If he'd touched him a couple times, or if he'd been pressed, he definitely would have set a record," trainer Lucian Laurin said. "He was slow coming out of the gate and the jock eased him up.

"But this horse picks his own time to race and he decided when he would go. If the jock had touched him, he would have done it."

Laurin said Secretariat "broke a little worse" from the gate and "he lost a couple of lengths," enough to deny him the record.

Secretariat, scoring his 13th win in 16 races and his sixth in seven this year, was the 1-20 odds-on favorite of the crowd at 41,253, which bet $224,505 on the race and $196,691 on Secretariat.

The backing was so heavy on the horse which many thoroughbred fans already rate as the greatest of all time, that there was a minus pool of $17,941.35 which the track had to lay out to pay off the Secretariat backers at the required minimum of five cents on the dollar or $2.10 for each $2 ticket. However, because many fans were believed to have bought win tickets on Secretariat for souvenirs with no intention of cashing them, the minus pool could be reduced.

Secretariat's winning margin was nine lengths, most of it attained with his drive in the home stretch. Coming out of the gate, he trailed all three opponents, My Gallant, Blue Chip Dan and Our Native, but before the field had reached the eighth pole was in front. But he appeared to be coasting and Laurin said jockey Ron Turcotte was holding him up until the horse decided to take off.

Trainer Lucien Laurin indicated that Secretariat probably would make his next start in the Travers at Saratoga and later could run in the Suburban at New York, facing older horses there for the first time.

My Gallant's second place finish under Craig Perret paid $30,000 to boost his bankroll to $143,520, while Our Native got $20,000 for third to raise his earnings to $336,844. Our Native was ridden by Tony Rini and Blue Chip Dan by Leslie Ahrens. All three carried 120 pounds.

Part of the crowd was admitted to the infield for the first time in Arlington history and several thousand were held outside the turf course rail until the horses were coming into the gate.

Then they broke through the lines, crossed the turf course and lined up against a second barrier some 15 feet from the dirt track on which Secretariat raced.

For the presentation of the trophy, they swarmed onto the main track and surrounded the area in which Mrs. Penny Tweedy, operator of Meadow Stable, and Laurin received the trophies.

Secretariat, Horse of the Year as a 2-year-old, is the ninth horse and the first in 25 years to win the Triple Crown events, he set a track record in the Kentucky Derby and an American and track record in the Belmont. He may be credited with a track record in his Preakness performance after a hearing to determine whether the automatic timer was faulty and denied him a mark.

EASY RIDE(R) — The great Secretariat flies easily across the finish line to win special Invitational at Arlington Park. Jockey Ron Turcotte had another easy ride in the $125,000 event.

Evans HR sparks Braves

By United Press International

Darrell Evans drove in three runs with his 20th home run and a sacrifice fly Saturday night to spark the Atlanta Braves to a 5-2 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

Evans' homer bettered by one his previous season high set last year. Winner Roric Harrison, 3-2, had a one-hit shutout through five innings but was lifted for reliever Ron Reed in the sixth when the Giants got to him for two more hits and an unearned run.

The loss was charged to Tom Bradley, 6-7, who worked only the first three innings.

Steve Arlin pitched a three-hit shutout and Dave Roberts drove in two runs with a double and a single to pace the San Diego Padres to a 3-0 triumph over the slumping Houston Astros. Arlin, now 4-5, didn't allow a runner past first base and gave up only one walk. He struck out 11 in pitching his first sh

Training to begin for NFL

NEW YORK (UPI) — Six coaches, one stadium and a seven-point drug porgram will be among the main new features when the National Football League kicks off the training camp season this week for its 54th campaign.

With the regular season still more than two months away, the Boston Patriots will be the first of the 26 pro football teams to open their training camp when Chuck Fairbanks, one of the six new coaches, blows his whistle this Satuday.

Five more teams, including the world champion Miami Dolphins who are fresh from last season's stunning 17-0 season, will open camp next Sunday and 10 more teams will open camps during that week.

Eight more clubs open their camp doors the week of July 16th. The Kansas City Chiefs who start on July 23, and the Minnesota Vikings, who begin July 25, will be the last clubs to get rolling.

Just two days after the Vikings start camp, the Dolphins will take on the College All-Stars in the annual classic in Chicago on July 27th to begin their seven-game exhibition "mini-season."

There was the usual off-season turnover in coaches and five men—Fairbanks, Don Coryell at St. Louis, Mike McCormack at Philadelphia, Howard Schnellenberger at Baltimore and Chuck Knox at Los Angeles—will be getting their first shot at a head coaching job in the NFL.

The sixth new coach is Don McCafferty, the popular "Easy Rider" who was ousted in the Joe Thomas purge at Baltimore last season after the fifth game but was hired to replace Joe Schmidt in Detroit. The calm, easy-going McCafferty is unique in a profession dominated by intense, driven men and he won't change in style in his new job.

The one new stadium in the NFL will be in Buffalo where the Bills will finally move out of old War Memorial Stadium to new Rich Stadium. But the New York Giants will be tossed out of Yankee Stadium after their first two home games so a two-year, multi-million dollar renovation can be started at the "House That Ruth Built."

Two of the new coaches—Fairbanks and Coryell—were college coaches. Fairbanks comes from Oklahoma and Coryell from San Diego State. Three other coaches now in pro ball—Dan Devine of Green Bay, John Ralston of Denver and Bill Peterson of Houston—made the direct jump from the college campus to pro ball. A sixth man who made the same jump, Tommy Prothro, was fired by new Los Angeles owner Carroll Rosenbloom.

The Miami coach, Don Shula, likes to think the Dolphins will be even better than last year, although he knows it can't be reflected in the team's record.

NO BIRDIE BY BAUGH — Young Laura Baugh reacts as she misses a short birdie putt on the fifth green in the Lady Tara Golf Classic. The 18-year-old Long Beach resident leads by two strokes.

Teen-age sensation Baugh nabs Lady Tara advantage

ATLANTA (UPI) — Teen-age sensation Laura Baugh fired an even-par 73 Saturday to take a two-stroke lead after the second round of the Lady Tara Golf Classic.

Miss Baugh, an 18-year-old playing in her first professional tournament, survived a double bogey on the 15th hole to finish at three-under-par 143.

First round co-leader Sandra Haynie came in with a 75 and was tied for second at 145 with Judy Rankin and Bonnie Bryant, who both shot 72s Saturday.

"I'm sure I'm going to be nervous tomorrow but it feels great right now," said Miss Baugh, who earned her LPGA playing card the day before the tournament began.

"I got really mad after that double bogey at 15 and I was determined to get that birdie at 16."

Sharon Miller, who switched to cross-handed putting, shot a three-under-par 70 and was all alone at even-par 146. Mary Mills shot a 70 for a 147.

All-time LPGA money leader Kathy Whitworth had a 75—150 total, and Jane Blalock, who won here in 1970

"I just got tired," said Miss Haynie, who held the lead most of the day but finished with a fat four-over-par 40 on the back nine of the Indian Hills Country Club course. "I just flat gave out—I was wondering when it would happen."

Miss Baugh, of Long Beach, Calif., finished the day just as she had the opening round—without a bogey. The double bogey at 15 was the only hole she played over par.

"I was playing pretty steady out there but I just fell asleep at 15," the dimpled, blue-eyed blonde said. "I feel like I could have played better.

"It's great to be in this position but most of the time I like to come from behind."

"When you know you're behind and you catch up on the final holes, it's just a great feeling. I'll go out there tomorrow and play the best I can and see if it holds up," Miss Baugh said.

Former Hawks player sentenced to 15 years

MARIETTA, Ga. (UPI) — Former Atlanta Hawks basketball player Tom Payne was sentenced to 15 years in prison Friday night after being convicted of rape and aggravated sodomy in an attack on a 42-year-old woman.

It was the second rape conviction for the 7-foot-2 former University of Kentucky center, who has served 13 months on a two-year sentence in neighboring Atlanta. Payne faces additional charges in nearby DeKalb County.

An all-white jury of seven men and five women deliberated for four hours before returning the verdict following a three-day trial.

In an emotional statement after the verdict was read but before sentencing, Payne stood up and told the jury, "I'm a man. I'm all man. I stand seven-two ... I'm proud and I don't lick anybody's shoe."

Payne also faced the victim who had identified him as her attacker and said, "I'm telling you right now I never saw that women in my life before I came into this courtroom."

"Oh yes you have,' replied the woman.

Payne, who faced a possible death sentence on the rape conviction, sat quietly as the verdict was read, tightly gripping the hand of his wife.

Bugner predicts win

LONDON (UPI) — European champion Joe Bugner predicted today he will prove too fast and elusive for former world heavyweight titleholder Joe Frazier when they meet in a 12-rounder at Earls Court Monday night.

The 23-year-old Hungarian-born Bugner, who will have a height and reach advantage of five inches, said "I am going to jab and move, jab and move, and Frazier won't catch me in the 20 foot ring."

Frazier's reply when asked his opinion on that summation was unprintable.

The American's manager Yank Durham said Joe has reached the stage "when I hang the 'Do Not Disturb' notice on his room. He's real mean and frosty. That's a good sign."

Frazier has done very little talking since arriving here to complete training for the fight, his first since losing his title on a second round knockout to George Foreman on Jan. 22.

"I know that if I lose that will be the end of my chance to get Foreman back in the ring." Frazier said. "But I ain't gonna lose."

Most questioners have had to be satisfied with agrowled, "We'll wait until ring time Monday," when asking how Frazier expects to handle the big Briton.

The one thing Frazier has been at pains to elaborate on is that "the Clay (Muhammad Ali) fight and the Foreman knockedout have not affected me. All this talk about me being washed up is just hot air and I'm gonna prove that Monday."

Frazier's final training sessions and sparring performances sparked the usual prefight rumors that the ex-champ is not in peak condition, is taking the Bugner fight too lightly and has weight problems.

Durham said Monday's weigh-in "will show Joe is in great shape, but I got a little annoyed at reports he's been living it up since we arrived in London. It's just not true.

"Joe likes music and so he goes to the Playboy Club once or twice to listen to some after training. So they take a couple of pictures of him with some girls. It's just publicity, it don't mean anything."

Crampton leads Western

CHICAGO (UPI) — Australian Bruce Crampton, an early favorite and pro golf's biggest money-maker this year, swept into the third round lead of the Western Open golf tournament Saturday, nudging early leader Hale Irwin and hot challenger Billy Casper aside with a five-under-par round of 66 and a 54-hole total of 201.

Crampton was only two strokes off Friday's 133 pace set by Irwin heading into the three-quarter stage of the 72-hole grind.

He made his run for the lead with four birdies on the first nine holes, and five more coming in. His card was 12 strokes under par for the 54 holes over the 6,654-yard Midlothian Country Club layout, which Crampton called "a not very demanding golf course."

Crampton's view appeared to be borne out by the fact that 45 of the 77 tourney players were hitting under par 71.

"I hit about all my shots solidly today. But actually, I didn't have as good fairway positions as I had yesterday," said Crampton, who had a 69 Friday.

"I had a poor pitch on the 13th and missed a chance for a birdie there, and another bad pitch on the 14th to miss another good crack at a birdie," Crampton said.

"This is not a tight course. You hit more accurately on a tight course because you have to, I guess. I could have done better, but tomorrow is another day and the final one."

Crowding Crampton in the race for the $35,000 winner's share was Billy Casper, who fired a third round 67 for a 54-hole card of 203. One stroke behind at 204 was Irwin who called it "a very bad day all around, especially in putting."

"I had many chances to make birdies, but I missed them. But I'm still in there, and I hope that was my bad round of the tournament," Irwin said.

Irwin, a former all-Big Eight football player at the University of Colorado, started off his unsatisfying play by bogeying the 353-yard second hole. He missed the 15th green for a bogey five, and he was wide again when he fired a two-iron for the 17th green.

Casper, the 1969 Western Open winner, turned in a four-birdie card in his 67 round, and said he "played as well as I could expect."

"I'm in good position for the finale."

Arnold Palmer's 68 in the third round gave him a 205 and left him in fourth position. At 206 were Miller Barber, Larry Hinson and Rich Crawford. Lee Trevino had a 207.

ABA Spurs name Nissalke coach

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — The San Antonio Spurs, who used to be the Dallas Chaparrals, have reached back into the salad days of early 1972 when the team finished well and hired the coach who made it all happen.

The Chaps won 26 of their last 42 games that 1971-72 season and Coach Tom Nissalke won Coach of the Year honors.

Then he jumped leagues to try and put the NBA Seattle Supersonics back together again. It didn't work and he was fired. For Nissalke, the rehiring by the Spurs makes it like the past year never happened.

"It's not often in sports you get an opportunity to rectify an error in judgment," Nissalke, 37, said Friday. "I rehave stayed in Dallas and salke 37, said Friday.

Spurs General Manager Jack Ankerson appeared happy to have Nissalke aboard but he put his feelings a bit differently.

"I think it is an extreme compliment to Coach Nissalke that he was our choice for a job that was sought by a number of outstanding and qualified coaches with both collegiate and pro experience," said Ankerson.

Nissalke was not the first choice of the Spurs, who were interested in several coaches and had tried hard to lure Norm Stewart from Missouri.

Nissalke jumped after that happy Dallas ending for a fat contract with Seattle. The next January he settled out of court with Seattle owner Sam Schulman and by that time the Chaps had left Dallas.

Royals pass million mark

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Attendance at Kansas City Royals' games passed the million mark for this season Friday night, the earliest point ever in the club's five seasons.

The Royals said Saturday that 1,005,597 paying fans had attended their first 78 games at home and on the road this season. Previously the earliest point the attendance mark was passed was after 82 games in 1971.

The Royals dedicated a new, 40,613-seat stadium this year, and 596,754 fans have attended games there.

If a retired quarterback from Mt. Vernon, Texas, can learn to fly, so can you.

Schaefer 500 on tap today

Johncock goes for second leg

Johncock, the 36-year-old wheelman from Mount Pleasant, Mich., won the abbreviated Indianapolis classic and will drive the same No. 20 STP Eagle that brought him victory in the rain-shortened, 332.5-mile Indy, opening race in this year's triple crown 500 series.

A win on the 2-½-mile, Pocono tri-oval track and in the Ontario 500 at Riverside in California next September would complete the sweep for Johncock.

Johncock, who declared bankruptcy earlier this year, earned $236,022 for winning Indy, but the money has been tied up in legal proceedings connected with the declaration.

In addition to aiming for the top money prize here, Johncock can take the lead in the United States Auto Club championship driver standings. Only 15 points separate the top three drivers. Roger McCluskey has 1,255 points, Billy Vukovich 1,250 and Johncock 1,240. At Indy, Vukovich and McCluskey trailed Johncock across the finish line.

Johncock, unfortuntely, ran into mechanical difficulties during qualifying runs last Saturday and postponed his attempt until the following day. He averaged 187.578, good enough for only the eighth row on the grid.

Millionaire driver Peter Revson of Redondo Beach, Calif., won the Pocono pole position with a record four-lap qualifying speed of 190.648 miles an hour in a Gulf McLaren-Offy. Lined up with the handsome international driver are Al Unser of Albuquerque, N.M., who qualified at 190.567, and Mario Andretti of Nazareth, Pa., 190.164. Unser and Andretti, Viceroy teammates, are driving Parnelli-Offys.

Winners of the first two Schaefer 500's are in the lineup, too. Mark Donohue of Newtown Square, Pa., won the 1971 inaugural and gained further driver recognition the following year by winning at Indianapolis. Joe Leonard of San Jose, Calif., the defending USAC champion, won here in 1972.

Donohue qualified last weekend with a 184.767 mph speed after experiencing some mechanical problems. The affable driving ace, considered the top chassis engineer in the sport, gained entry through a last minute ruling by the International Federation de L'Automobile (FIA) when it gave the Pocono classic a full international rating.

The 36-year-old Donohue gave up his USAC license earlier this year to race in the Sports Car Club of America-sanctioned L&M Continental series. Until the Schaefer 500 was ruled open to all international drivers, Donohue's license was not valid for a USAC event.

New restrictions go into affect for a USAC event beginning with the Schaefer. Serious injuries to Swede Savage and Dave Walther at Indianpolis last month brought the usual cries for abolishment of auto racing and the governing body decided to hush the critics with safety measures that would curtail speed and allow for less play with aerodynamic theories.

Cars can only carry a maxium of 40 gallons of fuel, instead of the 75 gallons previously permitted and their wing-size was reduced from a width of 64 inches to 55.

Football practice begins for All-Stars

By CURT WEBSTER
P-B Staff Writer

AZUSA — It's either the final game of last season, or the first game of the upcoming season, but however you define it, practice starts this week.

The representative squads of the East-West San Gabriel Valley All-Star Football Game take the practice field Thursday to tune up for their confrontation July 19 at Citrus College.

East coach Ken Gunn, who led Walnut High to a Hacienda League championship in 1972, admits that, despite the able assistance of Claremont High head coach Esper Keiser, preparation for the game presents a formidable challenge.

Since each team brings together 30 players from different high schools, molding a cohesive unit makes demands upon a head coach that he hasn't dealt with in his prior years.

"Team unity will be the biggest challenge," Gunn says. "And if we can't build unity we're going to get our tails kicked."

Whereas a coach has a number of weeks to sort a team out at his own school, game rules allow for a maximum of 12 practice days, so assignments have to be made quickly.

"We'll have to identify the kids quick and put them on offense or defense fast. We'll try to spend the first two days deciding where the kid looks the best. We have to prepare an individual to start one place, and back up another."

But while player diversity and time limitations place some burdens on the Gunn and Keiser staff, there are also some advantages the regular season doesn't afford.

Every player selected is a proven star performer at his position, so no time will be lost just teaching football.

"Most of the time at Walnut, we spend on straight fundamentals. We're sure not going to do that for an All-Star game," Gunn continues. "We won't change an individual's block or stance. It would be foolish."

This isn't the first All-Star assignment for either coach. "We were assistant coaches 2 years ago when Larry Zeno was the head coach," Gunn recalls. "We've been through it once from a different perspective. We're confident in knowing a few things about the situation."

Gunn plans to hold his practices at Citrus in the late afternoon, usually around 5 p.m. to escape the summer heat, and give players with jobs a chance to work and practice. Each workout will consist of time in the classroom, and two hours of work on the practice field.

Marsh enjoys Scottish lead

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (UPI) — Australian Graham Marsh sprinted clear of the field Friday with a brilliant third round of 68 in the $37,500 Scottish Open golf championship.

The 29-year-old has a seven-under par 54 hole total of 209. He started the day three shots in arrears but went birdie, par birdie, par, birdie, eagle for a four under par last nine of 32.

His closest challengers for the $6,250 are Britain's David Jagger who had a par 72 and Peter Oosterhuis after a 74, both on 214. Overnight leader Alistair Thomson had a 77 for 215.

The fierce winds sent scores soaring and only one other player, 20-year-old South African Dale Hayes, bettered par. Hayes had a 69 to lift him to 216 along with Manule Ballesteros of Spain (74) and Britain's Brian Barnes (75).

Albuquerque set with Kansas City

ALBUQUERQUE (UPI) — Albuquerque, the newest entry in the Central Hockey League, Wednesday signed a five-year working agreement with Kansas City, an expansion club in the National Hockey League.

League officials also approved a playing schedule for the 1973-74 season with Albuquerque taking on Omaha at Albuquerque and Dallas playing Ft. Worth on Oct. 12 to inaugurate the season.

Don Bradley

Tee to Cup

Golf writer Mike Rawlinson is on vacation. For the next three weeks "Duffer Don" will be doing the weekly column.

A regular visitor of Mike's, golf coach Phil Roche of Covina High dropped by and offered the following observations and comments on one of the courses he and a group of friends had played.

Who says Oakmont is tough? Pebble Beach a challenge? Firestone Country Club a rugged test? Nonsense. The pros have never played Mountain Meadows.

They've never hit off the lush, long fairways of the venerable old course, never putted the beautiful, undulating greens there, played through the cool spray of sprinklers on almost every hole, landed in one its grassy sand traps, or lost a ball on the marvelously maicured tees.

Los Angeles County officials are remiss in not taking a positive step toward improving Mountain Meadows Golf Course. They're still charging regular county prices to play the course, which is now a nine-hole layout sporty at that. But golfers are being shortchanged when they tee off on the hilly, short course.

We played the new nine holes this week and were thoroughly disappointed with the condition of the course. The new layout is splendid, but the greens are not mowed, the fairways allowed to grow almost wild. Most county courses are playing summer rules this summer, but golfers must play preferred lies at Mountain Meadows.

The greens are patched, bare in spots, unkempt, and putt differently on each hole. The cups, too, are not being changed often enough. They're no longer round, but square and rectangualr.

The persons responsible for laying out the new course have done an excellent job. With the new road cutting the course in half, golf officials had to come up with a new nine. It's a good one. Sorry we can't recommend your playing the course, however.

It's a shame too because county officials have an obligation to keep the course playable, especially when they're charging $1.75, regular price, for nine.

Mrs. Wanda MacInnes of Walnut sank a 7-iron shot June 14 on the 115-yard 13th hole of the East course. Tim Esparza of Pico Rivera sank a wedge shot on the 107-yard second hole of te South-Course. H.F. Watson of Pacific Palisades sank a wedge shot on the 107-yard seventh hole of the South Course.

A golf tournament and celebration will be held Wednesday July 4 at the California Country Club in Whittier.

There will be a mixed foursome 18 hole tourney during the day. A dinner dance and fireworks display are scheduled for the evening. More than 100 couples are expected to compete.

Valentine's future at shortstop

LOS ANGELES (UPI) When Bobby Valentine returns to the California Angels' lineup after recovering from his broken right leg—and that probably won't be until next season—it will be as a shortstop and not as an outfielder.

At least that's the way the effervescent sparkplug of the Angels wants it.

"My future's at shortstop," Valentine said with stubborn resolve. "As soon as I get back, I want to win that job back for sure. As far as I'm concerned, there isn't any other position."

A part of the big off-season trade between the Angels and the Los Angeles Dodgers in November, Valentine was California's opening day starting shortstop April 6. That's where he spent most of the first six weeks of the season.

Ironically, he wasn't in the infield when he was injured May 17. The 23-year-old Angel was in centerfield and Rudy Meoli was at shortstop. Ken Berry, the Angels' regular centerfielder, was on the bench.

"It's not that Rudy isn't a fine shortstop," said Valentine. "He is. But I consider myself one of the best in the league at that position and I think I proved that this year."

The Angels of course, may have other ideas on Valentine's outfield potential. They considered the exuberant young man from Stamford, Conn., on a defensive par with Berry, a Golden Glove winner in 1972, before he fractured his leg by running into the outfield fence at Anaheim Stadium.

Valentine spent his first five summers of pro ball in the Dodger organization. At one point, he was being groomed as Maury Wills' successor. Instead, the Dodgers converted Bill Russell from an outfielder into a shortstop.

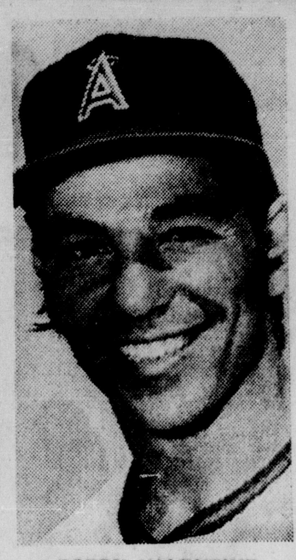
"I haven't written this year completely off," he said optimistically. "I hope to be back by the end of August. If we make the playoffs and the World Series, I want to be in the lineup."

Following doctor's orders, Valentine has been doing isometrics with his broken leg ("I bend it and straighten it out all day") to keep its atrophy at a minimum. He got a walking cast this week.

"I know I'm going to lose some inches," he offered, "but so far there's only an inch and a half difference and the doctor tells me that's not too bad."



BOBBY VALENTINE
. . . Angel sparkplug

Surprisingly, Valentine, hitting .302 when he was hurt has maintained a high morale.

"My spirits are fine," he remarked. "Maybe they wouldn't be if I was older and this would have happened but I know I have a lot of good years ahead of me. It helps too to know I'd been doing a good job before I broke my leg.

"If I would have been hitting .200 and sitting on the bench when I was hurt, that would have been a different story."

On the night he was carried from the field on a stretcher, the Angels lost to Oakland 4-0 and finished that day three games out of first place in the American League West.

"I'm not surprised," said the irrepressible athlete. "We have super pitching and I think our hitting is a lot better than it's shown. The hitters just haven't lived up to their potential. When they do, watch out."

Of the Dodgers, who are looking more and more as the team to beat in the National League West, Valentine said:

"They decided on a set lineup early and stuck with it and this has been the key. I'm surprised they got a lineup down pat so quickly but I'm not surprised at the results.

Valentine isn't bored with his pretty wife of one year, Roxana, but has asked the Angels to accompany them on two-week road trip starting Monday at Oakland.

Williamson wins Lottery

Williamson completed the two heats totaling 40 laps around the Monza track in one hour, nine minutes and 30.6 seconds for an average speed of 124.371 mph.

Patrick Depailler of France, driving an Elf 2, was right berind him in 1:09:22 while fellow Frenchman Jacques Coulon was third in another March BMW in 1:10:26.6.

The three leaders were the only drivers who clocked the full 40 laps in the race, the 10th in a series counting toward the European championship.

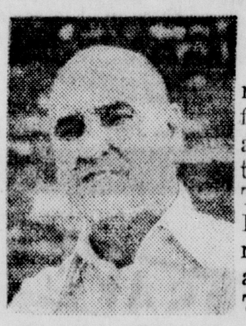
Mazda's rotary engine licensed by NSU-WANKEL

Mazda won't make exaggerated gas mileage claims. But we will tell you what owners tell us.

"My gasoline mileage runs around 21—with gas as low in octane as I can find. And as an airline pilot, I use a lot of throttle. The 727 I fly is almost as good as my Mazda."
Erik Elstad, Airline Pilot.

"Even with air-conditioning on, I don't lose performance. That's remarkable in a small car. And I'm getting 17 mpg. in town, up to 25 on the road. In 39,000 miles, I've found the rotary engine very reliable."
Peter Ostrye, Youth Counselor.



"Mazda stuck its neck out, building the first rotary-engine car, and helping to meet the smog problem. They deserve credit. I've rung up 35,000 miles. Highway average: 20.3, even at 70 mph., with air on."
Ed Gumny, Engineer.

"My husband lets me drive the RX-3 wagon once or twice a week. I love the way it goes up onto the freeways. It's like a jackrabbit. We get 18 to 20 miles per gallon on regular gas."
Mrs. Judy L. Cane, Homemaker.

"I averaged 20.1 mpg. on a 4,000-mile trip in my Mazda. Gas economy means a lot to me as a medical student at UCLA. But it means just as much that Mazda already meets the '75 standards for oxides of nitrogen."
Ron Morton, Medical Student.

"After Linda got her Mazda RX-2, I got an RX-3. I get 20 miles a gallon. She gets about a mile more. Linda says I'm the leadfoot in the family. Both cars are great hill-climbers in San Francisco."
Vincent Doherty, Printing Broker.

These figures are lower than what we could quote if we were to hire professional drivers to drive under ideal economy conditions. They're also more realistic.

The Mazda goes Hmmmmm.

Recreation

The Park and Recreation Departments of Pomona and La Verne will conduct baseball skills contests the next couple of weeks. The program goes under the banner head of "Play Bal with the Dodgers."

The Los Angeles Dodgers, Pepsi-Cola Bottling Company, and the Los Angeles County Department of Parks and Recreation, along with the local agencies, sponsor the event. The contest is designed for boys 9 through 14 years of age.

City champions move on to regional and later country-wide championships. The Southern California finals are planned for Dodger Stadium on Sunday, Aug. 12.

Since the Phillips Oil Company dropped their National Pitch, Hit, and Throw Contest this year, the Dodger skills event is the only one available to local youths. In the past, participation has been greater in the Pepsi-Cola sponsored activity.

Pomona plans area competition this Friday with city finals planned for July 13 at Westmont Park beginning at 1:30 p.m. La Verne will hold a city-wide contest on the same day beginning at 1:00 p.m at Roynon School.

Five areas are holding competition this week in Pomona. They are Emerson, Marshall, Fremont, and Simons Junior High, along with Westmont Park. Proceedings begin at 1:30 p.m. The top two in each division advance to the City Finals.

The boys will be competing in three divisions: 9-10, 11-12, and 13-14. All contestants receive a participation certificate with winners given first and second place certificates. City titlists receive medals and Dodger tickets.

Pomona's five contest sites will hold a practice event tomorrow at 1:30 p.m. This will familiarize the boys with each of the four skills. Additional practice may be held throughout the week depending on the demands.

Throwing for distance and accuracy, base running for time, hitting for distance, and bunting for accuracy are the events to be held. I have noticed the past couple of years that bunting usually determines the championship.

Attendance Up In Softball Action

Possibly the largest crowds in the history of Pomona's Adult Civic Softball Leagues have been attending games since league play began on June 4. The warm evenings have certainly contributed, as well as the tight competition.

Only three of the 68 squads remain undefeated as play moves into July. The teams with unblemished records are all in slo-pitch circuits. Convenient Food Mart has already nailed down the first-half title in the California League with a 7-0 mark.

Undefeated Bar-Nut Mavricks of the Grapefruit League hold a one game lead over the Perkin-Elmer Tigers with one to play in the first round. Coach Jerry Snow's squad put their 6-0 mark on the line Tuesday against Mel Bunnell (1-4) at Philadelphia Park beginning at 7:15 p.m.

The third team with perfect record is the Lincoln Avenue Reform Church, 7-0, of the Hawaiian League. Coach Dennis Beukelman's men have virtually wrapped up the first half holding a two-game lead with as many to play.

Coach Beukelman can be happy that he has Craig Travis at shortstop. Travis has not only been making the big play, but he is hitting at an .800 plus clip.

The slo-pitch leagues have their season divided into halves, with the two winners meeting for the championship. The fast pitch squads, however, play for the best overall record to determine the top spots.

Some real tight battles are building up in the fast pitch circuits. It will be awhile before any champions can be crowned. There are some teams, however, who could be in the thick of the races except they try to beat the officials instead of their opponents.

Every year some teams try this and meet with failure. Pomona officials overall are among the best in Southern California and yet some players continue to nit-pick instead of just playing the game.

Local managers had better inform their troops that they are chasing away higher calibre officials than they will receive in return. The situation has become so critical that teams may be asked to self-officiate games.

There was a complaint about pitcher Sal Martinez of the Tri-County P.D.C.A. in the Coast League lodged this past week. Some opponents contend he is a better thrower than "C" calibre which is the league classification.

What Sal did to cause such alarm was strike out the first six men to face him last Tuesday in a game against Orange Grove Sehll. Tri-County won the game 5-3 with the 44 Grove Shell. Tri-County won the game 5-3 with the 44 year old Martinez going the distance. Needless to say, there are no changes planned.

Pomonans enjoy softball leagues

By CRAIG TRAVIS
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — Someone once said 'All sportswriters and sportscasters are frustrated athletes,' which as far as this reporter is concerned is the truth.

But there are a lot of armchair managers and quarterbacks among you readers that have had many of the same unfortunate experiences in your athletic lifetimes.

Are dreams the only means we have of fullfilling our athletic endeavors? Evidently not. Approximately 1,440 sports buffs are participating in the Pomona Parks and Recreation Departments' softball programs.

The fast pitch division has 22 teams with six playing in the Coast League, eight in the National League and eight in the American League.

The slo-pitch division has 46 teams playing in five leagues, the California League (8), Hawaiian League (10), Florida (10), Cactus League (10), and the Grapefruit League 8).

Phil La Pierre, Recreation Supervisor in charge of Sports, reports no increase in the number of players this year but approximately 10 full teams were denied entry.

The reason for teams being turned away is lack of facilities. "We have access to five fields and are unable to handle more than 68 teams," said LaPierre. "Fourteen of the 22 fast pitch clubs returned while 41 slo-pitch teams are returnees to the program.

"To adequately meet the needs of our expanding programs, we would like to see at least three more fields become available. With better facilities we could incorporate the expansion of several other programs such as women's softball."

It seems that the summer softball programs have expanded at a sky-rocketing rate, why do you think this has happened?

"The reason for the expansion in softball is directly parallel to the expansion of youth baseball," added LaPierre. "Most of the kids grow up in the youth programs and continue to enjoy playing during the summer when they become adults.

School seems to set the pattern for life. The people spend the cooler months of the year inside their homes but when the warmer weather comes around people just naturally enjoy getting out. And with the warmer nights we've had recently, who wants to sit at home in a stuffy house and watch reruns on television. So not only do a lot of people participate in the programs, but a great many of them that have nothing to do with the teams come out to the different parks and watch the games."

The teams begin reserving fields in April, begin playing practice games in May (anywhere from three to five games) which are called classification games, and begin playing league games the first Monday in June until the 13th of August when the season concludes.

All teams pay entry fees, $100 per team in the fast pitch league and $90 in the slo-pitch league and are in titled to the Southern California Municipal Athletic Federation

Top boxers help club in La Verne

By CURT WEBSTER
P-B Staff Writer

LA VERNE —The gymnasium at LeRoy's Boys Home rarely gets the opportunity to host an event of statewide significance, but Saturday will see it get a chance at last.

The best that amatuer boxing in California has to offer will converge on LeRoy's for an exhibition that will have lasting significance for the area's young athletes.

The first LeRoy's Boxing Show is designed to provide spectators with a first-hand view of boxing as a competitive sport, but the real importance of the evening will be to kick off efforts to put together the La Verne Boxing Club.

The two top boxers in each division from flyweight to heavy will square off in exhibition bouts for trophies beginning at 7 p.m. The event is free to the public.

The show and club are principally the work of former featherweight boxer Frankie Sedillo—known in boxing circles as "Baby Face."

Sedillo's hope is to have a La Verne club competing in AAU competition within one month of the show. "We want to show that boxing isn't as brutal as what people see on television," Sedillo says. "It is a science, and we want to show boys what proper training can do."

Sedillo says that six-years-old is old enough to qualify for the program, and there is no such thing as an upper age limit. The club requires no fee from its participants, only their time and attention.

"The purpose of the club will be to teach boys discipline and respect. We'll teach them to throw punches, right and left jab, roll and weave, just anything. They'll be boxing in a month."

Sedillo stresses that newcomers to the sport will be matched ony againt boxers of similar experience, age, and physical dimension.

"That's what's wrong with boxing," Sedillo says of the practice of forcing inexperienced fighters to go against old pros. "Some of those fighters you see on television have no business there. Our boys will be taught the right way to compete in the sport."

As an added inducement for attendance at the boxing show, Sedillo has invited a number of prominent boxing personalities, including boxers the caliber of Mando Muniz.

post season tournament which has produced several local championships.

Three years ago the Garey Center Bowl won the Southern California A League Slo-Pitch title whereas the Flyers won the 1972 B League Fast Pitch championship while R-Patio (African Palace this year) went to the semi-finals of the A Division Fast Pitch tourney.

All types of people participate in the program. Many are formerhigh school and college athletes, some are teachers, some are frustrated athletes while some organizations sponsor teams just for the fun and fellowship.

Another major reason for Pomona's successful programs is because many of the cities don't have the facilities.

"We don't want to isolate our program from other communities so there are no residency rules on our programs. It not only adds to strengthening the program but the teams enjoy better competition," added the Parks and Recreation promotor. "Some of the finest players in the United States have either come from or have participated in the Pomona program.

"In fact, Duane Kampious, who used to pitch for the World Champion Pomona Bombers and is now living in Washington D.C., grew up in Pomona as did Dick Zuccatto, one of the top catchers in the country. Walt Cole, 46, who manages and plays for the Kings is one of the finest softball players ever and can still hit 'em out and throw a shutout."

The Slo-pitch leagues has Larry Hornaday, who grew up in the Pomona Little Leagues and is one of the finest slo-pitch players ever, Frank Wilson (both play for Convenient Food Mart and were members of Garey Center's So. Cal. titleists) can hit a softball as far as most people can baseballs. And for A League competition, the Teen Post has Luis and Bobby Smith.

Hank Saldivar, Umpire in Chief of the Pomona Valley Umpire Association, is always looking for new dedicated persons interested in officiating.

The softball used is 12 inches in circumference with the diamond consisting of 60-foot baselines and a pitching distance of 46 feet. The fast pitch games are seven innings in length with an hour-and-a-half time limit while the slo-pitch contests have one hour time limits.

In one league a pitcher is capable of throwing the ball anywhere from 50-90 miles per hour whereas in the other loop a pitched ball can attain the height of 12 feet and must have an arc in it.

Either way, the games are played fast, very competitively, and are a great deal of fun. The games can be seen Monday thru Friday evenings beginning at 6:30 until 10 p.m. and include double and triple headers.

Watts Games on schedule

LOS ANGELES —Over 5,000 athletes of junior and senior high school age from five Southern California counties are expected to compete this weekend in the 6th Annual Watts Summer Games (WSG) at Cal State University Los Angeles (CSULA).

Preliminaries in the team sports of basketball, football, soccor and volleyball were held last weekend at various sites in the greater Los Angeles area, with over 1,500 athletes participating.

According to Robert W. Miller, Chairman of the 1973 WSG for the sponsoring Los Angeles Junior Chamber of Commerce (LAJC), the highlight of this year's program is a greatly increased team sports program with the tournament in basketball increasing from 32 to 64 teams, football, 16 to 48 and soccer, 16 to 32 teams.

Fleck named head golf pro

MENOMONEE, Wis. (UPI) — Jack Fleck, the man who came out of nowhere to win the 1955 United States Open golf championship, Friday was named head golf professional at the North Hills Country Club.

Fleck was a no-name golfer when he beat Ben Hogan in a playoff for the 1955 title at Olympia Country Club in San Francisco.

Fleck now is head pro at Plumas Lake Golf and Country Club in Marysville, Calif. He has designed and built many courses, including President Nixon's course at the Western White House in San Clemente, Calif.

'Possum Trot Railroad

Last steam train to puff and roll again

READER, Ark. (UPI) — The Reader Railroad, better known in these parts as the 'Possum Trot Line" operated until last year as the nation's last regularly scheduled steam driven passenger and freight train.

The Reader, familiar to railroad buffs the world over, wound its 23.5-mile journey from the town of Reader south to Waterloo through such poetic stops as Goose Ankle, Dewoody Spur, Dills Mills and Anthony Switch.

When the Berry Petroleum Company's asphalt plant closed at Waterloo, the Reader lost its last important hauling customer and its owner, Tom Long of Shreveport, La. He reluctantly requested and received permission from the Interstate Commerce Commission to close his line.

"I would hate to see it vanish completely from the face of the earth," Long said at the time. "It's like one of my children.' When Long was in town he'd don a conductor's cap and punch tickets for the passengers.

Long tells the story of how the Reader got its other name, the "Possum Trot Line." That name came from a little community long since vanished that was a stop on the railroad. A critic from some other village disdainfully dismissed the land around the cluster of houses and general store as so poor "that a possum wouldn't walk on it." Would so, said the locals and took the name "'Possum Trot" for their own. Others nicknamed the railroad that and it stuck.

A number of Arkansans are interested in saving the Reader-Possum Trot, too. Among them is Richard Grigsby of Malvern, an oil company executive who helped form and became the first president of the Reader Railroad Foundation. The foundation's sole objective is to save the Reader from extinction.

It was successful in seeing a bill passed in the legislature earlier this year authorizing the state Parks and Tourism Department to issue revenue bonds totaling $250,000 to purchase at least a part of the railroad and preserve it as a tourist ttraction.

''We're thinking about people say from 25 to 40 who have children and would like to take a ride on a train pulled by a steam locomotive," said Grigsby, who characterizes himself as a certified railroad nut, "and also older people who'd like to relieve some experiences from the past.'

Mayor Edward Turner of Reader, population 229, is also a member of the foundation and an active Reader Railroad booster. He hopes to recreate some old town atmosphere in the railroad's setting, including a museum and restoration of the depot as it might have looked 100 years ago. Other plans include the possible refurbishing of a park and picnic area.

"We just don't want to see our little town die," Turner said. The Possum Trot Line has been the town of Reader's principal source of income since 1907, when it grew out of a logging road built that year. It officially became a common carrier in 1925.

During its last years the line utilized three steam locomotives and in 1963 initiated passenger service, mostly for the railroad buffs and tourists who wanted to ride it. The line weaved back and forth across Caney Creek on 126 bridges through rolling countryside giving rise to oak, pine and sweet gum woods.

There was a little park at Waterloo, the end of the line, where a basket lunch could be enjoyed in pleasant surroundings.

STEAMIN' UP AGAIN—This locomotive on the Reader, Ark., railroad steams up for another run on the 'Possum Trot Line after a year's layoff. It is getting ready to roll, backed by state of Arkansas.

Mini-sub victim's father asks new rescue system

NEW YORK (UPI) — The father of one of two marine researchers who died 360 feet underwater in a mini-submarine that fouled in the wreckage of a scuttled destroyer has called for immediate development of a quick and effective system for rescuing others who may be similarly trapped in the future.

"As man continues to invade the ocean depths," said Edwin A. Link, designer of the fatal sub, "similar accidents are bound to occur in spite of every precaution. The sole remedy— rapid, effective submarine rescue systems—must be designed and kept in strategic locations.

Link, who took part in the rescue operations off Key West, Fla., June 17 and 18 that saved two of the sub's four-man crew. said Navy and Coast Guard officers and men "worked throughout the day and night to the point of exhaustion to accomplish the impossible with the obsolete and inadequate diving systems at their command.

"Had it been a modern nuclear submarine with 100 men entrapped, the result could have been the same."

HARVESTING DEER ANTLERS — These Chinese youth are identified as builders of China's great North Wasteland as they work at collecting deer antlers in Heilungkiang Province. Deer are said to graze in the region's mountains there like sheep.

Realty president:

Beware of shady lenders in second mortgage loans

POMONA — Recent hearings in the state legislature on motgage lending practices have shown that it is still possible to be victimized by a fringe of shady lenders, said James Odom, president of the Pomona Valley Board of Realtors.

"Being spotlighted were the industrial loan companies and mortgage loan brokers who specialize in second mortgages," he added. "While most provide a useful service, there are among them those who prey on the unsuspecting, gouging carefully just inside the law."

Basically, the second mortgage is a device to tide a property owner over a financial bind. It may be used to refinance property, consolidate debts, provide money for paying taxes, remodelling and repairs, or to make up a shortage in down payment, Odom explained.

"Let's look at the latter as an example," he said. "A Family is buying a $25,000 house. The down payment required is $5,000, but it can scrape together only $2,500. So a lender agrees to provide the additional $2,500, taking a second mortgage on the property as security.

"The second mortgage typically has a higher rate of interest than the first trust deed and runs a comparatively short time, say five years at nine per cent. In case of default, the lender may foreclose on the property within certain rules."

The most frequent vehicle for gouging is the balloon payment at the end of the term, in this case, five years, he said. Payment on the mortgage probably is 1 per cent per month: in this example, $25. But at the end of five years, the low monthly payment has applied very little against the loan principal. The borrower still owes $2,028.50 and must pay that lump sum or be in default.

"Enter a lender who agrees to refinance the loan, but at a higher rate of interest and for a shorter term, say 10 per cent for three years. He may also charge various fees for processing the loan, tacking on as many as he can legally get away with. He may tell the borrower it will be necessary to take out a life insurance and disability policy as a condition for the loan, collecting an insurance brokerage fee for that as well," said Odom.

"He then takes those fees out of the proceeds of the loan at the beginning of the term, causing the face amount to increase. If he manages to tack on $500 in such fees, the face amount climbs to $2,528.50, higher than the original amount of the loan five years earlier."

The family now continues with a monthly payment of $25.29, if it remains at 1 per cent. At the end of the three-year term for the new loan, they will still owe $2,352.05 as a baloon payment, and the cycle begins again.

"There are other means of gouging, particularly through exhorbitant late charges. But basically, the balloon payment is the source of trouble for the unwary," he said.

"It is for this reason that in my work as a Realtor, when clients use the help of a second mortgage, I make sure they also realize their obligation. A lump payment due in three or five years may seem comfortably far away. But unless the family provides early for funds to meet it, the ballon can loom uncomfortable close and put an impossible strain on their finances."

W. J. Isaacs retires from county post

ONTARIO — William J. Isaacs, district supervising appraiser at the San Bernardino County Assessor's office here, is retiring after 19 years of service.

He began work for the county in 1954 as an appraiser in the Chino area. He was promoted to supervisor in 1961.

Isaacs is a member of the Society of Real Estate Appraisers, Upland Breakfast Lions Club, Red Hill Country Club, and Our Lady of Lourdes Catholic Church.

He and his wife reside at 816 W. H St., Ontario. They have two married daughters. Isaacs plans to become an independent fee appraiser.

At Orchard Lane:

Residents have time to swim and converse

UPLAND — Residents have time to enjoy the heated swimming pools, Jacuzzi pool and outdoor conversation areas at Orchard Lane, a $4.5 million condominium community here.

"Outdoor living amenities are especially nice when you can spend your time enjoying them instead of worrying about maintaining them," said Jim Noever, sales manager.

Maintenance services such as pool cleaning are handled by Orchard Lane's homeowners' association and the service fee is included in the monthly house payment.

"In addition, since landscape upkeep and other exterior home care problems are also taken care of regularly for Orchard Lane residents, they have more time to enjoy the outdoor living features that are available," he added.

Landscaped greenbelt and open space areas help create a pleasant environment for residents of the 134 condominium homes in the second phase. Each home also has a large private patio where residents can add their own landscaping touches.

Built by Fredricks Development Corp., based in Anaheim, the single story, two and three bedroom homes are priced from $19,900.

Sales at Orchard Lane are continuing at a steady pace with new residents moving into the community every week, said Noever.

The development is near Spencer Avenue and 7th Street. To reach the sales information center and model homes, persons can take Mountain Avenue to 7th, go west to Spencer Avenue, and north one block to Fredricks Lane.

WILLIAM KRAMER of 12726 Roswell Ave., Chino, has joined the sales staff at the Bill Murphy Realty Co. He will be involved in the sale of acreage plus commercial, residential and business properties. Kramer previously was a general building contractor and a poultry ranch operator.

GLEE GARNETT, salesman with Rosa Schwartz Realty of Claremont has won a Commonwealth Land Title Co. award for obtaining the most home listings during April and May. She has eight to lead the realty office staff. During a recent six month period, her listings and sales of homes represented $700,000.

Stabs wife to death for act 34 years ago

CROTONE, Italy (UPI) — Rosario Gualtieri, 75, stabbed his 70-year-old wife to death recently after learning she was unfaithful to him 34 years ago, police said.

Police said Gualtieri told them his wife confided to him recently that she committed adultery with several men in 1939 while he was serving in the army.

"I killed her for reasons of honor," police quoted Gualtieri as saying.

Snakes move through a forward and backward motion of their ribs on the underside of the body.

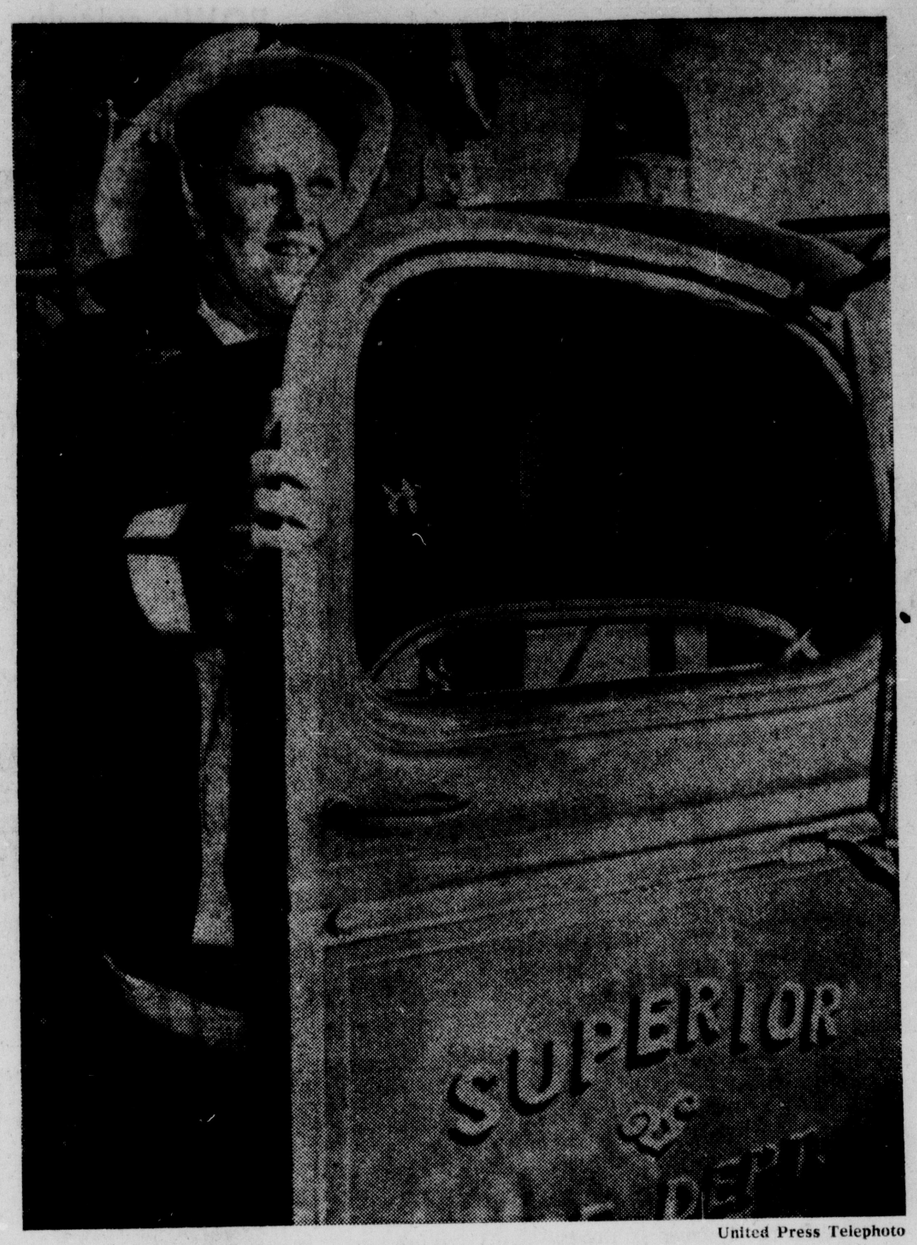
Women blaze new trails, fight fires



United Press Telephoto

YES, SHE'S A 'FIREMAN' — Marlene Machin, 35, wife of Chief Jack Machin of Superior, Colo., is one of six women who comprise the day crew of the town's volunteer fire department.

By DANIEL L. TAYLOR

SUPERIOR, Colo. (UPI) — When the siren wails atop this town's red brick firehouse, the firefighters drop their ironing, dusting, washing and other housewifely chores to respond.

The Superior, Colo., Volunteer Fire Department—the day crew, that is—is composed of women.

The siren's three-minute call has pierced the air fewer than a dozen times in the past year and a half, and each time the six women have grabbed their white helmets and black bunker coats and headed for the department's one-and-a-half ton 1948 pump truck.

"We've had only three actual fires since the department started," said Marlene Machin, 35, wife of Chief Jack Machin, 37. Mrs. Machin has been a member of the department since its inception.

"That first fire was only a wheatfield," she said. "We had problems with the truck. Then we couldn't get the pump started. It was a good thing the fire was not a bad one."

Population: 230

Superior, Colo., population 230, is a sleepy, rural community just south of the 25-mile expressway between Boulder, Colo., and Denver. Mobile homes and modest brick and frame houses face onto the town's tree-lined streets. There are no stores in Superior and most of the people work and shop in Denver and Boulder.

"We used to receive fire protection from Louisville, Colo., which is about five miles away," said Machin, who became chief in February after two years as assistant chief.

"They did a real good job of giving us protection. But then one day about two years ago they decided to form a tax district here and everybody in Superior balked.

"So Louisville told us they wouldn't go outside their city limits and protect us anymore."

Machin, a maintenance man for the Boulder Valley School system, said a group of Superior citizens met and decided the town needed its own fire department.

Men not around

"But then we faced a problem," Machin said. "We decided we would have to have women as firefighters, at least during the day. There are always women in town, but you can never guarantee that a man will be around.

"So we set it up with 10 men, mostly for nights and weekends, and six women, mostly for use during week days."

All 16 department members have been trained in first aid, fire fighting and the use of equipment and other necessary skills. And all have nursed a heavy, two-inch hose inside a burning building during practice fires, supervised by more experienced departments.

The second fire the women fought was a bad one. A mobile home exploded because of a gas leak, destroying the home and threatening several others nearby. Flaming debris was thrown hundreds of feet.

Pam Papini, 30, married 12 years and the mother of two boys, was up to her elbows in meatloaf when the alarm sounded for the fire. Luckily she had a babysitter handy for Jason, 4, her youngest son.

"Apprehensive Stiff"

"I was scared stiff, or maybe apprehensive stiff would be a better way to put it," she said. "I think the others were that way, too, but we did what had to be done."

Mrs. Machin agreed.

"It was a bad fire with flames and smoke all over the place," she said. "I was apprehensive but not really scared—although someone who doesn't feel some fear is a fool."

The women contained the fire and saved the surrounding mobile homes. They feel they did a good job and the chief agreed.

"No one, not even a major metropolitan department, could have saved that trailer," Machin said. "They did really well. They got there quickly and went about their business. Hell, some of the women are more qualified to fight fires than some of the men."

Need, not philosophy

The six women who form the day crew are all tough-minded realists. All agree women's liberation had nothing to do with volunteering for the department and although opinions vary, most have little good to say about the movement.

"I think women's lib is a bunch of baloney," Mrs. Machin said. "It was a matter of necessity—we needed fire protection—not philosophy."

Edith Barcus, 52, a veteran of 30 years of marriage, the mother of four children and the elected leader of the women, summed up the group's feelings best.

"I joined because they needed me," she said. "I'm a farm woman and I'm capable. Women's lib played no part in it."

New unity in town

Superior has changed since the department started; there is a new sense of unity in the town. The town and department raised the money for the pump truck, purchased last February, and for materials to build the new station. The men did most of the construction work.

"There's been a kind of excitement around here," Mrs. Machin said. "When the siren goes on the station roof—we don't know if it's practice or real—everybody and his dog shows up to watch what's going on."

But while the women enjoy the work, they share one fear: The next alarm might be a really big residential fire and children or old people might be trapped inside.

"For small children, fires are really, really bad," Mrs. Machin said. "I don't know how we'd react. I think we'd all be calm. But we are all really scared of answering a call with children trapped. We all hope it never happens."

Fiddler's tune becoming habit

LONDON (UPI) — Two weeks ago street fiddler Kolodziej Boleslaw told a court he got drunk because someone stole his violin. The judge not only dismissed the charge but ordered a new fiddle bought for him out of a legal charity fund.

Boleslaw, 56, was back in court again recently, on the same charge and with the same story.

"If you go on having your fiddle stolen people will become suspicious," said magistrate Sir Frank Milton. This time Boleslaw was fined $1.25. He got no new fiddle.

Questions, answers

Mae West's age figured at 81

By DICK KLEINER

DEAR DICK: Just how old is Mae West? And will she be doing anything more in show business? — RALPH BJORKLUND, Bemidji, Minn.

DEAR MR. BJORKLUND: The World Almanac, which is pretty accurate, says Mae was born in Brooklyn, N.Y., in 1892, which makes her 81. She doesn't look a day over 81, either — but she doesn't look a day under it, for that matter. I am not a big Mae-westophile. I think she should have hung up her spikes years ago and been a nice legend. She probably won't do anything more, except maybe talk show appearances. At her age, breathing is a triumph.

DEAR DICK: Are the Oscars honest? Would you explain the voting procedure, please. — MARYLN GILLIS, Soux Falls, Iowa

DEAR MS. GILLIS: Books could be written in answer to your question. Basically, yes, they're honest — at least, nobody falsifies ballots or deliberately miscounts. But a case could be made that they are dishonest, at least indirectly. This indirect dishonesty takes several forms — first, usually only successful pictures are considered; second, there is a vigorous ad campign conducted in Hollywood's trade papers and, of course, the wealthiest stars and studios do the most advertising; and third, studios bring pressures to bear on their employes to vote their way.

The voting procedure, for the major categories, starts with the members of the various craft branches (writers, musicians, actors) voting for the nominees. Then the full membership of the academy votes on the nominees and thus selects the ultimate Oscar winners.

DEAR DICK: What will happen to three stars of The Mod Squad, now that their series has gone off? — CAROL ANNE SHAW, Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

DEAR DICK: Would you please tell me the age difference between Desi Arnaz Jr., Liza Minelli and Peter Sellers? — LARRY KRAMER, Cape Girardeau, Mo.

DEAR DICK: Reading from young to old, Desi is 20, Liza is 27 and good old Pete is 48. For Liza, it was a case of going from the sublime to the decrepit.

DEAR DICK: Is Katharine Heburn still living? — CHARLES FURMAN, Oklahoma City.

Old playboy role gone for George Hamilton

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — George Hamilton became a national figure during President Lyndon Johnson's administration through the simple expedience of dating the chief executive's daughter, Lynda Bird.

Now Hamilton is married to actress Alana Collins, invests in the stock market, lives in Palm Springs and completed his 37th motion picture earlier this year, "The Man Who Loved Cat Dancing."

"I sold my Beverly Hills home, Grayhall, three years ago," he said. "I couldn't afford it. I had an entirely different set of values.

Phony stuff

"I've gone through a lot of phony stuff in my life. It started when I was 17 and leading an unreal life in Palm Beach. Everybody around me was keeping up with the Vanderbilts instead of the Joneses. Then I had overnight success when my contemporaries were still in school."

While George was making movies his pals were going to college.

"I was a playboy instead of a schoolboy." Hamilton's voice was tinged with rueful regret. "It finally dawned on me that I had a large wagon to pull. My house cost me altogether too much money.

Young, rich boy

"It was a phase I was going through. I was type cast as a young little rich boy. It wasn't true. I looked around and saw some of the other actors I started out with dropping from the scene."

George received good financial advice along the way and made some worthwhile investments. It isn't necessary for him to make movies, but he continues to do so.

"Now I am more myself than ever. I'm not trying to please anyone but Alana and myself," he said.

Has everything

"I've got everything I want, a home here in the desert, a swimming pool, a sauna and an airplane to fly back and forth to Los Angeles and Las Vegas. I don't have a jet, but I do own a plane. I have a beautiful home, but it's not a mansion.

"I won't accept a picture just to make money as I once did. I have a tendency not to be so wound up in myself. It gives me a lot of freedom.

"In the old days I'd go to parties where being a star meant who you sat next to at dinner. All I became was the extra man at dinner—like someone you'd hire from Central Casting.

Free parties

"I did that as kid at debutante parties in the East. When I came to Hollywood I accepted invitations because the parties were free. It doesn't pay. You have to live realistically."

His day-to-day life is pleasant, but not luxurious. His marriage almost didn't take place. He and Alana were constant companions for five years. They reached an impasse—marriage or break-up.

"I went to South America to see the places I had visited as a kid," George said. "I thought my relationship with Alana was over. But I didn't enjoy myself. In South America I saw the graveyard of my youth.

"I cut the trip short, came home and called Alana who was in London. I told her I wanted to get married. Everything was arranged in a matter of minutes. When she returned we flew right to Las Vegas."

George and Alana were married last Oct. 30.

"This is the best time in my life," the former bachelor said. "Alana and I fulfill each other's needs. We ride horseback and swim almost every day. My life has changed in every respect, and all for the better."

DANCING STARS — Maria Abundiz and Julian Amador perform a Mexican folk dance in the musical, "Serenata Ranchera" at the Padua Hills Theater in Claremont. The show is presented at 8:30 Wednesday through Saturday nights and at 2:30 p.m. Wednesdays, Saturdays and Sundays. Ticket reservations can be made by calling 626-1288.

POW's suicide taken hard by ex-cellmate

Lawyer Joseph Remcho said he talked by telephone with Marine S. Sgt. Alfonse R. Riate, Santa Rosa, Calif., and told him of Kavenaugh's death Wednesday in Commerce City, Calif.

"He broke down in tears," the lawyer said of Riate. "He was damn near incoherent with sorrow. He was unable to talk very long." The lawyer said Riate and Kavenaugh were cellmates for two years and "close" friends.

Remcho said he held the Secretary of the Navy "personally responsible" for Kavenaugh's death as well as "for the mental health and life of his client.

Major exhibition of art by Winslow Homer to open

LOS ANGELES — An exhibition of more than 150 oils, watercolors, drawings, wood engravings and etchings by 19th Century artist Winslow Homer will open at the county Museum of Art July 19.

The month-long exhibit will be open to the public from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday; 10 a.m to 9 p.m. Friday; and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. Admission is $1; students and senior citizens, 50 cents.

Sea coast life

Essentially a self-taught painter, Homer is best known for his depictions of life along the Eastern sea coast. This exhibition shows the range of Homer's interest from his early Civil War sketches to beautiful outdoor landscapes. This is the most comprehensive Homer exhibition organized in the past 15 years.

Lloyd Goodrich, authority on Homer, organized the show for the Whitney Museum of American Art in New York, where it was acclaimed by both the critics and the public. The catalog Goodrich prepared will be available for purchase in the Museum bookshop for $6.

"In his energy, the pristine freshness of his vision, and his simple sensuous vitality, Homer expressed certain aspects of the American spirit as no preceding artist had," Goodrich said. "His evolution epitomizes the growth of American painting in the second half of the 19th Century, from provincial limitations to the main stream of world art."

Apprenticed at 19

Homer was born in Massachusetts in 1835 and died 74 years later in Maine, where he had painted many of his best-known seascapes. He was apprenticed at 19 to a leading Boston lithographic shop, where his drawing skill was first noticed. Two years later he was working on a free-lace illustrator for Harper's Weekly, the best American illustrated magazine of the time. The magazine sent him into battle zones at the outbreak of the the Civil War where he made some of the most authentic pictorial records of the war.

It was not until he was 26 that Homer began working with color and by the time he was 38 he had completely given up black and white illustration. Homer received recognition as an artist early in his career. All of his important oils were sold during his lifetime. The highest price he ever received was $5,000 in 1896 for a painting titled "The Wreck."

Artistic watercolors

Homer's purest artistic achievements, according to Goodrich, were his later watercolors. An experienced fisherman and hunter, Homer made several camping trips into the Adirondacks, where he was able to combine sport and art. "In these works he captured the virgin freshness of the American wilderness as few artists had," said Goodrich.

One of the watercolors from this period, "After the Hunt," was lent by the Los Angeles County Museum of Art to the exhibition, which will also be seen in Chicago this fall. An oil painting titled "Lost on the Grand Banks," which has been on a long-term loan to the Los Angeles museum, is also included in the exhibition.

Works by several of Homer's contemporaries can be seen in the Muesum's permanent collection on the third level of the Ahmanson Gallery. There are paintings by Albert Bierstadt, George Inness, William Keith and Thomas Moran in the American galleries on the third level. The permanent galleries are always open to the public free of charge.

Cupid departs, couple given their refund

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — The city Board of Supervisors, knowing that love is fickle, has agreed to a refund of $15 to a California couple for an unused marriage license.

John D. Davis of Fair Oaks and Nicki Ansted of Citrus Heights applied for a marriage license at 2 a.m. last Monday. In about 15 minutes they changed their mind and were back asking for a refund, which was refused by the city clerks office.

The city supervisors showed more compassion Thursday. One city official noted that even if the refund were not made, it was a "lot cheaper than a divorce."

Union must pay victims of its discrimination

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI — A federal judge has awarded $396,000 in damages to minority group members who can prove they were discriminated against by Operating Engineers Local 3.

U.S. District Judge Robert Peckham, it was disclosed Thursday, also awarded $140,000 in fees to lawyers and legal aid societies who filed class-action suits against Local 3.

The damages money will be shared by those who can prove to the Justice Department that they were denied membership in the union, work assignments or entry into apprenticeship programs since July 2, 1965, because of discriminatory practices.

Local 3 and major employers previously consented to the judge's orders with the understanding it was not an admission of guilt.

1972 flood victim

Isleton gradually making comeback

By DONALD THORNTON

ISLETON, Calif. (UPI) — M.J. "Butch" Franscioni, 73-year-old mayor of this picturesque island town in the lush Sacramento-San Jaoquin Detla, has planted his last crop of alfalfa.

"I'm too old to start over—I'm all through," Franscioni said.

But Franscioni is the exception, rather than the rule, in the rebuilding of this tiny Sacramento River community of 900 persons at the north end of Andrus.

Brannan and Andrus were flooded up to 25 feet deep June 21, 1972 when a tiny leak appeared in the levee keeping out the San Joaquin River and it grew into a gaping 300-foot hole, letting 53 billion gallons of water pour through.

A makeshift, emergency levee was thrown up around this town, but the lapping water soon reduced it into silt and surged through two-thirds of the community, sparing only the main business district.

No deaths

Miraculously there were no deaths or serious injury—but damage totaled a staggering $25 million.

Three-hundred and fifty houses and 126 mobile homes were lost. Sixteen marinas were destroyed and 42 other businesses sustained damage.

Floodwaters also destroyed a pickle factory, sending thousands of pickles floating toward the sea and acre after acre of prime agriculture land for barley, corn, alfalfa, wheat, tomatoes and safflower were wiped out.

It took six months to pump the two islands dry—but people started moving back as soon as the water began dropping.

Six-hundred of the city's 900 residents have returned and are now rebuilding, said Fire Chief Cecil Tomlin. The other 300, he added, are planning to return.

"At the present time the city is doing very well," Tomlin said. "We have a lot of new building permits. It's really surprising how fast the recovery has been."

Beehive of activity

Isleton, situated near the center of the delta on the Sacramento River, is now a beehive of construction activity with close to half a million dollars in building permits issued in just the past six months.

"Some new families are acres being planted this spring, Tomlin added.

But the flood dampened business throughout the delta, including houseboat rentals—a popular recreational activity in this meandering area, often called "the Everglades of the West."

"People just canceled their reservations after the flood. They had the idea the entire delta was flooded. We estimated there was a $6 million loss," said Dennis Fisher, president of the Delta Houseboat Rental Association who operates the Lazy Days Marina on Holland Track near Brentwood.

Nervous people

"The people seem to be coming back now, but they're nervous. Our advance reser- northside," Tomlin said.

And farmers, the backbone of the delta, have found the flooding waters did not do as much soil damage as first forecast, with thousands of even moving into town—we had little trouble selling 20 homes recently built on the vations don't seem to be coming in as quickly," he said. "We're trying everything we can to let the public know, 'Hey, everything's great in the delta'."

Deputy Sheriff Frank Horsley, who was raised in the delta and has been patrolling it for the past year, says, "The whole area is coming back to life. To drive around the levees now you wouldn't know they broke. And the farmers returned, many are getting their crops in already."

Brannon and Andrus are two of 50 islands which make up the 1,150 mile delta located between San Francisco, Sacramento and Stockton. It is still relatively isolated maze of sloughs, islands, levees, and lush vegetation at the confluence of the Sacramento and San Joaquin Rivers.

There was one plus factor to the flooding. It resulted in much needed public attention and legislation for the protection of this giant drainage system which empties into the San Francisco Bay.

Describing the delta as a "fantastic recreation area for everyone," Sen. Howard Way, R-Exeter, introduced legislation setting up special regulations and reimbursement for the maintenance and improvement of private levees throughout the delta.

Haldeman: not hiding, just awaiting my turn

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — H.R. Haldeman, who doesn't want to talk about the Watergate allegations against him, this week denied that he is hiding out in this seaside town.

"I've been out sailing every day, I've been over to the store, I've been to the barber shop and I've taken long walks," the former White House chief of staff said.

Haldeman, his wife, Jo, and son, Peter, are staying at a $750,000 home owned by stockbroker Warren Crowell on exclusive Harbor Island, which has only 28 houses.

"Sure I've been watching" the televised Senate Watergate hearings, Haldeman said, including the appearance of former White House Counsel John W. Dean III.

"I have taken the consistent position that I will not comment on specific testimony...from any witness or media source," he said.

"I will have my story to tell when I get to the Senate committee and when I do, the truth will be very clear....The facts as I know them will clearly establish that there is in no way any guilt or involvement by the President of the United States."

He said he hoped the American people would "withhold their judgment until they've heard the full story rather than jumping to conclusions based on testimony or allegations of one witness, media source or unidentified high-place figure."

"If you start answering the charges, you dignify the charges, and after all the things I've seen lobbed out of Washington, which have died of their own weight or proven false, not answering the charges has proven wise in the past."

Pastor tells 'bare' truth of mistake

WORTHING, England (UPI) — A Church of England minister told his parishioners recently how he and his wife found themselves stranded in a Yugoslav nudist camp by mistake.

The Rev. Tony Potter, 54, and his wife Yvonne were vacationing when they spotted an advertisement offering a boat trip to a "naturalists' island," he said in the Worthing parish magazine.

Only when they got there and found the place "alive with nudists" did they realize the advertisement should have read "naturists' island," Potter said.

They had to wait for hours for the boat to return and get them.

"Odd as it may seem, I am convinced that exposure to such an experience would kill lust stone dead," he said.

"The human body, bereft of the armor of clothes, make-up and other aids to beauty, has a defenseless innocence which is heartening in this sex-mad age," he said.

Pub. July 1, 1973.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Sealed proposals for: CONSTRUCTION OF VEJAR ROAD BETWEEN CARBONIA AVENUE AND BARBADOS DRIVE IN THE CITY OF WALNUT will be received at the office of the City Clerk, City Hall, 20550 E. Carrey Road, Walnut, California until 2.00 o'clock P.M. on July 16, 1973 at which time they will be publicly opened and read aloud.

No bids shall be considered unless it is made on a proposal form furnished by the City Engineer and is made in accordance with the provisions of the Standard Specifications for Public Works Construction 1970 Edition, with 1971 and 1972 supplements.

Each bid must be accompanied by cash, certified or cashier's check or bidder's bond, made payable to the City of Walnut for an amount equal to at least ten percent (10%) of the amount bid, such guaranty to be forfeited should the bidder to whom the contract is awarded fail to enter into the contract. Plans, specifications, contracts and proposal forms may be obtained at the Office of the City Engineer, 20550 E. Carrey Road, Walnut, California for a non-refundable fee of $10.00.

Pursuant to the provisions of Section 1770-1777 of the Labor Code of the State of California, the City of Walnut has ascertained the general prevailing rate of wages and employer payments for health and welfare, vacations, pensions and similar purposes in the City in which the work is to be done. This is on file in the Office of the City Clerk, 20550 E. Carrey Road, Walnut, California. Information relative to the employment of apprentices shall be obtained from the Director of the Department of Industrial Relations, who is the Administrative Officer of the California Apprenticeship Council. The Contractor shall forfeit as penalty to the City of Walnut, Twenty-five Dollars ($25.00) for laborers, workmen, or mechanics employed for each calendar day or portion thereof, if such laborer, workman or mechanic is paid less than the general prevailing rate of wages herein referred to and stipulated for any work done under the proposed contract, by him, or by any subcontractor under him, in violation of the provisions of the Labor Code, and in particular, Sections 1770 to 1781 inclusive. Copies of all collective bargaining agreements relating to the work as set forth in the aforementioned Labor Code are on file and available for inspection in the Office of the Department of Industrial Relations, Division of Labor Statistics and Research.

San Mateo County sheriff's deputies said Singleterry had been stabbed and shot. The check was missing.

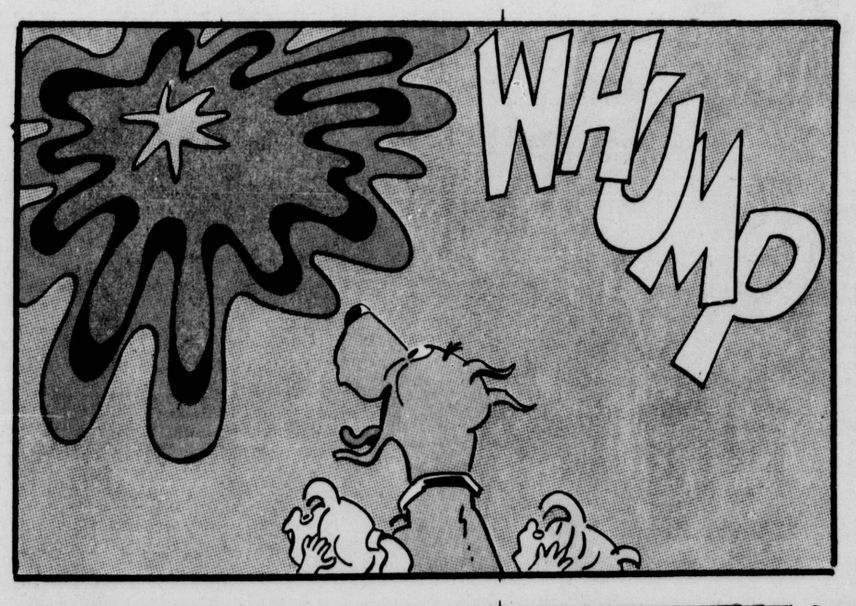
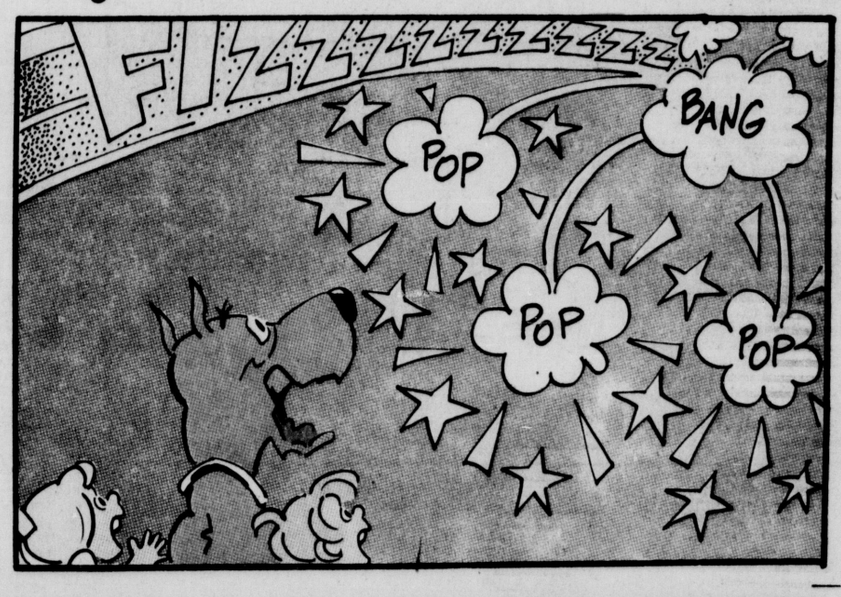
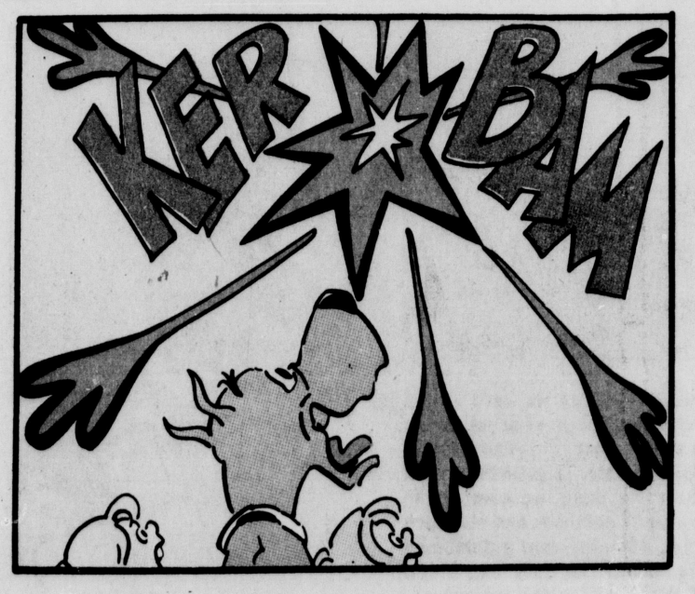
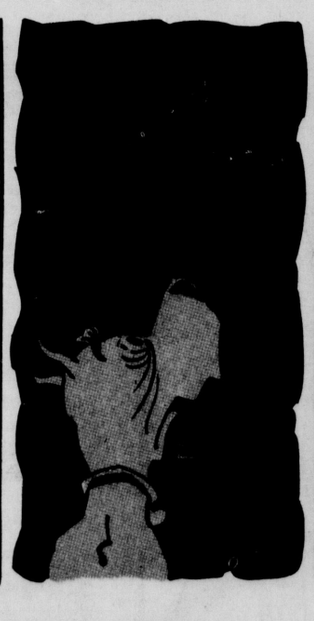
MARMADUKE

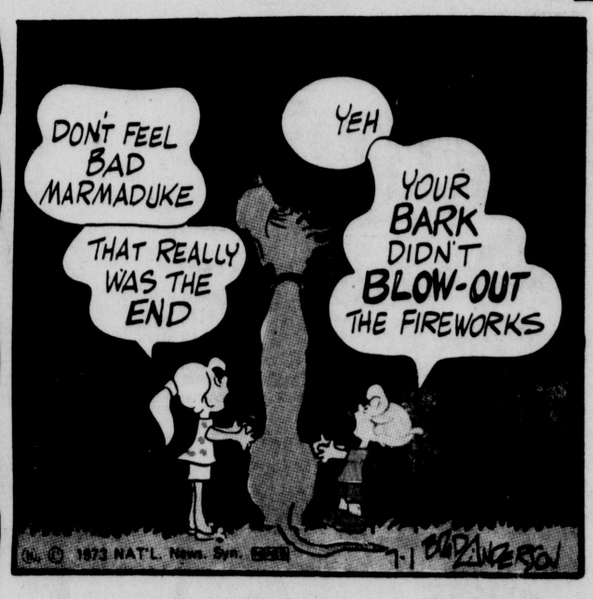
By BRAD ANDERSON









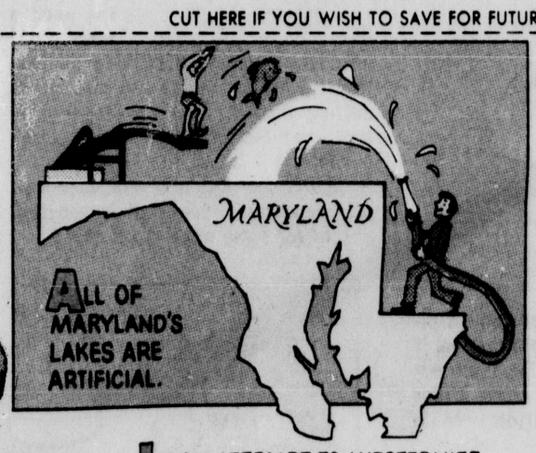


CUT HERE IF YOU WISH TO SAVE FOR FUTURE REFERENCE

FUN FACTS

fun things to know and tell

THE TURKEY IS SO AMERICAN THAT BENJAMIN FRANKLIN WANTED IT (RATHER THAN THE EAGLE) CHOSEN FOR THE SYMBOL OF AMERICA.



ALL OF MARYLAND'S LAKES ARE ARTIFICIAL.

THE WORLD'S OLDEST DOMESTICATED DOG IS THE SALUKI WHICH WAS DEVELOPED IN SYRIA AND BROUGHT TO EGYPT BY ARAB TRADERS ABOUT 7000-6000 B.C.

POLLY'S POINTERS

DEAR POLLY—Most of us have heard of a new beauty aid that warms cream for facial use. Instead of buying one I found that a baby bottle warmer works quite nicely for most any size cold cream jar. Usually obtaining one is not a problem. Many have saved one as a keepsake.—S. A. L.

© 1973 by NEA, Inc.,

DEAR POLLY—When my portable dishwasher discharged water into the sink it splattered everything nearby. I now put my flour sifter, flat side down, under the outlet. Result? No splatters.—MRS. R. C.

Polly pays $1.00 for every idea used. Send them to her, c/o this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY—After buying a package of miniature boxes of raisins, save the empty boxes and then buy a large, economy box of raisins. Refill the small boxes to go in the children's school lunch boxes.—ELLEN

DEAR POLLY—I do crewel embroidery and find the wool sold for this makes doing much of such work quite expensive. I now buy 2-ounce skeins of wool knitting yarn and separate the strands. I think this works fine for my crewel work, and the yarn lasts for years.—CHERYL

DEAR POLLY—I accidentally spilled some cooking oil on the wood top of my portable dishwasher. After smearing it in, I noticed the oil made the wood a deeper and richer color. Ever since, I have been putting a cooking oil (one tablespoon) on the top and also on my cutting boards. They no longer have that dried-out look that wood can get. —KRISTI

(Polly's Note—Rub it in well, then wipe off any excess. Peanut oil is also suggested for some wood-block tops.)

DEAR POLLY—Often we have visited friends who have shown us home movies we have seen before. This can become somewhat of a bore. To prevent us from doing the same thing, we number the pages in a small notebook and also each roll of film. After we show a numbered movie we record the date and WHO SAW IT WITH US on the corresponding page in the book, then refer to it so friends will not have to suffer re-runs. —CAROL

DEAR POLLY—After juicing oranges or lemons I put the rinds in a plastic bag and freeze them, ready to use when a recipe calls for grated rind. Be sure to grate the rinds while they are still frozen.—MRS. A. E. M.

●

DEAR POLLY—Girls who are pregnant during the summer can construct their own bathing suits by using an old two-piece knit suit and sewing to the edge of the top a matching or contrasting gathered piece of material. This gathered piece covers the tummy. Such a suit is usually prettier than one you can buy.—MRS. E. I.

2034

So Pretty

A lovely peacock design worked in embroidery and crochet makes a pretty set of linens. No. 2034 has hot-iron transfer for 2 designs; color chart; crochet directions for edging.

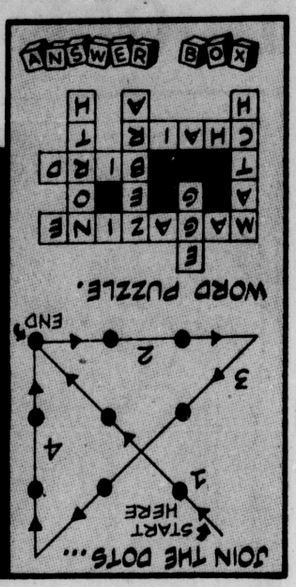
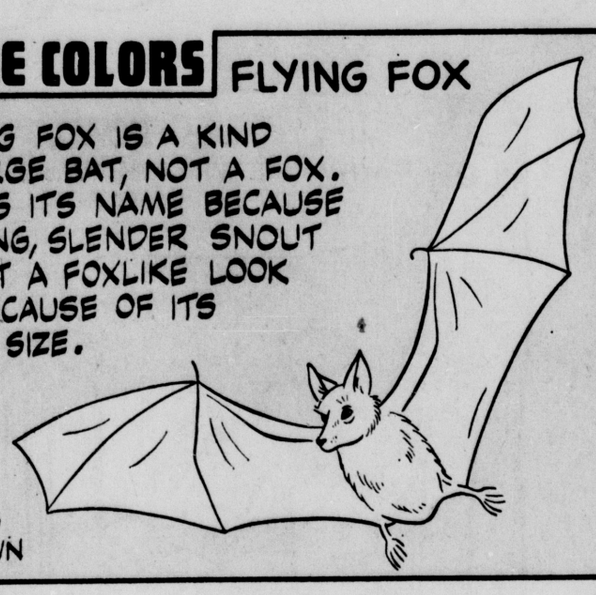
ANSWER BOX



NATURE COLORS — FLYING FOX

A FLYING FOX IS A KIND OF LARGE BAT, NOT A FOX. IT GETS ITS NAME BECAUSE ITS LONG, SLENDER SNOUT GIVES IT A FOXLIKE LOOK AND BECAUSE OF ITS LARGE SIZE.



COLOR THE FLYING FOX BROWN

"WHY IS A DIME SMALLER THAN A PENNY?"

THE ANSWER IS THAT AT ONE TIME SOME COINS WERE MADE WITH PRECIOUS METALS, SUCH AS SILVER AND GOLD. THE AMOUNT OF PRECIOUS METAL DETERMINED A COIN'S VALUE. THUS, A THIN DIME MADE OF SILVER WAS MORE VALUABLE THAN A LARGER PENNY MADE FROM LESS-PRECIOUS COPPER. COINS ARE NO LONGER MADE FROM SILVER AND GOLD. THEY ARE MADE FROM ALLOYS, OR MIXTURES OF METALS, SUCH AS COPPER, NICKEL, AND ZINC. BUT THEY ARE STILL MINTED IN THE OLD SIZES MOST FAMILIAR TO US.
